FARMER'S COLUMN.

SCIENCE IN AGRICULTURE.

A specimen of soil of good appearance was given to Sir Humphrey Davy, from Lincolnshire, in England, as remarkable for sterility. On analyzing it he found sulphate of iron. He recommended a top dressing of lime; and the sulphate of iron, a noxious substance, was at once changed into an element of fertility. It was the boast of Franklin that he had stripped lightning of its perils and had chained the thunderbolt. Chemistry does more. Poisons are changed by its alchemy into the means of subsistance.

The Hon. Reverdy Johnson purchased in 1849, a small farm, near Baltimore, in the last stage of impoverishment. Such was its reduced condition that the last crop of corn was not more than one peck to the acre. He states that all the vegetable matter growing on the two hundred acres cleared land, including briars, sassafras and other bushes, if carefully collected would have been insufficient for the manure. He applied to Dr. David Stewart of Baltimore, an able chemist, who rode out to the farm and procured specimens of the soil, which he carefully analyzed. He found that it contained an abundance of lime, potash, magnesia, iron and organic matter, duly mixed with alumnia and sand. One element only of the fertile soil was wanting, phosphoric acid; and of this, there was no trace. He recommended an application to the soil of the biphosphate of lime, a preparation of bones as the best mode of supplying the deficient element. The remedy was given at the expense of ten dollars per acre. It was the one thing needful.—Health was restored to the exhausted patient, and the grateful soil yielded last year twenty nine bushels of wheat per acre to the proprietor. Nothing else was applied, indeed nothing else was wanting. Here was a beautiful triumph of science.—There is no doubt about the facts; the experiment came under our observation and attracted the attention of hundreds. It was detailed to the writer by Mr. Johnson himself, and various others worthy of perfect reliance. It has been made known to the country in the American Farmer.

In each of these cases, a mere practical farmer would have groped his way in the dark, ready to be led astray by any ignus fatuus, in his efforts to find some means of improvement. He might have applied lime or stable manure. The first would have been worthless, if not injurious, and the second would have given no results commensurate with the expense. The same is probably true of guano, for though the best specimens contain as much as twenty-two per cent of phosphates, yet the expenditure would have been out of proportion to the result if enough had been applied to give a sufficiency of phosphoric acid.—American Farmer.

COVER YOUR BARN-YARDS.

The question has been asked how far a judicious man would haul, if it were given to him, barn-yard manure under the usual circumstances. What are they? Made only from the offal of corn and wheat, and other grain in open yards, exposed to be drenched and to have the life washed out of it not only with every rain, but with the water falling from the unspouted roofs of the barn and stables.

The too common error of farmers is to value manure by the bulk rather than by the quality. One might as well value a woman or a man in the same way. For some things frequent washing is to be recommended, but not for nature. Says an English writer:

"Who with an eye in his head, and gifted with a particle of the reasoning faculties generally vouchsafed by a kind Providence, can help lamenting the wasteful mismanagement of manure on most farms, and more particularly on those of farmers who all their lives have been brought up to nothing else but agricultural employment, and who follow undeviatingly the practice of their fathers? What was more common than to see what ought to be manure exposed on an eminence to the alternate heats of summer, the blustering winds, the drenching rain and snow of winter—its essence wasting, its fragrance in a puddling horse-pond, or working its devious course to a running stream. Does this not require reform? And what reform more appropriate than by the erection of a roof to protect the manure from the vicissitudes of the weather—sinking tanks to receive the liquid from the stables, cow-houses, and piggeries, at least weekly pumping it on the mass which readily absorbs it—causing no undue fermentation, and helping to consolidate the whole as it daily accumulates by the continual addition of strata, thus converted into fertilizing substances? Such is the common practice at Gilgarran, not long since noticed as the most sterile spot in the country, but now producing crops equal to any in it.

"When I first commenced roofing my barnyards, I had to contend with the jeers of my neighbors, and the deep-rooted prejudices of my own people, who foretold an absolute failure and wasteful expenditure. But what say they now? That the manure, when cut into, has the appearance and consistency of the blackest peat moss, and that the improvements in the very first year paid all the expense; and so has it been as respects my stack-yard, which has for several years been permanently roofed. Great was the discouragement offered me while this operation was in progress; but how stands the case now? It is visited, from far and near, by our most distinguished agriculturalists, and their praise of it is unqualified.—New Jersey Herald.

