For once a theatrical manager has underrated the public sense of decency. The man who undertook to star Nan Patterson has failed.

Talk about a prize, and to enter for a prize, the Chestertown Enterprise has a prize in a colony of bees which has entered the sanctum and taken possession. Now bee good, honey, won't you?

It is officially announced at St. Petersburg that Russia has accepted Washington as a place of meeting for the peace conference "by personal direction of the Czar." That sounds like business.

It must require a peculiar mind to doubt the administration's sincerity in its campaign against the trusts in view of the good work going on against the Beef Trust, the Paper Trust, the Santa Fe Railroad, et al.

Perhaps the Czar now regrets that he ever departed from the high ideals which he enunciated when he called the first Hague peace convention into session. The poor Czar is a puppet in the hands of a restless bad system.

The sweet young graduate is now of the past, present and future. Past, because her speech has been "spoke"; present because she fills a long felt ever-present want, and future because there is a big future in store for her.

Andrew Carnegie has been asked to contribute the modest sum of $30,000,000 for the purpose of promoting a hard and fast international alliance between this country, Great Britain, France and Germany, and thereby establish perpetual peace, for the alliance could then be in position to force peace upon all contending nations.

China is getting her back up over the United States, and is attempting to boycott American trade. This is retaliation for not allowing the Celestial free scope to land in this country and bring his cheap labor to our doors, at the same time contribute nothing to the nation, and take his wealth and bones back to his own country.

The President has appointed a commission of tried men in the government service to investigate the methods of the executive departments of the government. There is abundant room for investigation and reform, because the methods of every department of the government are said to be unbusinesslike. They have never been reformed since the days of the spoils system, when it was not a question of how economically a given amount of work could be performed but of how many places a given amount of work would afford an excuse for. It is only a few years ago when a prominent member of the cabinet always applied to Congress for three or four more employees to perform any work he wanted to undertake than he regarded necessary. By means of the extra places which were doled out to the brothers, mothers-in-law, sisters, cousins and aunts of members of Congress he secured the appropriation of the amount of money he wanted and the people paid many times the actual cost of the actually useless work The relatives of the members of Congress usually performed no labor other than to draw their pay. With the extension of civil service reform this sort of thing is at an end, but the evils remain and in numerous instances there may be found six clerks performing work that in any well regulated business house would be done by three, or that would be better not done at all. This, of course, is only one of the many phases of reform that are needed and which, it is hoped, the new commission will ferret out and bring to the attention of the President.

NEWSPAPER MAN'S MECCA.

The Splendid New Warehouse of Messrs. McDonald & Fisher.

It was the privilege of the editor recently to visit the young and vigorous firm of McDonald & Fisher in their splendid new warehouse, 32 South Charles St, Baltimore. At the time of the disastrous fire, they, with hundreds of others, were left with ashes and ruins in the place of paper and cardboard, which they carried in stock amounting to hundreds of tons. Not discouraged or daunted, they immediately opened up temporary quarters on Saratoga St., and though crowded, began filling orders from car-load lots of goods fresh from the mills. Without apparent interruption to the trade which depended upon them for its supplies, Messrs. McDonald & Fisher managed to permit the tide of business to flow serenely and without apology to their out-of-town customers. This in itself was a feat worthy of master merchants, who could meet disaster and rise above the adverse conditions. All the time they were planning for new building and permanent quarters, until recently they entered the mammoth store extending half way through from Charles to Hanover, with elevation of five floors above a stone-cased cellar. This structure is appointed with elevators, electric lights and all modern appliances.

Besides the private offices is one especially fitted up for guests and customers; which gives the out-of-town man a feeling of comfort, while he estimates and scratches to make the cost of stock fit the price the consumer expects to pay. This warehouse is loaded from cellar to "attic" (the attic, by the way, is as large and convenient as any floor) with tiers of papers of every size and quality needed by printers. It is a pleasure to see the stock if one does not need to buy, and no more courteous gentlemen ever faced a new or old or prospective customer than Messrs. McDonald & Fisher. They possess the elements of success and should succeed.

No Secret about It.

It is no secret, that for Cuts, Burns, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Sore Eyes, Boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Texas. 25c. at Smithers' Moreland Pharmacy.

Philosophic Research.

Thus Seth the Democrats: We're bound to win.

Why? Because, Seth the victor, we hold the key to the situation.

You mean the key to the locker.

No, the key that does the trick, Seth the hopeful.

What key can that be?

Hist! hush! whis-key, of course.

Did Collins have no key of the kind? Not on your life, Seth the Collins man.

What will be the outcome? Lay low, and watch.

Can't matters be amended? Yes, by an amendment to the constitution.

There ain't going to be no amendment to the constitution.

Great Scott!

Why not say Great Arthur Pue!

Because Arthur Pue will not be in it after election any more than Port Arthur is in it now.

But Port Arthur stood fire and did not run.

Iron will run when it gets hot enough.

It will be hot enough this fall for anything to run.

Why? The Democrats will have an elephant on their hands, that bastard baby they are ashamed of.

A regular baby elephant, then.

It will be a full fledged circus, all right—a kind of "internal differences" on the order of the Russians, only there will be no Czar.

How about the Republican camp, Seth the Democrat?

You will know where it is when the flag is hoisted. Until then we let the enemy surmise all it wants to.

I believe you stand a big chance to win Seth the democrat.

The zephyrs of the present would indicate the breeze of the future might blow up a hurricane in our favor—but indications are treacherous.

So are some people.

Trust no future, Seth the poet.

Trust your all and get nothing, Seth the merchant.

Trust the public and get left, Seth the newspaper man.

Trust the contribution box and get buttons, Seth the preacher.

Trust the weather and get wet, Seth the bureau.

Trust the trust and get a trustee, Seth the lawyer; and by the way, no better one adorns the bar, Seth his friends.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRAT'S VIEWS

Gives Strong Reasons for Opposing Disfranchisement Amendment.

Ex-Senator Chas. W. Michael of Harford county, an Independent Democrat, discusses the Poe amendment in the Baltimore News as follows:

I oppose the adoption of the disfranchising amendment to the Constitution of Maryland—

First—Because I look upon this effort as merely an attempt of the present management of the Democratic party to perpetuate its own existence and power in Maryland, and for no other purpose whatsoever.

Second—Because I look upon this method as a fraudulent attempt to undermine the Constitution of the United States, and that the racial self-defence pleaded in its justification has no foundation in fact.

Third—Because I believe that a tendency exists everywhere in the United States, whenever the interests of the powerful require it, to override constitutional restrictions, which I am fully convinced should receive no encouragement.

Fourth—Because, believing as I do in old fashioned Democratic principles, I think that the party can be maintained as an agency whereby good government may be effected only when it relies upon its honest men and its honest principles freely accepted by the people, and not upon various kinds of election machinery which is deliberately contrived to thwart their will.

Fifth—Because I believe that whenever the people of Maryland desire to eliminate the illiterate or purchasable vote it should be done in such a manner as to make it certain that the undesirable vote will be eliminated from all political parties alike, and not from one alone to the great advantage of another.

Sixth—Because the right of elective franchise is now guaranteed to the people by the Constitution of the State; and even though in my judgment it is now unfairly and unrighteously administered, yet it is far safer as it is than to have it left in the tender keeping of those who may be both ignorant and unscrupulous minions of selfish and partisan manipulation.
