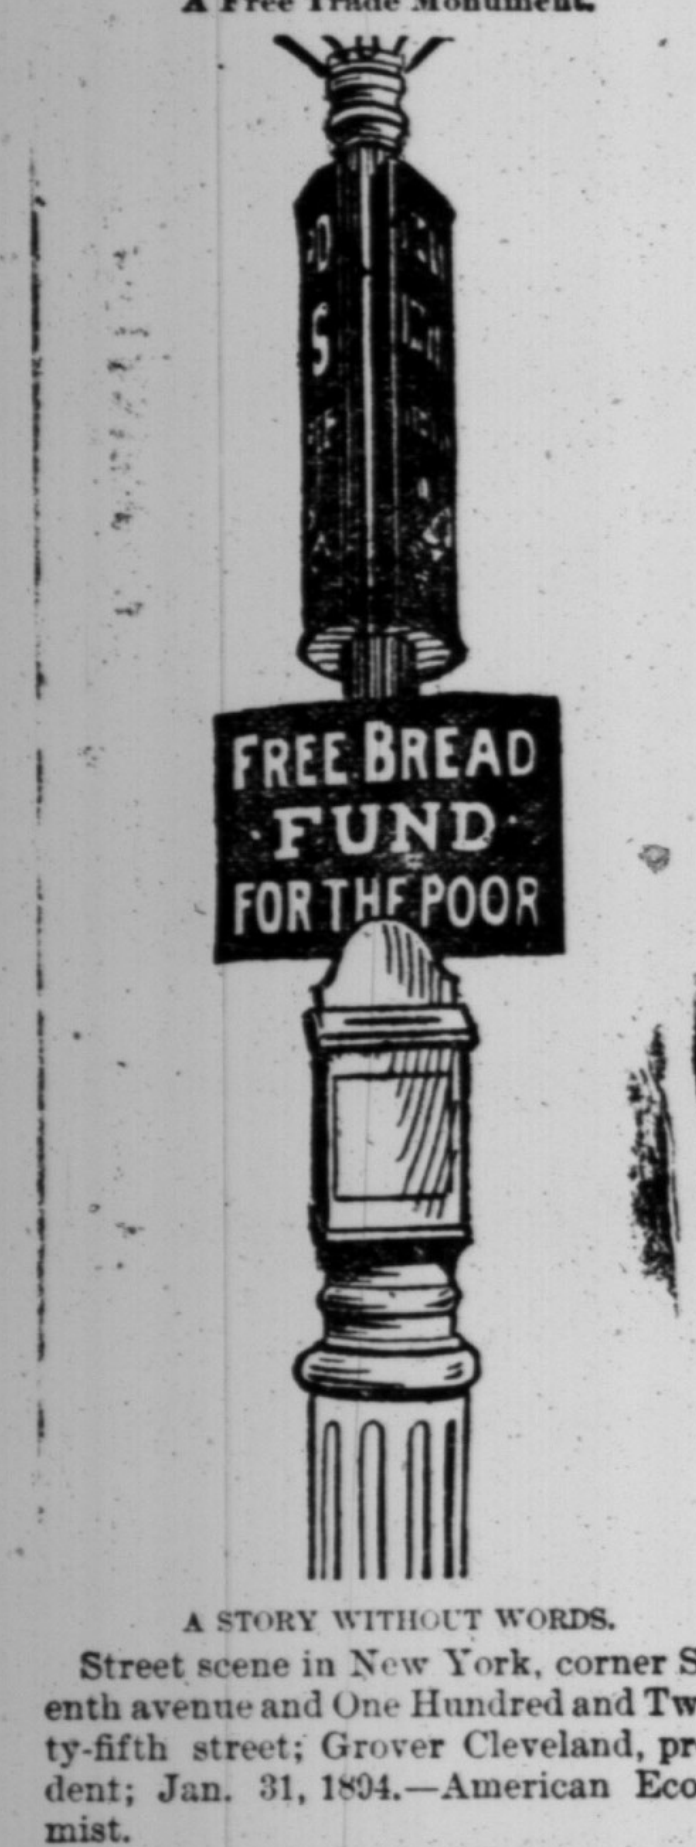
All good, law abiding citizens deprecate Anarchy in its worst form, that principle that is often manifest in society which takes a blood thirsty tendency and puts law and order at defiance. In the heat of passion men are prone to say and do things which they would censure in others during calmer moments. It is well and good for citizens to help the authorities to search for escaped villains who have committed or attempted outrages upon the good morals and decency of the community, but it is not in good taste for them to go prepared with full intention of exacting summary vengeance on the party if caught. To chase him like hounds after a hare with full intention of slaying him, is a spirit of anarchy which is on a par with any other felony. It is fortunate that the escaped Lazarus fell into the hands of the officers of the law first, or it is not likely that he would have been permitted to have had a hearing. The law is sometimes tardy and ineffective, and yet it is seldom that a case of felonious assault does not have the full extent of legal punishment. Lazarus did not accomplish his purpose, fortunate for him, and fortunate for the victim of his assault. It is equally fortunate that his would-be slayers did not accomplish their purpose. It is no excuse for intelligent and worthy citizens to disregard law, any more than it is for the ignorant and despised ex-convict.

