Every family should keep this remedy in their home at all times. No one can tell how soon it may be needed. It costs but a trifle and may be the means of saving much suffering and perhaps the life of some member of the family. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Harry Roberts, Druggist, Easton, Md. A. D. Harrison St. Michaels, Md.

—The little william will soon be sneaking in at every turn, and the dodging across hot streets to evade the faces of those we owe will keep us pretty well run down for the next six months.

—I have two little grand children who are teething this hot summer weather and are troubled with bowel complaint. I give them Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and it acts like a charm. I earnestly recommend it for children with bowel troubles. A City Wedding.

The Episcopal Church of St. Michaels and All-Angels, corner of St. Paul and Twentieth street, Baltimore, was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday morning at half past eleven o'clock, when Miss Anna Booth Balch, the daughter of Rear Admiral George Beall Balch, of the United States Navy, now of Baltimore, was married to the Rev. George William Lay, of Concord, N. H., second son of the late Rt. Rev. Henry C. Lay, D. D. Episcopal Bishop of this Diocese. The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Wm. Paret, Bishop of Maryland, assisted by the Rev. C. Earnest Smith, rector of the church. The bride wore a trained gown of white bengaline, with tulle veil, and carried a boquet [illegible] sweet peas. Miss Louisa Lay was one of the bride's maids. After the wedding a breakfast was served [illegible] the bridal party and immediate friends [illegible] the residence of Rear Admiral Balch, 1708 North Charles St. Mr. and Mrs. Lay took an afternoon train for New York, and will sail [illegible] a few days for Europe.

HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT.

An immense crowd witness the graduating exercises last evening.

The exercises of the Easton High School came off becomingly last night in the Hall. The occasion was one which had been carefully prearrange and the auxiliary exercises to the parts taken by the graduates were fine. Perhaps no graduating class in Easton ever had a better and more entertaining musical feature. Prof. Harmon and Miss Welby were the efficient architects of this delightful part of the program. The able assistance of Mr. W. G. Denny, Joe Wright, Chas. H. Hughes and R. Harry Soulsby were also added.

The energy which characterizes Prof. Murdaugh and his assistants on these occasions needs but little comment, for the citizens of Easton know what to look forward to. The graduates have been carefully drilled in their work; their papers have been through the crucible of strictest personal inspection on the part of each individual, and passed upon by their teachers as fitting representations of the trained minds of the authors.

The program as carried out last night is republished below, in which the names of the six graduates occur:

Gloria in Excelsis	School.

FROM THE FAR WEST.

Bugle Notes From Fort Niobrara, by a former Eastonion.

To The Gazette.

Yesterday morning the shrill notes of the bugle awoke us from sleep to find that the Quarter Master's storage building was in full blaze. All hopes of saving it were gone and we could do nothing only stand by and see about 5,000 dollars' worth of property ruined. It was partly insured. The fire is supposed to have been started by some vagabond Indians, but nothing is certain.

L. Troop has been reduced to only 11 men, the remainder have all been discharged or on a furlough. Those that are on a furlough will be at the fort within two months to receive their discharge. It is believed that the entire troop will be disbanded. The War Department has at last come to the conclusion that Indians make very poor soldiers. Companies I. of the 2nd, and I. of the 19th regiments have been disbanded and it is thought that L Troop will be next. All the Indians are able bodied men and good riders but their poor command of the English language interferes with their duty as a U. S. Soldier. Among those that will be discharged in one month are, Sergeants Two Strikes, (son of the present chief of the Sioux tribe,) and Fast Dog; Privates, Bear Heel, Holy Water, Holy Cane, Spotted Crow, Bear in the Woods, Shoots his Enemy, Man Afraid of his Mother-in-law, Kills in the Water, Black Horse and Eagle Eye.

The last we hear from I troop of the 2nd, is that all the men in the troop are Lieut Seay, Lieut. Sargeant, Brunner and Private, "Talks too Much with his Mouth." All the others are discharged.

