To Subscribers.

Subscribers are respectfully requested to notice their address slips and date. It shows the time to which payment has been made.

The $1.00 rates are only for those who pay strictly 12 months in advance.

For less than a full year the rates are 10 cents per month in advance.

Bills are invariably rendered for $1.50. Pay in advance and no bills will be sent.

Please arrange your subscription to end with one of the following months: March, June, September or December. It is more convenient.

All persons who owe us money previous to January first 1894, are requested to make immediate settlement. Money not paid by July first 1894, will be placed in the hands of an officer to collect. This applies to all accounts due the GAZETTE.

STEVENSON Archer has been pardoned and is out of prison.

CONGRESSMAN Bratton died at his home in Princess Anne on Thursday.

THE death of Hon. Robert F. Bratton will leave a vacancy to be filled in this Congressional District. There are many already aspiring, but in all probability, Col. Lloyd of Talbot will be the man. Mr. Cleveland was very loth not to give him a position under the Government when he made his recent appointments, and the strong backing the Col. received then will operate in his favor to a considerable extent now.

IN a short time there will be organized in this town a Conclave of Heptosophs with a membership of about seventy-five. Mr. Primrose is working faithfully and hard and seldom fails to ring in a man whom he attacks. The objects of the order are mutual with lowest cost for highest protection, and those who have given the subject the deepest study assert, with the experience of many years of actual test, that the Heptosophs are in better condition to take care of their membership today than ever before, and that they improve with age, rather than deteriorate as so many assessment companies do.

LAST week in our report of the coming Christian Endeavor Convention, the idea held out by the informant was not quite understood by some of the visiting members. One of the committee men in his conversation with the reporter said it was unfortunate that they did not know approximately how many to prepare homes for, and that there ought to be some stated number of delegates fixed by the convention to enable committees in the future to make arrangements more understandingly. It appears that it was understood by some visiting delegates that Easton was not prepared to entertain her distinguished guest and that the committee wanted the number restricted. That was far from being the sentiment of the committe or any member of it, as they had more homes than they found guests for, and the ability to receive and entertain is just as great as their welcome was heartfelt.

IN the issue of the GAZETTE of May 27th, 1893, nearly one year ago, the following item appeared in the local column:

The Moreland Block, when completed, will present a very attractive and imposing appearance. The lower floor will be changed into stores of large capacity and beautiful glass fronts, while the upper floors will be used as offices and lodging rooms. An effort will be made to have the Easton postoffice on the first floor in the room at the corner of Washington and Federal streets. This will place the office in a more central position and will give the patrons two entrances and more inside room. The present office is certainly cramped and should be a great deal larger.—The Moreland Improvement Company will by securing the postoffice for their building, not only be benefiting themselves but also the people of Easton.

Mr. M. M. Higgins became highly incensed that this article should have been published in the paper, as he had reasons to be, because he construed it to reflect the sentiment of the paper.

As a matter of fact the editor was in Chicago the week of the publication referred to. The article was not classified among the editorials nor intended by the reporter to savor of sentiment belonging to the GAZETTE. He reported the item of news and added his idea of the sentiment of the town. We try to exercise prudent care over our columns and often omit articles submitted by correspondents and reporters, but being absent we had no opportunity to be consulted in this case. The GAZETTE is no exception to the rule of newspapers, that for the sentiment of the paper read the editorial columns. The other columns are for the public reports of public matters, and such articles allowed admittance into the paper.

FAITH IN CONGRESS.

THE Easton Star is still hovering around the polls in its dream of the election of November, 1892, and shouting pæans of the "self-reliant and triumphant Democracy." Our contemporary does not seem to have discovered that, in the popular elections which have come off since that period, the death-knell of the Democratic party has been sounded and is echoing and re-echoing throughout the length and breadth of the land. With splendid audacity it says, "We have faith that Congress will do what is right, and that while its inaction has been disastrous to many business interests in the country, yet it was unavoidable." The Star does not appear to have realized that the Democracy has already been "installed," and has been in the absolute possession of the National Government since March 4th, 1893; and held an extraordinary session of Congress last year, and has been in regular session since the first Monday of December last; and yet Congress seems to be as far from the settlement of the Wilson tariff bill upon the basis of the Chicago platform as when it first begun.