It is an easy thing to criticise. When one can do nothing else and make no impression on persons in direct line of argument, if he falls into the way of criticising and unfavorably commenting on the doings of others, he has struck a channel that takes no tact nor ability to follow and one which always makes impressions on his listeners. In other words, it is easy to be a pessimist.

A gentleman of rare business ability and worth to the community remarked this week that our community was one which made it hard for the expenditure of money in enterprises by those who had it to spare. That many were always finding fault and circulating evil reports to thwart the projects of the more enterprising. They seemed to have nothing to do but to look on and proclaim to the world their wonderful discoveries. The world was, as it always is, too quick to jump at a bad thing without investigation and repeat it without detracting a particle from the intensity of the original. And so it went. In nearly every case, if those who had faults to find would go to the proper ones and make diligent inquiries about the status of the situation, their suspicions would vanish as mist. This would be notably the case in the matter of the management and construction of the Easton High School. If proper and earnest investigation were made, there would be then no room for the adverse critic, but the greatest opportunity for laudable comment.

No community would amount to anything, nor any town arrive to the dignity of a name without the expenditure of capital furnished by those who had it to spare, and it is not commendable to be waging a continuous war on all efforts to benefit the town, which efforts invite others to come and dwell in it, helping to build up a community of strength financially, intellectually and permanently.

A Free Trade Monument.



A STORY WITHOUT WORDS.

Street scene in New York, corner Seventh avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street; Grover Cleveland, president; Jan. 31, 1894.—American Economist.

An International Hymn.

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing!
Land where the wheels are tied,
Land where industries died,
And to the English side
Took rapid wing.

My native country, thee,
Land to which paupers flee,
Thy name I love!
I love thy Cleveland frills,
Thy no trade tariff bills,
The Greshams, Smiths and Mills,
Born from above.

Let music swell the breeze!
Democrats, to your knees
And swell the song!
Let those who brought this fate
Their medicine take straight
And three years longer wait
To right the wrong.

Our father, Grover C.,
Mogul of misery,
To thee we sing!
Bear with us if you can,
But if not, like a man,
Say you don't care a damn
For anything.

SOUTH AND NORTH.

A BRAVE SOUTHERNER ANSWERS ABE HEWITT.

Judge Lee Lectures the North on Fraud Brains—They Are Not Clever Enough to Take Advantage of Favorable Situations. Not So Unscrupulous as the Southrons.

"Now that Abe Hewitt has raised this question about southern politicians having less brains than the Yankees," said Judge Lee of Georgia, "I want to tell the truth about this thing with no Eli Perkins imagination. The fact is, we southerners have always had brains enough to control this government. Think of it—we cotton states actually make a tariff for New England. We control congress. We are the nation today, and these mudsill Yankees are sitting down in the hall."

"How do you get so many congressmen?" asked Bourke Cockran.

"Why, Abe Hewitt's ignorant Yankees gave them to us. The Yankees voted themselves out, and we voted ourselves in. Why, do you know that little brainy South Carolina, with 462,000 people, has seven congressmen, while Massachusetts, with 2,215,000 people, has only 12?"

"And Mississippi?"

"She's got 544,000 people and seven congressmen, while Pennsylvania, with 5,148,000 people, has only 28. In one district in Georgia 30,000 southern people, or 2,860 white voters, make a congressman, while it always takes 171,000 Yankees, or 35,000 voters, to make a congressman. But you've got representation according to your brains—'small brains, small representation.'"

"But do the negroes vote?" asked a northern congressman.

"Niggers vote! I should say not, and they never will. Your Yankee idiots made them citizens—made them voters—but do you think we brainy southerners will ever count their votes? I should say not. They vote in Kentucky, Tennessee and the border states, but they will never vote in South Carolina, Mississippi or Louisiana, where they are in the majority. It wouldn't do."

"Then the 20 congressmen representing Louisiana, South Carolina and Mississippi are fraudulent?"