Last night at nine o'clock, just before tattoo, a man broke through the window of Dr. Bratton's house, and by mistake, got into the servant's room. The alarm was given immediately as only a woman can do. Dr. Bratton, upon being rudely awakened from pleasant dreams by two or three choice words from his negro servant, grasped his revolver and rushed into the hall. The man, by that time, had discovered his mistake and was trying to repair it by going through the opposite window, taking the frame with him. The Dr. immediately fired but missed his aim. The sound of the shot called the guards to his aid and in about four minutes the fugitive and guard were having a lively game of fox and hounds. The man seeing no other hope of escape, made a flying leap for the back fence and jumped into Private Homilias' arms, who is a private of H troop, and was on parole duty at the time. The fugitive was immediately grasped in that worthy's arms and in a short time was consigned to the Guard House. He now awaits his trial which will be a general court martial. His name is Lausman of G company, eighth inf.

Priv. Wm. T. Hall, of Easton, Md., and who joined the regulars over two years ago, has applied for his discharge on the three year act.

The three year bill entitling a soldier to to his transportation home to place of enlistment will undoubtedly go into effect this month or next. If it does the army will need over ten thousand men within the next twelve months.

Among the number who are to be discharged this year out of H troop are, John W. Zimmerman, Sergeant; First Sergeant, Louis A. Cramer, Wm. T. Hall, Louis Avery, James W. Riley, Harry Crofut, Corp.; Prv. Homilius and Trump. A. M. Robinson.

A. M. ROBINSON.

COMPANY F. AT FROSTBURG.

OUR WAR CORRESPONDENT HAS

His Hands Full—An Exciting Time in Which Our Boys are Not Found Wanting.—A Table de Hote That was a Little out of the Ordinary.

OUR WAR CORRESPONDENT.

FROSTBURG, JUNE 27,
CAMP BROWN.

It was with a feeling of dread that the average member of Company F. donned his sojer clothes at home and prepared to do duty for Uncle Sam, not because one of us wished to shirk his duty, for every man responded with unusual promptness and marched forth proud to be numbered with Co. F. We remembered the great Homestead affair of 1892, and the fact that our mission and cause thereof was somewhat similar, made us anxious to reach our destination and see how the land lay, and, if necessary, face the grizzly "monster" in his lair. But, as in many cases, the "monster" is not so grizzled as he has been painted. He seems to be suffering from a few mistaken ideas and he seems to accept Uncle Sam's argument with good grace, knowing full well the consequences should he take it into his head to do otherwise.

We are having a glorious time at Frostburg, and even the sad remembrances of our parting with our old companion in arms, Levin Tyler, is fading away, he left us at Baltimore, and up to the present time, we have heard nothing of him who started out with such a proud and war-like mein. Now it is not my intention to over rate the compliments that have been paid Co. F. and our gallant Captain Adams, but natural pride must assert itself and I can but say that of all the companies here assembled, Co. F. is taking first prize.

Upon our arrival we were served with a breakfast consisting of coffee and sandwiches, and the dinner that followed was one rarely ever seen in Talbot County. Everything was rare, in fact raw. Beef was raw, potatoes raw, and all were as hungry as bears, even Sarg. Loveday, who had brought six cooked, and truly good Eastern Shore chickens along, was hungry. Methinks that William did not get the full benefit of this precaution against hard times, for upon investigation, he discovered that somebody had condescended to leave the entire six gizzards. Somebody said this was a foul, (fowl), the Sarg. was inclined to coinside. We fully anticipated that the disappearance of the chickens would be followed by the appearance of a Sutler, but none came, and as night approached your correspondent saw suspicious conferences, and the occasional chomping of bones seemed to disturbed not the slumbers of the Ledger force in the seat behind.

We have plenty of lesure time on our hands in which to read and write letters, and we are not forgetting to return pranks, for indeed the man who does not accept them with apparent good grace, immediately becomes the target at which all delight to shoot. Nothing or nobody escapes, even the poor stumps, that have stood the blasts of winter and the heat of summer, the bombs, the fierce whiz of the canon ball, and the fiercer charge of our gallant blue and gray of the late civil war, must needs be challenged by Jim. Stewart and rudely requested to advance and give the countersign. We all know there was considerable fighting done in this section of Maryland during the late war, and these days are sad reminders. Of course these old tree stumps can remember all these things, but the young and tender bushes cannot remember so far back, and when Tom. Smith gives a stern yet trembling request that they come forward and give an account of themselves, there is consternation in bushdom.

