A Race of Red Men in Western Africa.—The Nouvelles Annales des Voyages for June, contains a translation by Cherbonneau, Professor of Arabic at Constantine, of the journey of a traveller named Fruggurt via Timbuctoo to the Mountains of the Moon. These Mountains, however, according to this account, do not lie in Middle, or rather Eastern Africa, as laid down in our Geographies, but among the Western highlands, which fill the space between the middle course of the Niger and the Atlantic Ocean. The route taken was from Timbuctoo to Dachenne, up the Niger, then for some time upon the Niger and finally by land to Bambara, Sakay, Maika and Sakat. Then follows the ensuing passage: "Beyond the circle of Sakat begins, so to speak, a new world: the people have a red color, of whom a part are heardsmen, possessing innumerable herds of camels and flocks of sheep; the rest are husbandmen. One travels some two months upon the territory, and then comes to a great salt lake called Sebkat Schanaktha. This lake looses itself in the sands of a boundless desert, in which one finds no trace of vegitation. Across this desert the passage of which occupies five weeks, dwell nations of a red color, living in tents made of buffalo skins, and subsisting on dates and camel's milk. Then comes a second waste, which can be crossed in fifteen days: after which occur the first oases, which belong to the mountains of the Moon, and are inhabited by red men." Are these accounts actually based on facts? The journey, as described, is long enough to bring one to the Atlantic.

A Remarkable Foot Race.—In the town of Malden, Mass., lives an elderly man, somewhat addicted to his glass, but who managed, nevertheless, to accumulate about 1,300, of which he owed about $400 to his mother, that he exhibited no disposition to pay. A short time since, he told his wife, a woman of considerable energy, that he would give her his money, and she might pay his debts. She accepted the proposition, and deposited the money in a bank. The brother hearing of this, trusteed the bank and obtained his debt.—The wife then drew the money from the bank and deposited it in the house. The husband hearing of this, and it is supposed repenting of his act in putting his money out of his own possession, managed by a stratagem, a night or two since, to get his wife out of the house, and ransacked it until he found the money. His wife returned just as he was leaving the house, and on ascertaining what he done, started in pursuit along the main road to Charlestown, and followed him for a distance of four miles, when he was arrested by a watchman, and kept in the watch-house for the night.—The wife, who had lost her shoes soon after she started from the house, thus running the long distance in her stocking feet, was put in a chiase and taken back to her home. The husband was also released in the morning and returned to his usual avocation.

Billy Bowlegs in Florida.—The Newark Mercury of Saturday states that a gentleman in that city who has a son in Florida, has received a letter from him, dated Fort Meade, Florida, from which we take the following extract. It would seem that Billy has very little disposition to leave Florida.

Billy Bowlegs, Grand Sachem of the Seminoles in Florida, has returned to Tampa, and taken passage for Fort Myers.—His joy on embarking for Fort Myers knew no bounds. He leaped and yelled, cursed and swore, like a crazy man; and during his caperings he tore a new suit of citizen's clothes into a thousand ribbons.—About this time a soldier at Tampa said, "Now, Billy, give us the war whoop."—Billy stood as if rivited to the spot, his eyes seemed to send forth sparks of fire, and drawing himself up to his full height, he exclaimed in a low, yet passionate voice, "By blood! when you hear the war whoop, your blood will curdle in your vains!"—In reply to a question put to him by an officer at Tampa, "So you are going to leave Florida, are you?" he answered with a knowing laugh, "Oh, yes, I told them so in Washington; but d—d if I do it though." If he don't go, and that very soon, too, Uncle Sam will find a way to make them leave, either by steamboat or 'by blood.'—They can take their choice.

