EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, Md.

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 11, 1851.

☞ WM. THOMSON & Co., S. E. corner of Baltimore & Calvert Streets, Baltimore, are our authorized Agents for receiving Advertisements and Subscriptions for the "GAZETTE."

☞ V. B. PALMER is authorized to receive advertisements for the "EASTON GAZETTE," in the cities of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

Our paper this week is of little interest to any but politicians, but the general reader, and especially the ladies, shall be remembered in future numbers.

EDWARD SHRIVER, Esq., delegate to the Convention from Frederick county, will accept our thanks for a copy of the Frederick Citizen, Extra, containing Gov. Lowe's Inaugural Address.

WE have received a communication from Mr. Nicholas Orem, in reply to Mr. Covey, but it is crowded out by the Governor's Message. It will appear next week.

IT appears that we were in error in stating that the Mechanical engine ran over Mr. Rathell's boy—it was the Citizen's. We make the correction for the benefit of a very sensitive member of the Mechanical, who fears it "might injure the company."

DR. C. C. COX, will deliver a Lecture on small pox, vaccination, re-vaccination, &c., at the Meth. Episcopal Sunday School Room, on this, Saturday, evening, commencing at 7 o'clock. 12½ cents admission will be charged, and the proceeds given to the Union Dorcas Society, by which it will be distributed to the poor. The subject is one of great interest and should draw a full house.

ATTEMPT TO ROB THE MAIL.—The Post Master at Easton received a note on Tuesday from John L. Stam, Esq., Post Master at Chestertown, stating that an attempt had been made between that office and Georgetown X Roads, to rob the large mail which is made up at Chestertown for the Easton office. He gives no particulars except that the bag was badly cut, and that to all appearance nothing had been taken from it. As far as we can ascertain, nothing due this office is missing. The regular papers and the usual packages of letters reached here untouched. No clue to the perpetrator of the outrage had been discovered.

THE Convention on Tuesday reconsidered the vote rejecting the resolution to employ a Reporter to report the debates of the Convention, and the resolution was adopted—yeas 49, nays 36. The expense of reporting is limited to $1,000. A resolution was also adopted directing the committee on printing to contract for the printing of the debates, at a sum not exceeding four thousand dollars.

GOV. THOMAS' term of office having expired, he retired from the Gubernatorial chair on Monday last, and removed, we understand, immediately to Baltimore city, which he has selected as his future place of residence. The Annapolis Republican thus speaks of him, and we cordially unite in the wish expressed, that prosperity and success may attend him in his new home.

We believe we but express the universal sentiment of our community, when we bear testimony to the favorable opinion which is entertained by all parties of the retiring Governor. His polite and gentlemenly deportment, his affability and warmth of manner, have made him a general favorite, and render his departure from the city a subject of regret. He retires from the Chair of State with the respect of the good men of both parties. We wish him prosperity and success in his new home.

We see it stated that the officers holding commissions from the Governor in Baltimore city, are to present Gov. Thomas with a service of plate costing $750.

EDUCATION MEETING.

A meeting of citizens friendly to the cause of Common School Education in Talbot County, assembled at the Court House in Easton, on Tuesday, January 7th, 1851, when Dr. C. C. Cox was called to the chair, and R. F. Hemsley appointed Secretary.

On motion, a committee of three, consisting of James Dixon, George W. Morling and I. Griswold, were appointed, to report permanent officers for the government and direction of the "Common School Society of Talbot County," previously organized.

The committee reported the following:

For President.

Col. NICHOLAS GOLDSBOROUGH.

Vice President—Dr. C. C. Cox.

Cor. and Rec. Secretary—R. F. HEMSLEY.

Treasurer—EDW. M. DAWSON.

Inspecting Committee.

John Dawson,	George W. Morling,
M. T. Goldsborough,	Thomas Hopkins, Jr.,
William Hayward,	Nicholas Willis,
J. Bozman Kerr,	Thomas R. Hollyday,
John F. Chaplain,	Charles P. Craig.

On motion of John F. Chaplain it was resolved, that the Society extend to the President and Vice President elect, an invitation to address the association at its next meeting.