Now talk about good times, Howard Aderson is just rolling in luck. He was Orderly Sargeant to Agt. Gen. Douglass and was fully capable of getting all the pleasure possible out of the circumstances. Unfortunately, he received a telegram urging his presence in Mexico, and he left at noon to-day for home to make necessary arrangements for this long journey. He was very popular with all the boys, to say nothing of the Frostburg girls, and I am sure he would have rather remained with us until we break camp. During his stay he had nothing to complain of in regard to eating. In fact he lived on the fat of the land. While we of the less fortunate were contemplating the batter'd rim of a tin cup and dreaming of Mocha and Java, our friend Anderson was in very close proximity to Bers Kirschwasser. Here's to our friend Anderson, and though the draught we drink be nine parts burnt corn, yet we wish him good luck, one and all.

Our camp being situated but a short dissance from town we, of course, take advantage of every opportunity to pay respects to fair damsels of Frostburg, and not a few are the visits to camp, paid by the fair sex. Should any one ask, do we visit Echardt? the universal cry from Company F. would be, "We do!" We have a friend there; one that always bids us welcome, and the memory of the open hearted hospitality that "Mother" always extends to "her boys" will remain always with us. "Mother," as she is called by the boys, because we do not know her real name, keeps a restaurant, and we know where to go when hungry. Moreover, the "dead broke" are as welcome as the "flush," for "Mother's" charity exceeds even the so called free lunch, she gives free of any charge whatever. Our boys "rise up and call her blessed," and though Hysie Morris should take it upon himself to jab the Sheriff a few times, still "Mother" is inclined to be forgiving and I believe he too, "stands in." The boys have decided to make her a handsome present before leaving.

The unruliness of the strikers cause us no fear. We have here all necessary military array to stop any attempt at disorder. With Company F. to the front, who would dare to disobey one law? We feel content to while away a few weeks here, if necessary, breathing in the pure fresh air of beautiful western Maryland, doubly benefited by the "roughing it" which we have received. At night we assemble and chat of home, remembering the loved ones there, and as the camp grows quiet and the stars come out, we can but remember the soldier of times past and gone, who camped not far away and whose wakening on the morrow meant not the quiet and pleasant routine as we have now, but strife, bloodshed and death. We dream of Gettysburg, Antietam, and bloody Bull Run, of hurrying feet, the cry of the wounded and dying, the smoke from thousands of guns seems stifling, we awake to find ourselves at peaceful Camp Brown.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at J. C. Henry drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

The Oaks of Wye.

The verses published in the GAZETTE last week entitled the Oaks of Wye were written by the late Prof. Robert H. Skinner and had been in the posession of Mr. Burnite for a long time and were copied by him, but, without supposing that he would get the credit of it. The party who handed the verses to the paper for publication was not aware of their authorship, but supposed they were the lines of Mr. Burnite.

Ocean City, convenient and delightful. The Red Men will make it an excursion point on the 18th of July. If you want a pleasant and congenial party go with them. The committee of arrangements will leave nothing undone to insure comfort and pleasure.

THAT HOMELESS CLOCK

The Town Clock Question again before the public for Solution.

It is becoming somewhat monotonous to our readers to harp on the town clock longer but there is something more to say. Remembering the fact that by hard work the necessary amount was subscribed to purchase the clock, several meetings of citizens to discuss the location of the same, and finally the subscribers all placed their names to the paper favoring the clock going on the High School building now in course of construction. The building has now been completed to the point where the clock was to rest. And, behold what a presentation it makes!

By consulting the drawing of the front of the tower of the building herewith given one can at a glance see that the clock is nicely tucked in behind gables and cornices, and to add to its uselessness as an ornament to the town the three faces of the clock can only be seen from the immediate front or slightly to one side, on account of the octagonal tower. But as a stately and handsome maple tree obscures the front from view, the "town clock, might as well be put in a hole in the ground, for all the use it will be to the town out side of the demands of the school.