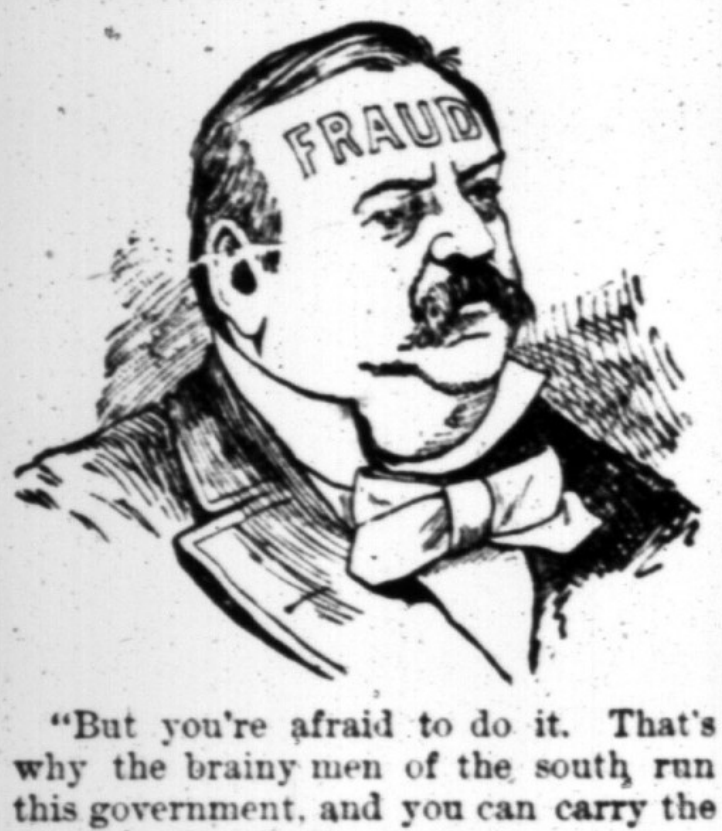
"No, sah, it's southern brains. We know how to manage."

"How many votes did Cleveland get in South Carolina?"

"Why, he got 65,000, and 85,000 in Mississippi, and 85,000 in Louisiana, but they made him president, and those ignorant northern Yankees let us do it. Why, you Yankee fools put McKane in Sing Sing for disfranchising a few citizens in Brooklyn and make a great row because Bob Ross was shot at the polls in Troy, while we brainy southern men count out 858,000 niggers in Georgia, obliterate 689,000 in South Carolina and annihilate 744,000 black Yankees in Mississippi. We actually whip you Yankees in and make you help us do it! Brains! I reckon we have got brains!"

"What would you old rebs do if we Yankees should elect a president fraudulently in three northern states as you did Cleveland in the south?"

"What! You disfranchise a Democrat! You Yankees haven't nerve enough to do it. You haven't brains enough to stand by your own disfranchised Republicans in the south. If you should put in a president fraudulently, we'd paint FRAUD on his brow, as Dana painted it on Hayes', who was really the last president honestly elected in the nigger states. But you Yankees are afraid to do it. We old rebs would have some respect for you if you had nerve enough to write fraud on Cleveland like this:



"But you're afraid to do it. That's why the brainy men of the south run this government, and you can carry the news to old Abe Hewitt."

An "Unprotected" Industry.

As the people employed in this country at the various branches of the building trade are assured that, as there is no duty on finished houses any more than there is a duty on paved streets, their industry is one that the free traders claim to be "unprotected," and neither their wages nor employment are influenced by our protective tariffs, it may be of interest to them, now that their employment in building new factories has ceased under the threat of free trade, to quote from a summary of the general report on the census of England and Wales made by The Engineer of London. This paper says of the building trades:

"The number of persons thus employed shows an increase for the 10 years of only 2.1 per cent, whereas in the previous decade the rise was 21 per cent. The absolute number in 1891 was 680,886. The extremely small increase of a little over 14,000 in the building trades was accompanied by an actual decline in respect to the industries which supply the building materials. The falling off was only 1.5 per cent, but that there should be any decrease at all is a matter to be regretted, an increase being the proper result."

There is probably no trade in this country, unless we call farming a trade, that receives greater benefits from the building of new factories, factory towns and the various operations connected with the inauguration and maintenance of the industries developed in this country by protection than the building trade.—American Economist.

Rapid Writing.

Three reporters who had met were boasting of their shorthand writing. "Whenever I am reporting a meeting on a warm evening, all the people try to get near to my table." "Why do they?" asked the others. "Because my hand goes so fast that it creates a current of air like a fan." "A mere nothing," said No. 2. "I always have to report on wet paper, or else the current of air caused by the moving of my hand would blow it away. Besides, the paper has to be wetted every few minutes, because the friction caused by the rapid movement of my arm dries it in no time." "Pooh," remarked the third, "I once saw a flash of lightning begin to cross my notebook from the left hand side just as I commenced a line, and my pen got to the other side before it."—Pitman's Shorthand Weekly.

Canadian Metaphor.

A member of the Ontario legislature recently advised the government "to insert the pruning knife, no matter whose ox is gored." And another Canadian statesman the other day said that the members of the opposition were a row of extinct volcanoes, from whose mouths not a ray of light came.—New York Tribune.
