April Term 1868

I dont remember what was the amount that was paid for it, Robert Chatterton came on to New York shortly after Patillos death, said there was a piano maker there in New York he was owing him Robert Chatterton pretty nearly enough to come to one piano He said the fellow was hard up, and by raising money enough to pay for the two besides the one that he could get for his paper the man owed him he could make a very pretty thing of it, but he hadnt the money The pianos he could get for four hundred dollars they were worth Six the two, I let him have the money and he bought the pianos He came on in about two weeks after that and said He had a trade in prospect that he could get over three hundred dollars for one of them and said he could get another for One hundred and fifty dollars that he could get over two hundred and fifty dollars for in Philadelphia, I let him have the money and he bought it, He sent that one or one of the others, I dont know which one up to Mrs Wades his sister in law, I went and got it from there and sent it on to Philadelphia, Two of the pianos I traded with John Brown and the other was Kept in the house

One hundred & twenty eighth Crop interogatory

What became of the one that was in the house

Answer

It was traded for farming implements by Robert Chatterton or rather for orders on hardware stores, and the orders were exchanged round for some farming implements for some milk pans, and I think a portion of the orders was exchanged for a wagon at Simons Leckmans and Company, I think it was, These things