A Castor Oil Epidemic. On a late trip of one of our New Orleans steamers, she was crowded with German emigrants. As might be expected, their appetite for fruit and vegetables, after a long sea voyage, was most voracious. At Selma, a short distance below the city, the boat received some 20 or 30 sacks of castor beans consigned to Mr. Blow. The appearance of the bean, 'good to the eye,' excited the cravings of the emigrants. Finally, curiosity and appetite triumphed; a bag was surreptitiously opened, a large pan full extracted, and a huge luncheon of soup prepared. In a short time the passengers in the cabin and the officers of the boat, were startled by the report that the cholera, in its worst form, had broken out on deck. On going below, they found that the castor oil was doing its work. The bag lay exposed and a large pot full of this rare delicacy steaming hot on the table. The thing was soon solved, and the captain had to go into quarantine, because, as he said the Dutch didn't know beans.—St. Louis Repub.

Suspicion of Murder.—The wife, daughter, and son-in-law of a man named John McNally, (the owner of property in Philadelphia,) have been arrested in Fairfax county, of Va., on the charge of murdering him. His body, which had been buried at Alexandria, was disinterred, and found to have received thirteen musket shots in the breast.

Kensas Territory.—A letter of ex-Senator Benton, from Washington, published in the St. Louis papers, brings prominently forward the idea of making a new territory on the Kensas River, extending south to the Arkansas, and, we presume, north to the Platte, and west to the Rocky Mountains.

ARRIVAL OF THE PACIFIC.
4 DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

New York, Nov. 1.

The steamer Pacific has arrived, bringing 120 passengers and Liverpool dates of October 20.

England.—Parliament will meet November the 4th, soon after which it is reported that the Liberals will try the strength of the government upon the question of Free Trade.

The funeral of Lord Wellington will take place about the 17th of November.

Hon. Jos. R. Ingersoll presented his credentials as minister on the 16th, and was introduced by Lord Malmesbury.

Lord Loudesboro had accepted the challenge to race with the yacht America in September next, for £1000

The clergy are endeavoring to revive the convocation of the English Church.

The Irish Catholic papers exult over the prospect of the French Empire.

France.—Napoleon entered Paris on the 16th inst. in imperial state. The city was decorated with triumphal arches upon which was inscribed "to the Emperor Napoleon the Third." The Senate has been summoned to assemble on the 4th of November to deliberate concerning the Empire.

It is believed that they will declare the Empire.

Ab Del Kader had been liberated and will be conveyed to Broussa in Turkey, he having sworn upon the Koran not to disturb Algeria.

The French army will shortly be reduced.

The government has advertised for 5,000,000 kilogrammes of Kentucky, Maryland and Virginia Leaf Tobacco.

Mobile, Oct. 31.

Arrival of the Black Warrior.—Later from Havana.—The steamer Black Warrior has arrived, bringing later Havana advices. The steamer Powhatan arrived at Havana on the 24th, having on board Judge Conklin, U. S. Minister to Mexico. On his way to the house of the American Consul, the Judge was grossly insulted by the rabble of the city. Judge Conklin immediately obtained an interview with the Captain General, the result of which was that that officer expressed a willingness for the Crescent City to land her mails and passengers in future but he would not allow purser Smith to land. He also agreed to apologise for his past conduct as too hasty, and it was thought the whole difficulty would be amicably adjusted. The Powhatan sailed for Vera Cruz on the 28th, with Judge Conklin on board.

Mr. Everett as Secretary of State—Negotiations on the Fisheries—Permanent Memorial of Mr. Webster, &c.—The appointment of Mr. Everett as Secretary of State is extremely gratifying to this community, and especially to the friends of Mr. Webster,—for he is the man whom of all others Mr. Webster would have preferred for the post, at this juncture, and he will, no doubt, be able to carry out Mr. Webster's views, in regard to all the pending questions relative to our foreign affairs.

It is well understood that Mr. Webster intended to enter, early in the present month, upon negotiations with the British Minister concerning the fisheries and commercial intercourse with the British American provinces, and other affairs. Mr. Everett will, of course, lose no time in attending to these matters.

It is regretted that Mr. Everett will be disabled by public duties from accepting the task of delivering the eulogy on Mr Webster at the great celebration of his obsequies, now in preparation. The duty will probably be devolved on Mr. Choate.