On motion, the proceedings of the meeting were ordered to be published in both papers of the town. Adjourned to meet on Saturday, 8th February. By order,

R. F. HEMSLEY, Sec'y.

GOV. LOWE'S INAUGURAL.—This somewhat lengthy document we publish in full to-day. We cannot do better in commenting upon it, than to append the just and able criticism of the American, which is as follows:

We cannot say much in commendation of this address, the characteristic aspect of which seems to blend an assumption of high principle with a virtual, indirect negation of all its obligations. We are told that the people of Maryland will continue to uphold the State credit; yet we are also told that men of high personal character and private integrity were found, in every section of the State, who boldly maintained that a debt, contracted without the sanction of the Constitution, and to the great detriment of the people, was not binding upon the public conscience, and should, therefore, be repudiated; and the Governor informs us that for his own part he has ever been disposed to regard "with tender consideration," the momentary indisposition manifested by some to sustain the faith of the State—although wholly disapproving of it himself. The inference may be drawn from the avowed doctrines of the Inaugural, in relation to the supreme sovereignty of a majority, that if the repudiators could have had, as they fully expected to have, the popular vote on their side, the act of repudiation would have been politically justifiable.

The Governor studiously avoids mentioning what party and what Governor had the courage to disregard the "men of high personal character and private integrity," and make and enforce the laws of taxation, and save our State from the disgrace of repudiation. He is silent on this subject, as he was when he canvassed the State previous to his election.

The Inaugural treats at considerable length, and with some metaphysics, continues the American, upon the inherent right of a people to alter or abolish their Constitution, irrespective of any provision which the Constitution itself may contain for its own amendment. It is a favorite idea with the peculiar and transcendant friends of the people to imagine an antagonism between the people and their Constitution, and to ascribe to the former a sort of superior sovereignty, unembodied and abstract. Now it is usually supposed that the Constitution of a State includes the entire political sovereignty of the Commonwealth, and that as there cannot be two sovereignties in one State there can be no rival or paramount authority over the Constitution. But without going into an argument on this subject, it is simply our purpose to refer to the Governor's views to show how little distinction he makes between constitutional obligations and the will of a majority. He contends that from necessity and right the power of government must rest in the will of the majority, of the people, as it would be unreasonable to confer it upon a minority; but, that, for the protection of the minority from the impulsive tyranny of numbers (without throwing them back upon the right of revolution under excessive grievance) it is just and expedient to restrain the arbitrary will of the majority within express constitutional limits; that, in the ultimate analysis, however, the majority must rule, because they have the right and the power to alter the form of government or establish another in its stead.

Here a power is recognized "to restrain the arbitrary will of the majority," while we are told in the same connection that there is no power any where to restrain the will of the majority, which is declared to have the right and the power to alter the form of government at pleasure or establish another in its stead. It is not for us to reconcile the different branches of this argument.

The right of a majority to disregard constitutional obligations is hailed by the Governor as "the key to the treasury of popular rights." The people, by the aid of this weapon, are to be resistless in all future struggles for the extension of their privileges. The question occurs, who are the enemies that "the people" have to struggle against. Is there any portion of the population of Maryland who are not "people?" Does the Governor mean to imply that the people are the natural enemies of the constitutions which they frame, under which they live, and which give to them the form and organism of political existence?

But we turn with pleasure from this picture of demagogueism, to that portion of the Inaugural which speaks of the subject of slavery.—There, correct ideas are beautifully and eloquently expressed, but, though they will be approved by the people of Maryland, they cannot be reconciled with his notions of government as previously expressed.

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW.—On presenting a memorial against the Fugitive Slave law, and for its repeal, on Monday last in the House of Representatives Mr. Julian, of Indiana, desired to have it referred to a committee, with instructions to report a bill in conformity with the wishes of the petitioners; but this was rejected by a vote of 119 to 68—so that this attempt to get up another excitement in the House on the Fugitive Slave Law, has failed and we hope that the free soil members of the House will have the discretion to let the matter rest. If they know anything of public feeling, and sentiment at the South, they must be aware, that to repeal that law would inevitably produce a dissolution of the Union. If they contemplate this result, and seek to produce a civil war, they are in the right road to effect their object, in endeavoring to procure the repeal of the Fugitive Slave Law.