On what the Star rests its faith that Congress will do what is right from the standpoint of Clevelandism, we are unable to discern. Mr. Cleveland, if he is anything, is a British Free-Trader of the Cobden School, while the Senate has plainly indicated that it is unwilling to swallow even the moderate dose of "tariff reform" that was forwarded from the House of Representatives to that body by the "cuckoos;" and the grave senators have formulated a bill that so radically modifies the provisions of the "cuckoo" bill, that the old bird finds that all her feathers have been pulled out. The Senate is unquestionably on the march towards McKinleysville—a resort that has been and is still much sought by the American people, if we are to judge of its popularity by the result of the election in Ohio last fall. The collision between "Clevelandism" and "Senatorial Courtesy" has made a bad balk which has led to inaction, which the Star admits is disastrous to the interests of the country, but unavoidable.

The Star further says that Congress "under the lead of Democracy, has set about the correction of thirty years of Republican legislation. The whole theory of Government is to be changed. Paternalism is to be set aside." Of course the Democratic party is to deny that Washington was the father of his country, and the Constitution was adopted to protect the rights of the people and promote the general welfare. This disposes of "paternalism." Congress is also to declare the McKinley tariff law "unconstitutional," which will change the whole theory of our Government. But the most collossal undertaking will be the correction of the thirty years of Republican legislation. Well, if it should take as long to change each of the laws enacted by Republican legislation as the time already spent in the correction of the McKinley tariff act, they would be compelled to resurrect old Joshua and get him to command the sun to stand still until the resurrected Democracy completed its work of correction. But to make a short job of it, the Star had better follow the fashion of other Democrats in the country; call an "indignation meeting" like they have done in Baltimore, and declare the Senators incapable, the party a failure, and shout for the McKinley tariff law, and the Star will have prosperity.

TARIFF FOR REVENUE.

Our contemporary, the Easton Star, wants the tariff reformed so as to yield sufficient revenue to meet the wants of the Government, and it is anxious at the same time that the people should be relieved of the "evils" of the McKinley tariff law. The Star may find it difficult to reconcile these two propositions. The solons at Washington, like the Star, would be glad to get rid of the McKinley tariff rates, but when they come to deal with the schedules of duty for the purpose of obtaining sufficient income for the support of the Government, they find that the much slandered and vilified McKinley tariff law wisely and equitably imposes the customs duties; and that when they attempt to depart from it for the purpose of leaving our industries unprotected, and force our manufacturers to cut down the laboring man's wages in order to enable them to compete with foreign made goods, they discover that 57 per cent. of the imported articles are on the free list already; and when they come to scalp the McKinley schedules they find themselves left, and forced to resort to an income tax to supply the deficiency in the revenue.

When Great Britain embarked in her scheme of free trade for the purpose of securing free raw material for her manufacturers, she also left her land owners unprotected by a heavy reduction of the duties on their products in order to obtain cheap food from abroad, and the result was the up-building of marvelous and unrivalled manufacturers and robber-barons, at the expense of the small land owners whom they completely drove from their earned possessions to the manufacturing centres to become, with their wives and children, toilers in the factories and workshops, when the English Lords bought up their lands at low prices. Furthermore, the laboring classes have become, under this system of free trade, a poorly paid, discontented and beggarly part of the population. That the British Parliament might dispence with the protective duties, which had furnished revenue for the support of the Government for five hundred years, the free-traders imposed an income tax, which they pledged themselves should be only temporary, yet, at the end of fifty years, it is still in force and will so remain as long as free trade is the policy of the British Government.

The comprehensive mind of Henry Clay enabled him to see that a country possessed of an abundance of fertile land capable of yielding boundless stores of food supplies for man and beast, covered with magnificent forests of choice timber, containing in its bosom an immense deposit of ore, rich in all kinds of precious and other valuable metals, bisected by innumerable rivers, the most beautiful on earth, and many of them navigable—great lakes in the north, immense rice and cotton fields and sugar plantations in the south; indeed, everything to insure plenty and independence, should these vast resources be properly guarded and our industries fostered by a wise system of protection, the United States were destined at no very distant day to become the wealthiest and most powerful nation on earth.