The architect objects to its going in the dome of the tower, but some think it would present a handsome appearance there without marring the beauty of the design as well as give four opposite faces good exposure.

This last failure will kill the project as the subscribers are not pleased with the site, and unless the County Commissioners allow the Court House to be fixed, there seems to be no place to entertain the poor forlorn outcast known as the homeless clock.

OUR HOMELESS CLOCK.

I vibrate from steeple to dome,
An outcast without any home.
My friends they are many who say
"Just stop while we all agree
Where you can better display
Your beautiful faces all three."
I am tired of waiting for them,
I have no trust at the store,
I once had a face I could use,
But now I've no tick more.

They Agree on the Main Issue.

"Easton, Md., June 21, 1894.

"To the Editor of the Wine & Spirit Gazette:

Sir: I thank you for the sample copy of your paper. I do not care to subscribe for same as I am on the other side, and the wine I drink is distilled in heaven. Believe on the name of Jesus with all thy heart, and thou shalt also taste it. Yours truly,

SECOND ANNIVERSARY SERVICE.

CELEBRATED BY FATHER WALDRON TOMORROW.

Special choir from Wilmington will be present.—Attractive Childrens' Day Service at Ebenezer M. E. Church last Sunday.—Other Items of Church News.

Rev. Father T. F. Waldron, of SS. Peter and Paul Church, will celebrate, by special and appropriate services tomorrow, the second anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The services will be participated in by the following officers: Rev. T. F. Waldron celebrant, Rev. M. X. Fallon of Wilmington, Del., deacon, Mr. Jas. Hartnett subdeacon, and Messrs. P. J. Magnificat	Mozart.
Salva Regina	Millard.
O, Salutaris	Verdi.
Tantum Ergo	Millard.

On Monday morning a Solemn Requiem Mass will be sung by the same choir.

The ladies and gentlemen who gave an tainment here some time ago will be among the singers present tomorrow. Services will begin at eleven o'clock, with a procession from the rectory and thence down the center aisle to the altar. At both the morning and evening services sermons will be preached.

After being twice postponed the Childrens' Day service was held last Sunday evening, as anticipated in the GAZETTE, and was quite an interesting occasion. As usual, the church was crowded to its utmost extent, and a large number of chairs were called into use and placed in the aisles. The church was not decorated, owing to the chairman of the committee being absent from home and sickness among other members of the committee, and also a great scarcity of flowers. But the absence of the decorations were fully made up for in the excellence of the programme. It was brief but in every detail was perfect, and thoroughly enjoyed. A church building association has been organized which has for its object the completion of the church, on which work was stopped some time ago. The association will also create a sinking fund for building purposes. The association will begin work at once, and through its efforts the church may soon be completed.

Men Who Make the Best Husbands.

Every unmarried man thinks he would make a good husband; every married man knows he is the best husband in the world, of course; and the man a woman loves possesses (in her estimation, at least) the elements of an ideal husband. It is interestsng, therefore, to know the opinions on this subject of such well-known men as Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, Palmer Cox, Bill Nye, Anthony Comstock, and George Francis Train, who will give their views in the July number of Demorest's Family Magazine, some of which are very unique, and all well worth reading. Ice is an almost indispensable luxury in midsummer; but how few appreciate the forethought and enterprise that makes the enjoyment of the glittering treasure of the ice-king is wrested from his storehouse and hoarded for the use of humanity! "A Day on an Ice-Field" is pleasant and profitable reading; and the realistic illustrations, from photographs made specially for the purpose, show the the complete process of ice-gathering.—"Ocean Life in Inland Homes" is a highly illustrated article, apropos to the seashore season, and tells how to make, stock, and care for an aquarium. "How to Play the Violin without a Master" is another of the series of helpful papers for which this Magazine is so well known; there are a number of bright stories and poems; "Society Fads" will interest every woman, and so will "Bagging a Birthday." The housekeeper will find many excellent suggestions in "The Arrangement of Summer Draperies"; "Sanitarian" contains some specially good ideas in "The Adaption of Food to Work"; and the other departments abound with good things, while the illustrations are numerous and beautiful. Demorest's has a beautiful new cover for July; but is still published for $2 a year, by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th St., New York.

