Dobson, and whose money was paid for it

Answer

I purchased it for myself and with my own means.

Fifth Interrogatory

Did or did not any part of the money which was paid for it belong to Mrs Josephine Chatterton

Answer

Not the first cent

Sixth interrogatory

For whose use and benefit did you hold the houses in Case and 11th streets in Philadelphia which were spoken of by Mrs Josephine Chatterton in her evidence in this case, who purchased them and whose money was paid for them.

Answer

I held them for my own. They were purchased by Robert Chatterton for me, acting as my agent in Philadelphia. My money paid for them.

Seventh interrogatory

Where were you living at the time of their purchase

Answer

In the City of New York.

Eighth Interrogatory

Look at Exhibit B, returned under commission to Mc Allister and Brewster and state all you know about said note, by whom was it paid, and whose money was applied to its payment

Answer

The note was given by Robert Chatterton, when I went to Philadelphia to complete the trade with John Brown, the conveyancer told me not to pay any money, he had not completed the searches, he said it would be time enough then. I told him that I had to leave for New York that afternoon, that I would leave the money and the affair to close up with Robert Chatterton when the searches were all right. I left the money with Robert to pay to Mr Brown, Mr John Brown and to complete the trade with him. He gave this note in the trade I never saw it until I saw it before the commissioners. I authorized him to give the note and complete the trade with John Brown for the 11th street house. The signature is the handwriting of Robert Chatterton. I wrote to Robert Chatterton to go to Mr Williams and see what discount he would make by paying part of it before it was due. He wrote to me that Williams would take part of it and allow a liberal discount. I sent him $400.00 or he came to New York and got the $400.00 and the balance he raised out of the store.

Ninth Interrogatory

To whom did the store and goods belong and to whom did the proceeds of the sale from said store belong. State all you know about it

Answer

They belonged to me. Shortly after my brother Daniel Patillo Chattertons death Robert Chatterton was out of business at different times had solicited me to come to Philadelphia and purchase a store of goods. I declined doing so for a long time. In 56 I think it was in December, no it was in February of 56 he wrote me a letter, stating that Rufsnyder was going out of business and his stock could be bought cheap. I told