ANOTHER SCIENTIFIC WONDER!
PEPSIN;
The True Digestive Fluid,
OR GASTRIC JUICE!
A GREAT DYSPEPSIA CURER,
Prepared from RENNET, or the fourth Stomach of the Ox, after directions of BARON LIEBIG, the great Physiological Chemist, by J. S. HOUGHTON, M. D., No. 11, North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
This is a truly wonderful remedy for INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE, LIVER COMPLAINT, CONSTIPATION, and DEBILITY, curing after Nature's own method, by Nature's own agent, the Gastric Juice.
☞ Half a teaspoonful of this Fluid, infused in water, will digest or dissolve, Five Pounds of Roast Beef in about two hours, out of the stomach.
DIGESTION is chiefly performed in the stomach by the aid of a fluid which freely exudes from the inner coat of that organ, when in a state of health, called the Gastric Juice.—This fluid is the Great Solvent of the Food, the Purifying, Preserving, and Stimulating Agent of the stomach and intestines. Without it there will be no digestion,—no conversion of food into blood, and no nutrition of the body; but rather a foul, torpid, painful, and destructive condition of the whole digestive apparatus. A weak, half dead, or injured stomach produces no good Gastric Juice, and hence the disease, distress and debility which ensue.
PEPSIN AND RENNET.
PEPSIN is the chief element, or great Digesting Principle of the Gastric Juice. It is found in great abundance in the solid parts of the human stomach after death, and sometimes causes the stomach to digest itself, or eat itself up. It is also found in the stomach of animals, as the ox, calf, &c. It is the material used by farmers in making cheese, called Rennet, the effect of which has long been the special wonder of the dairy. The curdling of milk is the first process of digestion. Rennet possesses astonishing power. The stomach of a calf will curdle nearly one thousand times its own weight in milk. Baron Liebig states that, "One part of Pepsin dissolved in sixty thousand parts of water, will digest meat and other food." Diseased stomachs produce no good Gastric Juice, Rennet or Pepsin. To show that this want may be perfectly supplied, we quote the following Scientific Evidence:
BARON LIEBIG, in his celebrated work on Animal Chemistry, says: "An Artificial Digestive Fluid analagous to the Gastric Juice, may be readily prepared from the mucous membrane of the stomach of the Calf, in which various articles of food, as meat and eggs, will be softened, changed, and digested, just in the same manner as they would be in the human stomach."
DR. PEREIRA, in his famous treatise on "Food and Diet," published by Fowler & Wells, New York, page 35, states the same great fact, and describes the method of preparation. There are fewer higher authorities than Dr. Pereira.
Dr. COMBE, in his valuable writings on the "Physiology of Digestion," observes that "a diminution of the due quantity of the Gastric Juice is a prominent and all-prevailing cause of Dyspepsia;" and he states that "a distinguished professor of medicine in London, who was severely afflicted with this complaint, finding every thing else to fail, had recourse to the Gastric Juice, obtained from the stomach of living animals, which proved completely successful."
Dr. GRAHAM, author of the famous works on "Vegetable Diet," says: "it is a remarkable fact in physiology, that the stomachs of animals, macerated in water, impart to the fluid the property of dissolving various articles of food, and of effecting a kind of artificial digestion of them in no wise different from the natural digestive process."
Dr. SIMON'S great work, the "Chemistry of Man," (Lea & Blanchard, Philada., 1846, pp. 321–2) says: "The discovery of PEPSIN forms a new era in the chemical history of Digestion. From recent experiments we know that food is dissolved as rapidly in an artificial digestive fluid, prepared from Pepsin, as it is in the natural Gastric Juice itself."
Professor DUNGLISON, of the Jefferson College, Philadelphia, in his great work on Human Physiology, devotes more than fifty pages to an examination of this subject. His experiments with Dr. Beaumont, on the Gastric Juice, obtained from the living human stomach and from animals are well known. "In all cases," he says, "digestion occurred as perfectly in the artificial as in the natural digestions."
AS A DYSPEPSIA CURER,
DR. HOUGHTON'S preparation of PEPSIN has produced the most marvelous effects, curing cases of Debility, Emaciation, Nervous Decline, and Dyspeptic Consumption, supposed to be on the very verge of the grave. It is impossible to give the details of cases in the limits of this advertisement—but authenticated certificates have been given of more than TWO HUNDRED REMARKABLE CURES, in Philadelphia, New York and Boston alone.—These were nearly all desperate cases, and the cures were not only rapid and wonderful, but permanent.
It is a great NERVOUS ANTIDOTE, and particularly useful for tendency to billious disorder, Liver Complaint, Fever and Ague, or badly treated Fever and Ague, and the evil effects of Quinine, Mercury, and other drugs upon the Digestive organs, after a long sickness. Also, for excess in eating, and the too free use of ardent spirits. It almost reconciles Health with Intemperance.
OLD STOMACH COMPLAINTS.
There is no form of OLD STOMACH COMPLAINTS which it does not seem to reach and remove at once. No matter how bad they may be, it GIVES INSTANT RELIEF! A single dose removes all the unpleasant symptoms, and it only needs to be repeated for a short time, to make these good effects permanent.—PURITY OF BLOOD and VIGOR OF BODY follow at once. It is particularly excellent in cases of Nausea, Vomiting, Cramps, Soreness of the pit of the Stomach, distress after eating, low, cold state of the Blood, Heaviness, Lowness of Spirits, Despondency, Emaciation, Weakness, tendency to Insanity, Suicide, &c.
