Mr Walter went up stairs to bring the money down, and I told his wife that he had better buy the other house also that I owned adjoining the other on Caroline Street. Mrs Walter replied that she would like that other house to be bought, but that would not able to do it, that they had bought the business from Mr Blumhoff for 600 or 700 dollars, (but I do not recollect the precise sum) and that their money was all gone, and that Blumhoff had started business next door to them, and was ruining them, and they had not got a cent back. Mr Walter went up stairs and fetched the money down, he said nothing.