The proposition to erect in Boston a permanent memorial of Mr. Webster will not be allowed to end in talk, as has been the case in regard to propositions of the same nature as to other eminent men. As soon as the committee to which the subject was referred shall report a plan, a site, &c., the necessary funds will be raised, and the work commenced. A collossal statue in bronze appears to meet the wishes of the public. Several sites which have been associated with the revolutionary annals have been indicated for the statue.—It should stand facing the West, thus overlooking the whole country which he loved, and bidding it, perpetually, good cheer.

There is no doubt that Mr. Webster's wishes, as to the preservation of his Franklin and Marshfield estates in his family, will be carried out. The incumbrances on them were, it is said, entirely removed last July.

Caving of an Ore Mine.—Three Men Killed.—The Allentown (Pa) Democrat has the following account of an incident, by the caving of an ore mine, last week, at that place:

A number of men have been for some time employed in digging at what is known as "Guth's Minehole," on the lands of Balliet & Knoch, in South Whitehall township. On Saturday morning last, four men were working in the mine, digging and taking out iron ore by means of windlasses. A large body of earth gave way at the side of the mine and buried three men beneath its huge mass to a depth estimated at 30 or 40 feet. Their names are Peter Wiesser, Peter Bell and Barney McElliary. The fourth man escaped. Fifty or sixty men have been engaged since the time of the accident in removing it, and up to the present writing (Monday noon) no traces of them have been found.

A Chinese Newspaper.—In Pekin, a newspaper of extraordinary size is published weekly on silk. It is stated to have been started more than a thousand years ago—somewhat earlier than the one under the patronage of the "Good Queen Bess." An anecdote is related to the effect that, in 1827, a public officer caused some false intelligence to be inserted in this newspaper, for which he was put to death. Several numbers of the paper are preserved in the Royal Library at Paris. They are each ten and a quarter yards long.

FUNERAL SOLEMNITIES AT MARSHFIELD—OPENING OF THE WEBSTER TOMB.

A despatch by Telegraph states that one of the most interesting events of Thursday was the opening of Mr. Webster's tomb to prepare it for its charge. It was opened in the presence of the Webster family. It was the first time that its solemn silence has been disturbed since its erection. Among those present on the solemn occasion were—G. W. Paige, Jno. Jay, George T. Curtis, Abbot Leroy and family of New York, and some half dozen other immediate relatives and friends of the family.

The bodies of the deceased members of Mr. Webster's family were exhumed on Friday and were taken to St. Paul's church, to be placed in the family tomb. Mr. Webster's remains will lie in the centre slab. Over the tomb is inscribed in simple letters DANIEL WEBSTER.

Mr. Webster's features still retain their natural noble expression.

Boston, Oct 29—10 P. M.

The last sad rites over the body of Mr. Webster, at Marshfield, to-day, were solemn and imposing. The vast multitude stood uncovered, and apparently joined sincerely in the funeral ceremonies.

At nine o'clock the body had been removed from the library to the lawn in front of the mansion, and placed on a bier beneath one of the large poplar trees. From this hour up to half-past one, the thousands present came around and took a last view. The countenance was serene and life-like. Two garlands of oak leaves and acorns, and two bequets of flowers were placed on the coffin. Many shed tears, and grieved for the loss, as of a departed father or dear friend.

Rev. Mr. Alden, the Parish orthodox clergyman, conducted the services. He commenced by reading an appropriate extract from the Bible, after which he pronounced with great feeling an impressive address.

The solemnities closed at the mansion at half-past one, when the funeral cortege proceeded to the tomb, about half a mile distant.

There were no ladies in the procession, and no carriages; but so great was the length, that scarcely two thirds had left the house when the body reached the tomb Here the procession passed around the coffin, the lid of which was open; and at precisely half-past two o'clock the tomb closed on the mortal remains of Daniel Webster. The crowd of mourners then slowly departed.

Secretary Conrad was the only member of the Cabinet present.

The Rev. Mr. Alden closed the services at the mansion by an eloquent prayer; and at the tomb he also briefly and appropriately addressed the Throne of Divine Grace.