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL MEETING.

MARYLAND STATE TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION AT ANNAPOLIS.

Talbot teachers will take a prominent part in the meeting next month. The meeting will partake largely of the character of a social reunion. Other news

To teach the young idea how to shoot is proverbially a hard and difficult task—first, because the idea is slow to come, and secondly, because when it does come it is apt to take lodgement in refractory little minds, requiring untold urging and guidance to insure the budding ideas proper growth and development. Thus the school-teacher's lot is not always an enviable one, and thus he or she looks with yearning eyes for the dawn of that pleasant summer day which brings the end of the school term and the beginning of vacation. That day of delight is to-day; and it is therefore a happy day for the teacher.

It has been customary for some years past for the school teachers of the State to give over part of their vacation to the genial task of association one with the other, and, to carry out this idea, have arranged the date of the annual meeting of the Maryland State Teachers' Association at some time during the summer rest.

This idea was uppermost when the association was formed 28 years ago, and it has proved an undoubted benefit not only to the teachers personally in formulating happy and lasting acquaintances between them, but also to the public-school service of the State in bringing about a commingling of ideas and a concentration of methods in teaching.

The meeting, which will celebrate the 28th anniversary of the association will be held on the 10, 11, and 12 of July next in the hall of the House of Delegates, Annapolis. It will be a gala time for the teachers, for the sessions of the three day's meeting will be interspersed with many diversions arranged by the entertainment committee. Trips to be enjoyed after the close of each day's session have been arranged as follows: Boating and fishing on the Severn, a visit to Bay Ridge, visit to the Naval Academy, St. John's College, the Executive Mansion and other places of interest. On Friday, the 13th, the teachers will visit Washington in a body.

The programme is greatly strengthened by Prof. E. D. Murdaugh who will read an excellent paper on "Human Documents in the School Room." Prof. Long, of the Trappe High School will address on the subject of "Eyes and Ears." These two gentlemen are indispensable to these meetings as they have often been called on in the past.

Prof. Chaplain is the treasurer of the State Association. Talbot will be largely represented, as quite a number of teachers have announced their intention of being present.

Weather Report.

The weather report as reported by Henry Shreve for last week is as follows: Favorable weather for the farmer. Wheat harvest finished and most of the hay crop saved. Wheat threshing has already begun. A good yield anticipated.

NEW YEAR'S DAY IN JAPAN.

Set by the Gregorian Calendar, It Is Celebrated With Quaint Observances.

Even the Japanese celebrate Christmas, although unintentionally. They have accepted the Gregorian New Year instead of their own and decorate their houses in honor of the occasion. But the influence of the English who live among them has made them very prompt in putting up their finery, so that they are generally in full festive array by the dawn of Christmas.

The decorations are decidedly unique from an American point of view. Every detail, however, is perfect, and every feature has some meaning. Across the front of the house, for instance, is festooned a grass rope with a deep fringe. This is a very pleasant sort of a thing for a man to have over his door, for no evil spirit dare pass under it. Over each entrance hangs a great tassel of grass containing a scarlet crayfish. Its crooked body symbolizes the back of the aged, bent with years. This is surrounded with the branches of a kind of japonica whose young leaves bud before the old ones are shed. This is typical of parents living when their children's children are born. In the center are the leaves of the Japanese polypody, which symbolizes conjugal life because the fronds spring in pairs. Embryo leaves symbolize offspring. There is also a piece of charcoal, which means home, and two little pieces of seaweed, which typify good fortune and rejoicing. In the middle of all is the lucky bag, a square of white paper held in by a red and white string, which marks a present.

Not only the Japanese but the Europeans in Japan also hang this tassel over their front gates. They do it partly as a compliment to the Japanese and partly for luck. Sir Edwin Arnold, when in Japan, had one hanging outside his home at Azabu. But he was so ultra Japanese that he took care to have it ready only for New Year's, and not on Christmas.