Imbued with this supreme idea, Clay founded the great American system of protection to our industries and internal improvements; and the general observation may be submitted, that the system proved a most wise and salutary one—and the McKinley tariff law embraces its principles.

This is what the Wilson tariff bill proposes to overturn, and substitute the scourge of free trade in the shape of Walker tariff of 1846, and the tariff act of 1857. In short, the Democrats propose to rashly do what they did in the panic of 1857,—reduce the tariff when there is a deficiency in the Treasury. The receipts of the Government for the nine months ending March 31st, 1894, shows a loss in customs revenue of $53,000,000, and by the close of the year the expenditures will exceed the receipts about $85,000,000. The Democratic Congress increased the outstanding interest bearing debt for the year ending March 1st, 1894, $59,905,670. The receipts of the Government for the nine months ending March 31st, 1894, shows a loss of $70,000,000, as compared with the corresponding months of the last fiscal year. Yet the Star wants to reduce the duties, and thinks the Democratic party will be driven out of power.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE

From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington, D. C., May 7th, 1894.

The presence of five hundred men camped for a week within the limits of the National Capital, banded together under the name of an "army" and threating openly to remain until joined by a sufficient number of men to intimidate Congress into granting the ridiculous demands or its self-appointed leader, and the circumstances attendant upon their coming and their stay, here presents quite as impressive "object lesson" as the financial "object lesson" inaugurated by the Cleveland administration about this time last year, and unless the difference between liberty and license is more sharply defined may lead to quite as much misery. That a majority of the men that this man Coxey has enticed into Washington and quartered in a pest hole from which he has moved his valuable horses for fear of their dying from the foul and malaria laden atmosphere, are lazy, good natured tramps, only intent upon avoiding work and being fed, is apparent by their refusal of work when offered them, but it is equally apparent that this man Coxey means mischief should his force grow strong enough to make it, and the populist Senators and Representatives are doing all they can to encourage it. When this man Coxey and two of his followers were arrested for violating law in their abrupt attempt to speak from the steps of the Capitol, every populist in Congress who could make any claim to being a lawyer appeared in the police court, nominally as their volunteer defenders, but in reality to intimidate that court. This is the 3d day of the trial, which ought not have lasted more than an hour.

The manner in which the old law, docking the pay of members of the House absent without leave, except on account of sickness, is being enforced is extremely farcical. The members are allowed to certify their own absence and the highest number of days that any member has owned up to being absent was six, while any number of them who were absent at times during the month of April returned no certificate of absence and drew their full month's pay. The speaker of the House, who under this law is required to O. K. the certificates of the members before they are paid by the Sargeant-at-Arms, declines to go behind the returns made by the members, even if he has actual knowledge of the consciences of the members. Experience has proven that men's consciences are very like rubber when questions arise affecting their pocket-books.

The oil, sugar, whiskey and other trusts have been taken care of, through democratic threats to defeat the tariff bill, so who can blame the Louisiana people for taking advantage of the power given them by a chain of extraordinary circumstances to demand what they want. Ever since the Senate began its tariff tinkering, it has been a grab game. Why shouldn't Louisiana grab her share? It is to head off the action of the Louisiana Senators that the proposition has been made in the House to put an amendment on the legislative and executive appropriation bill, repealing the sugar bounty, but its efficiency would be more than doubled, although there is little doubt about its being put through the House easy enough. But, if the Louisiana Senators can defeat the tariff bill, unless their demands are met, they can also defeat the repeal of the sugar bounty. It looks to a man up a tree as though they can be absolute masters of the situation if they have the nerve and the will to be such.

A Bicycle is better than a team for the following reasons:

1ST.—It will never die, but even a Nancy Hanks is liable to do so at any time.

2ND.—It costs nothing to keep, as is the case with a horse.

3RD.—It does not require over five minutes to clean. How long would it take you to curry a horse?

4TH.—You travel twice as fast as you do with a team, make no dust and when you stop there is no danger of a runaway.

5TH.—There is no kind of exercise more highly recommended by physicians for the Minister, Lawyer or Student, than Bicycle riding.