Mr. Webster's Trip from Baltimore to Washington.—Mr Webster, before railroads were built, was forced one night to make a journey, by private conveyance, from Baltimore to Washington. The man who drove the wagon was such an ill-looking fellow, and told so many stories of robberies and murders, that before they had gone far Mr. Webster was almost frightened out of his wits. At last the wagon stopped in the midst of a dense wood, when the man, turning suddenly round to his passenger, exclaimed fiercely, "Now, sir, tell me who you are." Mr. Webster replied in a faltering voice, and ready to spring from the vehicle, "I am Daniel Webster, member of Congress from Massachusetts!" "What," rejoined the driver, grasping him warmly by the hand, "are you Webster. Thank God! thank God! You are such a deuced ugly chap that I took you for some cut-throat or highwayman." This is the substance of the story, but the precise words used by Mr. Webster himself, in repeating it, we cannot recall.

A New Title to the Lobos Islands.—The New York Courier says that the persons concerned in the guano expedition from that city, have despatched an agent to Madrid, to negotiate through the American Minister there, with the court of Spain, for the lease or purchase of the Lobos Islands. This is said to have been done by the advice of eminent counsel, who are of opinion that if any nation has claim to those Islands, it is the Spanish, who discovered and named them, and through whom alone Peru claims title to them.

A Boston Millienarie.—The Boston Mail states that the yearly income of a certain rich citizen of that towa would buy twelve hundred farms. His income—six per cent on his entire wealth—would amount daily, to more than the wages of two hundred hard working men. His income would buy a bottle of Schneider or a pair of boots every three minutes. Every breath the old man takes is worth another ninepence.—His enormous capital commands the toil of one thousand laborers and mechanics yearly to pay the interest.

Canada and the United States.—In the Canadian Parliament Mr. Mackenzie has taken occasion again to express his bitterness towards the United States. On a debate on the Reciprocity question, he explained, in the fullness of his wisdom, that the reason why the Americans refuse reciprocity to Canada, was their desire for annexation. The report says that he went on to declare his great dislike to the Americans—their selfishness—their pretensions, and their insincerity."

Col. Isaac Wayne, only son of Major General Anthony Wayne, of the Revolutionary War, died on Monday last at his residence in Chester county, Pa, in the 83d year of his age. Col. Wayne was an excellent citizen and well worthy of the distinguished name he bore.

Reception of the Reiurns by Gen. Scott.—Gen. Scott was waited upon by a few friends, last night, and supped with them. Though much dispirited at the result, he bore it with the fortitude of a true soldier.

EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, Md.

SATURDAY MORNING, NOV. 6, 1852.

☞ WM. THOMSON S. E. corner of Baltimore & Calvert Streets, Baltimore, is our authorized Agent for receiving Advertisements and Subscriptions for the "Gazette"

☞ V. B. PALMER is authorized to receive advertisements for the "Easton Gazette," in the cities of New York, and Philadelphia.

The Hon. Jas. A. Pearce, of the U. S. Senate, will accept our thanks for valuable public documents.

The sum of $34,52 was contributed in this county on Tuesday last, to aid the erection of the Washington National Monument, as follows: In Easton, $20,68; in St. Michaels, $7,30; in Trappe, $6,54. In Chapel and Bay Hundred no boxes for the contribution were provided, and in St. Michaels it was not attented to until some hours after the polls were opened.

The Philadelphia Infant Drummer, George Cadwallader Sanders, who is less than 4 years of age, and plays over 100 tunes with perfect accuracy, will exhibit at Eatson, during the Fair. He is said to be a remarkable child and one of the most wonderful prodigies in the world. He will be found at Washington Hall at night, and at the Fair during the day. Admission 12½ cents.

The advertisement for the Talbot County Cattle Show and Agricultural Fair, which we published last week, will again be found on the first page of to-day's paper. We hope every farmer in the county will attend it and bring with him any animal or article he may have worthy of exhibition. These fairs are highly beneficial to the agriculturalists of Talbot, and should be liberally encouraged. They aid in giving to Talbot the reputation of being the best agricultural county in the State, and by thus meeting together every farmer must learn something which will be of benefit to him hereafter. We sincerely hope this may be the largest and best fair yet held in the County.