The natives have another decoration, consisting of three green bamboos with sliced tops, reminding one of organ pipes, erected on each side of the portal at a distance of six feet, the right hand one springing out of a tuft of the mematsu, which signifies the female principle, and the left hand from the matsu, which signifies the male. In the midst of all these emblems the national flags generally wave from black lacquered poles headed with gold balls. If the common people fail to display these flags, they are admonished by the police, and the flags go up. They are generally of white silk crape, with a red sun in the center.

A Japanese New Year's custom, which it would not be amiss to import to America, is that of paying all debts—except to foreigners—on the first day of the year. A man who fails to do so without leave of his creditors is dishonored. Consequently those who are in debt try to sell everything which will fetch money, and in Tokio a huge fair is held in the principal street on New Year's eve for this purpose.—New York Sun.

A Traveler's Doom.

New Spirit—I am Mrs. Globetrotter of New York, although I never spent more than six weeks of the year there.

St. Peter—Your life has been a selfish one, but you will be punished enough in here. Walk right in. You will find billions of spirits here who have visited all the great cities of 50,000,000 planets, and they are all just as fond of talking of their travels as you used to be.—New York

Steamer Emma Giles brought an excursion to this place from Baltimore last Thursday. Many hundred took this privilege of coming to the garden spot of Maryland.

So far, the trade that has come to the new steamer St. Michaels goes way ahead of anything that the owners had expected, both in passenger and freight trafic.

For several days there was a butter famine in this place. The scarcity caused it to rise rapidly in price. It got as high as twenty cents a pound and is still at that enormous figure.

Our merchants complain of the dullness of times, but they are working in shoal water, keeping close to the shore. Talking to a gentleman from Easton one day last week, he said that St. Michaels was a live town compared with Easton. I said nothing, but I thought, Lord help Easton.

Billie Nublets asked me to let the readers of the GAZETTE know that just so soon as he served out the sixty days at the House of Correction that Squire Sparks gave him, he and Maggie Browning will be united in the bonds of holy wedlock at the residence of Maggie's father. All are invited. I told him I would do so and so I have.

Commencement at St. Michaels school yesterday. The following was the program: Morning Hymn; Invocation, Rev. P. J. Otis; Chant, Lord's Prayer; Blue are the Heavens Frank. Salutatory, Miss Hattie H. Lee; Viva, Bristow; Presentation of Diplomas, Prof. A. Chaplain. Foresters sound the cheerful horn, Bishop; Valedictory, Miss Elva W. Keithly Happy Birds, Edward Holtz; Address, Rev. G. W. Hinkle; Serenade, Schubert.

Mrs. James Ridgaway takes great pride in, the quality of breed and number of chickens she has in her poultry yard, but here of late, some one, as she thought, had been stealing them. She attributed this to "coons." To prevent this she carefully loaded her pistol and waited. Last Saturday night she heard a noise in the yard among her fowls; she raised the window, took precise aim at space, pulled the triger. Next morning her first visit was to count her chickens, when lo and behold there lay a dead opossum. It wasn't coons that time.

Mr. Wyatt has contracted with the merchants doing business on Talbot street to sprinkle the street so many times a day during the summer months, and now that pump, our town ornament (that I've written so much about) comes in use and furnishes Mr. Wyatt the water for sprinkling purposes. He says that the town should put some kind of an attachment to it that would cause the water to come without so much horse labor. Don't worry Mr. W——, our city fathers will attend to that at their next meeting, that's about all that they will have to do.

Died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Marana Benson, last Sunday afternoon, Susan E. Benson, aged eighty-three years. Interment at Mt. Olivet Cemetery Tuesday, Rev. J. P. Otis officiating at funeral service. For 70 years she had been a faithful member of the M. E. Church, living as near the cross as it is able for poor humanity to live. When this last sickness came she seemed to know that death, her release, was near, that the work of seventy years was ending. Without a murmur, making no complaint, she eagerly waited to throw down the cross, to put on the crown, that he whom she had loved and served so long had promised to her. Resting and trusting in this promise she passed from this life of sorrow to one of eternal joy.

