Dear Sir January 12th 1836

It was at the request of your brother William W. Hoye's family that I hastily addressed a few lines to you on Saturday Morning last informing you of his illness and it is again at the request of the family that I have to communicate to the painful news that your brother William W. Hoye died on Saturday evening last about six O'clock. I am perfectly satisfied he was in his senses till within a few moments before he breathed his last tho he become speechless about nine O'clock on the morning of that day growing out of a collection of phlegm collected in the throat and which he was unable get up on account of his great weakness, in my letter of Saturday last mentioned that he had mentioned to me something about some bond that stood in his name on the record that was actually yours and that he intended to make a will & in that will make a provision for the reconveyance of that land back to you immediately after I sealed up that letter to send to you I went into his room to commence writing his will and requested him to give the outlines of what he wished to do with his property first, what property he had and how he wanted it disposed of, he commenced, but before he got thro even that part, his voice so failed him that I could not understand one word he said and had therefore to stop without finishing it, his communication about your land with other important business he made to me a little before day