Among the other attractions, we learn that the largest Ourang Outang ever in the United States, will be exhibited near the grounds, during the Fair He is a curiosity worth seeing.

Talbot County.—We publish below the official returns of the election on Tuesday last, in this county. It will be seen that we have reduced the Locofoco majority of 1850 and 1851. The Whigs of Talbot have done their duty nobly, which can be said of but few counties in this State, or any other. The Whigs of Talbot, have under the circumstances, done remarkably well.

The Maryland State Agricultural Fair closed its fifth annual exhibition on Friday last. Owing to the decease of Prof. Norton, the gentleman originally selected, the address was delivered by B. F. Johnson, Esq., of New York. The following premiums were awarded to citizens of this county:

To J. N. Goldsborough for second best short horned cow, "Belle Chester," $15; for best bull between 1 and 2 years old, "Puritana," $15; for best cow 3 years and upwards, "Verbena," $15; third best pen of Costwold sheep $4; second best pen Cotswold ewe lambs, $4; for second best brood mare, "Susan," $10.

To Freeborn Harrison, for the second best thoroughbred stallion, "Young Sam," $15.

To Thomas Hughlett, for the best Jack, $15.

To Thomas Tenant, for third best Ham, $4.

The following gentlemen were elected officers of the society for the ensuing year:

President—Charles B. Calvert.

Vice Presidents—John Glenn, Baltimore city; H. G. S. Key, of St. Mary's county; John G. Chapman, Charles co; Clement Hill, Prince George's co; Daniel Kent, Calvert co; Thomas S. Iglehart, Anne Arundel co; Charles Carroll, Howard co; A. Bowie Davis, Montgomery co; Col. John McPherson, Frederick co; Wm. Dodge, Washington co; Dr. S. P. Bradley, D. Columbia; P. C. Holcombe, Delaware; J. W. Ware, Virginia; Aaron Clements, Pennsylvania; Thomas R. Joynes Jr., Eastern Shore of Virginia.

Recording Secretary—Samuel Sands, Baltimore city.

Treasurer—Wm. P. Lightner, of Baltimore city.

Curators—James N. Goldsborough, of Talbot co; W. W. W. Bowie, of Prince George's co; N. B. Worthington, of Anne Arundel co; J. Carroll Walsh, of Harford co; James Carroll, Jr., of Baltimore co; and Ezra Whitman, of Baltimore city.

We publish below the returns from Maryland as far as received. It will be seen that the State gives a very heavy majority for Pierce, a result which, we confess, we did not anticipate until last week. We felt confident that Talbot would do as well as usual, and judged of the other counties of the State by her. Such an unprecedented majority in Baltimore city we were not prepared to expect—it far exceeds the expectation of the friends of Mr. Pierce themselves.

THE RESULT.

We publish below a recapitulation of the vote for President and Vice President of the United States, on Tuesday last. There is no mistake about it, we are the worst beat party that ever went into an election with any hope of success. How such an overwhelming triumph was accomplished we are unable to say, but it is in a great measure owing to a coalition on Mr. Pierce of the Democracy, freesoilers, secessionists, Native Americans, Land Reformers, and all the "odds and ends" of party, to defeat Gen. Scott. Amid the "wreck of matter and crash of worlds," Vermont, Massachusetts and Tennessee alone stood by him who has so faithfully fought the battles of his country. We think now, as we have always thought, that Gen. Scott is more capable in every respect to administer the affairs of the government, and more sound upon the question of slavery, than his successful competitor. It is useless to speculate upon the probable effects of Mr. Pierce's election, but we very much fear the result. When we shall see who are his advisers, we shall be able to foresee the course of his administration. We trust he may not fall into the hands of either of the dangerous factions of the Democratic party, but that he may pursue a conservative course.