A game of base ball was commenced here last Saturday afternoon between Tilghman's Island club and the second nine of this town. Two innings were played. Score 14 to 0 in favor of the visitors. Second nine had found by this time that they were no more than children in the hands of those stalwarts from the Island by the sea, sponge thrown up. This was bad for us that love the national game. It was proposed to the captain of the Tilghman's club that he play our first nine. I saw his eyes sparkle with anticipation of another conquest as he consented. Mr. Lears umpired the game to the satisfaction of all. I think eight innings were played. Score 25 to 5 in favor of St. M. team. (The Star had the score 25 to 30. What's the matter with the Star.)

Wonders of Ancient Glass Blowing.

The glass blowers of ancient Thebes are known to have been equally as proficient in that particular art as is the most scientific craftsman of the same trade of the present day, after a lapse of 40 centuries of so called "progress." They were well acquainted with the art of staining glass and are known to have produced that commodity in great profusion and perfection. Rossellini gives an illustration of a piece of stained glass known to be 4,000 years old which displayed artistic taste of high order, both in tint and design.

In this case the color is struck through the vitrified structure, and he mentions designs struck entirely in pieces from a half to three-quarters of an inch thick, the color being perfectly incorporated with the structure of the piece, and exactly the same on both the obverse and reverse sides.

The priests of P'tah at Memphis were adepts in the glassmaker's art, and not only did they have factories for manufacturing the common crystal variety, but they had learned the vitrifying of the different colors and of imitating precious stones to perfection. Their imitations of the amethyst and of the various other colored gems were so true to nature that even now, after they have lain in the desert sands from 2,000 to 4,000 years, it takes an expert to distinguish the genuine articles from the spurious. It has been shown that, besides being experts in glassmaking and coloring, they also used the diamond in cutting and engraving. In the British museum there is a beautiful piece of stained glass, with an engraved emblazonment of the monarch Thothmes III, who lived 3,400 years ago.—St. Louis Republic.

MATTERS IN MARYLAND.

PRINCESS ANNE, June 26.—Truckers began on Monday last shipping tomatoes to northern markets. The acerage planted in tomatoes increases every year in this country. Rain is badly needed in some sections of the county.

BALTIMORE, June 25.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Dr. John Kremien for the murder by poison of his patient, John Forre, as he was known in Baltimore, but whose right name was Herman Hanbuch, returned a verdict finding the prisoner guilty of manslaughter. It was originally alleged that the doctor killed Hanbuch to get his estate of $6,700, forged a will to carry out the scheme, and also poisoned a witness of the will.

LEONARDTOWN, June 26.—St. Mary's Female seminary held its commencement exercises on Saturday. The graduates were Misses Blanche Hayward and Margaret Elizabeth Turner, both of Calvert. Medals were awarded as follows: English, Miss Blanche Hayward; French, Miss Edwardina Crane; instrumental music, Miss May Thomas; vocal music, Miss Belle Gatch; drawing, Miss Alberta Carpenter; deportment, Miss May Hayward.

HYATTSVILLE, June 24.—The Galvanites have been ordered by the proprietor of the George Washington House in Bladensburg to secure other headquarters, and, after some difficulty in finding a place, moved to the Parker estate, just below Bladensburg. There are about forty-five men in the Galvin camp and all of them are in want of food. The number of men in the Coxey camp is steadily decreasing, and there are not over 150 of the original 500 left.

BALTIMORE, June 26.—A large and enthusiastic mass meeting was held last night at the Academy of Music to promote the construction of the proposed Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal. The meeting was under the auspices of the city government, and delegations were present from every commercial organization of the city and state, and from each county. Mayor Latrobe presided and General Agnus and Senator Gorman made the principal speeches.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Amelia Weis, the adopted daughter of Michael Miesnett, who was the cause of the killing of Miesnett by Thomas Jones, now on trial at Towson, startled the court in her testimony by saying that she had married a colored man named Thomas E. Hall, thinking he was white, but had never lived with him. She said Jones knew this, and that knowledge gave him a hold on her and led to the continuation of an unlawful intimacy.

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Angustus Krebs has been released on $1,000 bail for court by Justice Schenkel charged with breaking his mother-in-law's left temporal bone with a blow of his fist. The wife and mother-in-law said that Krebs came home the other night intoxicated and brought with him a big, ugly looking dog. The mother-in-law said the dog should not stay in the house, when Krebs remarked that the dog had more sense than his mother-in-law and knocked her down with his fist, breaking the bone in her head.

