April Term 1868

Dummetts will a few days after the death of Doctor Dummett John Chatterton had to go to New York and said he did not know how long he would have to remain there and might be necessary to prove the will before his return He thought it better to leave the will with me so it might be proved in his absence if necessary. He handed me what he supposed to be the will wrapped in brown paper. Before we parted I told him it was a deed from Dobson and wife to him, he then handed me the will. this was in 1860 and before a controversy. Doctor Dummett died in the Spring of 1860. I saw it on another occasion afterwards. it was in the possession of Ishmael Day. John Chatterton gave it to Ismael Day who asked for it on account of some survey.

Fourth Interrogatory. The first time I saw John Chatterton was on the place at Dobsons Sale of personal property in September A. D. 1859 John Chatterton bought a number of things such as stock, farming implements and some household furniture. He staid there three several days and left after an absence of sometime say six or eight weeks he came back and staid there as the owner he bought various articles from other places and brought them there. he acted as owner. bought provisions of me and had Blacksmithing done. bought hay of me and paid for all. He gave orders to me for the farm hands and paid me, they lived then together. He also gave orders to the mechanics who built a new house on the property. He paid me for the glass and the nails, the oil and putty used in the construction of the house.

Fifth Interrogatory They were paid by John Chatterton until a difficulty occured between John Chatterton and Robert Chatterton and Josephine wife of Robert, all charges were against John until the difficulty occured, Robert Chatterton and his wife got various things that were incident to the farm and house-keeping which by their direction were charged to John Chatterton. John Chatterton paid for them until after the difficulty, Sixth Interrogatory. They came to live on the place in the fall of 1859 Robert nor Josephine exercised no act of ownership until after the difficulty so far as I know we had but little intercourse between our families Mrs Josephine Chatterton after the fire said to my wife and myself that John had been very kind to them and her children, that he had been more than a father to them. Robert was in business in Baltimore in 1860. In a conversation with Robert whilst he was in business in Baltimore City he said he was anxious to sell me goods to a considerable amount, as he owed John Chatterton for money loaned him to go into business in Baltimore and he wanted to secure him. I paid John for these goods at Roberts solicitation. After the fire they all John, Robert Josephine and the children lived at Stockton and Sericho and while they were rebuilding.

Seventh Interrogatory I do not recollect having heard either Robert or Josephine say the farm was Johns, they acted as if it was Johns in not paying for any of the Bills for the farm or household expenses to me. I do not know as to other places.

Eighth Interrogatory. Not until after Robert had broken up in Baltimore. This was in 1860 or 1861. I cannot fix the date without my books. I am not sure