The returns received indicate that the electoral votes of the subjoined States have been thrown as follows:

	Pierce.	Scott.
Maine	8
New Hampshire	5
Vermont		5
Massachusetts		13
Rhode Island	4
Connecticut	6
New York	35
New Jersey	7
Pennsylvania	27
Delaware	3
Maryland	8
Virginia	15
North Carolina	10
South Carolina	8
Alabama	9
Mississippi	7
Louisiana	6
Texas	4
Arkansas	4
Missouri	9
Tennessee		12
Kentucky	12
Ohio	23
Illinois	11
Indiana	13
Michigan	6
Total	240	30

It is not altogether certain that Kentucky has voted for Pierce, or that Tennessee has gone for Scott, though all the information we have at present justifies us in so designating them. We have no returns from Georgia, Florida, Texas, Arkansas or California, but we presume they have all gone for Pierce. The whigs have made a slight gain in North Carolina, and Maine, but hardly sufficient to carry those State.

Secretary of State.—The Washington papers of yesterday announce that the President has appointed the Hon. Edward Everett, of Massachusetts, Secretary of State, to succeed the Hon. Daniel Webster, lately deceased; and that Mr. Everett has signified his acceptance of the office. The action of the National Executive, in this matter, will command universal and hearty acceptance. In speaking of Mr. Everett's appointment, the Washington Republic thus expresses itself:

This is in every respect a most creditable appointment, and one which we doubt not will meet with the approbation of the whole country. Mr Everett has successively been a Representative in Congress; Governor of Massachusetts, and Minister to England; in each of which spheres of duty he has discharged his functions with unsurpassed ability, and with a purity and patriotism beyond reproach. He has had the enviable honor of being recommended by Daniel Webster for the position next in rank and assimilation of duty to that which he is now called to fill, and of having been endorsed for that position by Henry Clay. His literary and academical career, as linked with the North American Review and with the Presidency of the Cambridge University, has also acquired him an extensive and enduring reputation for scholarship of the first order. The country is indeed truly fortunate, in view of the delicate state of its foreign relations and the void left in the Department of State by the death of Mr. Webster, to have obtained a man who has not only an American, but an European reputation as a diplomatist.

Highway Robberies.—Our city is infested by a most desperate set of ruffians, who seem to have taken advantage of the excitement attending the collection here of such a large number of strangers, to attend the Fair, Cattle Show, &c., to give vent to their lawless propensities of rowdyism and robbery. Last evening no less than three cases of daring highway robberies were perpetrated of which the particulars reached us. About seven o'clock a young man named Joseph Escaville was seized and thrown to the ground by five or six men on Pratt street near the bridge, and whilst one of them placed his hand over his mouth to prevent his calling for assistance, the others rifled his pocket of a valuable gold watch. At about the same hour a German was knocked down on Centre Market Space near the Fish market, and had a gold watch and $15 taken from him. About half-past seven o'clock a gentleman was knocked down on Exeter street and robbed of his watch. On recovering his feet he fired his revolver at the crowd as they ran and thinks that he hit one of them. —Clipper of Saturday.

Important Slave Case Decision.—The well known case of Oliver and others against Daniel Cauffman, Stephen Wheatly, and Philip Brechtel, charged with harboring and assisting thirteen fugitive slaves to escape from their owners in Maryland, was decided in the U. S. Circuit court at Philadelphia, on Saturday, by the jury rendering a verdict for the plaintiffs in the sum of $2,800 damages, against Cuffman, and not guilty as to the other two defendants. The trial commenced on the 19th of last month, and the jury were locked up from Thursday morning until Saturday evening.

Fall Pruning.—An agricultural paper informs its readers that Fall pruning is decidedly the best, as experience has amply proven. The limbs will heal over more readily. If your orchard is old, and trees "chid bound," plough up and manure liberally—scrape and soapsud your trees, and observe the difference in the size and quality of your fruit next season. Although unable to endorse the advice from practical knowledge, yet we have no doubt it may afford some beneficial hints to a portion of our readers.