HAGERSTOWN, June 24.—The taxpayers of Hagerstown do not know to whom they shall pay their municipal taxes or if they should pay them at all just at this time. The trouble has arisen from the non-confirmation of J. H. Middlekauff, who was tax collector for 1893 and whom the Democratic city council claims holds over because his successor has not been confirmed. Mayor Keedy was asked by the city council to put the motion to have Mr. Middlekauff's bond approved, but he refused. Yesterday Mr. Middlekauff advertised he would receive taxes.

CUMBERLAND, June 24.—James Cambell, of Barton, was arrested yesterday afternoon upon the charge of criminal libel against David W. Sloan, state's attorney. Mr. Cambell was taken before Magistrate George T. Thompson for a preliminary hearing. He asked for a jury trial and gave $500 bail for his appearance at court. The alleged libel grows out of a letter Cambell wrote denouncing the course of the county officials in the present strike in the coal region, and condemning the calling out of the militia. The letter inferentially reflected upon the honesty of State's Attorney Sloan.

MIDDLETOWN, June 27.—The annual meeting of the alumni of Wesleyan university was held yesterday. Hon. D. G. Harriman, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was elected president, L. O. Kuhns secretary and Morris B. Crawford corresponding secretary. After the preliminary business was transacted speeches were made by Hon. George Reynolds, LL.D., '41; Rev. J. M. Buckley, D. D., President Raymond and others. For the first time was used the system of electing trustees on written ballots of all the alumni, and resulted in 399 votes being cast. Hon. Stephen H. Olin, '66, and Hon. Watson C. Squire, of '59, were elected trustees for a term of five years.

CUMBERLAND, Md., June 27.—A felonious assault was committed upon Mrs. Wesley Welsh, wife of a farmer, who lives about three miles out of town. It happened about noon yesterday. A negro stopped near the house to pick wild raspberries. Mrs. Welsh ordered him away. He made some impudent reply and moved around to another patch just back of Welsh's barn. She again ordered him to go away, threatening to send a dog after him. She ran toward the house, but he caught her and, overpowering her, dragged her to the house and accomplished his purpose. Upon hearing of the crime the farmers in the neighborhood began searching for the negro. A sheriff's posse has been organized to hunt him down.

ELKTON, Md., June 22.—A thrilling experience was that of Engineer Grason and Fireman Nelson, in the Central Division railroad paytrain, which passed through Rising Sun, Cecil county, Md. David Maher's 2-year-old son was on the track the day the paytrain came along and was bewildered when the engineer gave the warning signal. To stop the train in time to avoid fatality was impossible. Fireman Nelson sprang through the lookout window, ran along the footboard and swinging from the pilot table kicked the child in the forehead and knocked it into the ditch along the track. On the return trip the train stopped and the little fellow was found playing in the yard, on his forehead the mark of the fireman's shoe, made when he kicked him over and saved his life.

A Canine Rope Walker.

NEWARK, Del., June 25.—J. K. Miller, of this town, is the author of several well trained dogs, one of which, Flossie, is a skillful walker of the tight rope. He proposes to take this dog to Niagara Falls next month, and will send her over the falls on a tight rope, under which will be suspended a net for safety in case the dog falls.

A Bus Driver's Retort.

It is always amusing to listen to the sulphurous exchange of compliments between a cabby and a busman, who is often sufficiently clever at repartee to cause cabby's attempts at ridicule to recoil on his own head. Here is a case in point. One afternoon a westward going bus picked up a lady and gentleman right out of the hands of cabby in Piccadilly. In pulling up, the bus very nearly came to grief against a heavy van. This was the jehu's chance.

"You're a nice sort of party to 'ave charge of the 'eads of families, you are!" he shouted at the bus driver. "Why didn't yer bring yer mother out to 'elp yer 'old the 'osses on their feet?"

Like a lightning flash came the retort: "Bring my mother out indeed, while there's such faces as yours knocking about the streets! Not me! I don't want to 'ave the old 'oman frightened to death. She's been too good a mother to me!"—London Tit-Bits.
