DECORATION DAY OBSERVED.

Dr. Wm. T. Lewis of Oxford Orator of the Occosion. Maj. Wm. E. Stewart Invited to Speak Amid Rousing Cheers.

Decoration Day was observed by the Grand Army men of Hicks Post, and many citizens on Wednesday last. The day was perfect, and the town was filled with vehicles and people from the surrounding country. Bowman's fine band of sixteen pieces rendered splendid music. The procession began at Market Space and went out Dover Street direct to the Cemetary where the graves were decorated with flowers and the G. A. R. ritual for the occasion was read.

The speakers' stand was occupied by a number of prominent citizens and the services conducted by Commander Griffin. At the close of the G. A. R. services, Col. J. C. Mullikin introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. William Thurman Lewis, of Oxford. Dr. Lewis talked fluently upon the horrors of the war and his connection with the great struggle which meant to the world a larger freedom to nations and broader citizenship to individuals. He said the United States was unique in the assembly of Nations in that it was the only country whose flag, the glorious stars and strips, stood for liberty of mankind the rim of which liberty was as boundless as the horizon. "If you do not applaud at that," said the speaker, "you need not applaud at any thing I have to say." A liberal applause was given, and frequently throughout his remarks.

After Dr. Lewis spoke, Col. Mullikin called upon Maj. Wm. E. Stewart, a veteran of the Confederate army. The Major was taken unawares, but said he had met his foeman unawares before and guessed he could do it again. He was most happy in his expression of present unanimity and the glories of one flag, but did not attempt to excuse or palliate one act of his or those who fought with his side for they were doing what to them was right and would have been recognized as right by the processes of time had the victories of war fallen upon their side. The great American people live and move and progress. Mistakes that are made today are remedied tomorrow. We know not what would have been the exact status of the country today had the south succeeded in secession, but we do know that we have adjusted ourselves to the conditions of an undivided nation, and with those conditions have come many burdens other than the "white man's burden" and these burdens are what the nation is laboring with today. The American people justify themselves to conditions, be it earthquake or pestilence and triumph in the end. The Major gave pleasant little sallies to the boys in blue and felt honored there that he should have been asked to make an address. It was unprecedented and showed not only high respect for the Major but the kind feeling that existed as well as abolition of all sectionalism. The Major received rounds of applause at the close of his very entertaining speech.

Col. Henry Holliday, of Gov. Warfield's Staff graced the stage in full Staff uniform. Hundreds of persons were present and the day considered a big success from every point of view, The G. A. R. are again to be congratulated upon having made so much of the day.

I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used." Sold at Harry Roberts' Drug Store.

Musical Recital.

The ladies of the Easton Mercantile Library have arranged a Recital for the benefit of the Library to come off the evening of June twelfth at Assembly Hall of the High School. The admission will be 50 cents and the tickets will be offered next week by special solicitors. This will be something rarer than a "day in June" for the talent of Miss Ricketson and Prof. Carter has been promised. Miss Ricketson has studied extensively in Paris and Germany and has a voice of rare culture and brilliancy, while Prof. Carter, of St. Luke's, Baltimore, is too well known in this town as a master of the piano to need more than a mention.

The Enemies of the Rose.

Be on the lookout for the enemies of the rose. You will have to fight for every fine flower, I have given up the use of hellebore, because it is so unreliable. Paris green is likely to burn the foliage if strong, and if weak it fails to accomplish the purpose for which it is used. I depend on a homemade remedy which is made by melting half a cake of the ordinary size of Ivory soap and mixing it with a teacupful of kerosene. Dilute this mixture with 10 gallons of water, and apply with a sprayer, being careful to have it get to all parts of the plant. This preparation is far more satisfactory than any of the insectisides for sale by florists, and will never injure the foliage or flowers. It is a good plan to begin the use of it before the various rose enemies put in an appearance, and keep up its us until their season of activity is over.—Eben E. Rexford in The Outing Magazine.

Pleasures on the Avon.

There are a number of motor boats that ply from Easton Point on the Tred Avon River for pleasure, and many jolly parties are daily made up to enjoy the afternoons on the beautiful river. Among those who have fine boats are Captain Gossage whose "Loda G" clips the wave under a ten horse power motor. Mr. Wm. H. Kemp's "Marguerite" has a five horse power motor and is a superb boat. Mr. Harry Patchett has the speed in his model "Effa P" under a seven horse power engine. Nevius and Frampton cut the foam when "Nevfra" takes to the water under her five horse power driver. Wm. B. Shannahan loves to get a crowd in his three horse power "Helen" and he can distance some others at same time. Mr. Wm. Wooters has a dandy little three horse power driver and takes no one's dust in the river. Mr. Willard T. Townsend will pull the throttle on a 7-horse power motor and let his boat loose for any one to follow. Mr. Paul Nickerson has as cute a little craft as is propelled by a small two and one-half horse power motor, and Paul enjoys the sport.

Mr. Fisher Kemp it is said is going to have the boat of the river when he gets his "Gen. Seth" in the water under the pressure of and eight horse power pusher and fifty or more people on the deck Mr. A. H. Matthews nas a twelve horse power and Judge Martin a fine craft of four horse power. It is a pleasue for these boat owners to take their friends and those who have not been on the Avon during the cool of the evening can hardly appreciate the pleasures of such healthful outings.
