THE Democratic Nominating Convention for the First Congressional District of Maryland met at Ocean City on Thursday. A large number of non-delegates was present and report the occasion one of tremendous enthusiasm and excitement and a complete victory for Senator Gibson. W. Laird Henry, of Cambridge was nominated to fill the unexpired term of the Fifty-third Congress, made vacant by the death of Representative Brattan. Joshua M. Miles of Somerset county was nominated for the Fifty-fourth Congress. These gentlemen are high up in democratic lore and will pull a strong vote, but when the Republican camp is heard from it will bring terror to their bones. The people have a complete mess of Democratic usurpation in Washington and will welcome back to power the old tried and true Republican principles of Government.

THE tendency of trade on the Maryland-Delaware Peninsula is to flow towards Philadelphia. To that end the railways have been built and operated. Competion has been destroyed over a good part of the entire region. A large part of the products of the Eastern Shore belongs here; and it is significant of the new spirit of enterprise which pervades the city that efforts are being made to capture this trade.—Baltimore Herald.

It is extremely fortunate that our "city cousins" are at last becoming conscious of the commercial importance of the picturesque "Eastern Shore Green Horn" of time honored tradition.—Chestertown Transcript.

WHEN the business men of Baltimore want a personage to guy and ridicule, the "Eastern Sho'man" is the object that fills the bill completely. No circumstance is too "green" to apply to those from the counties on this side of the Bay. But when it comes to trade, it "belongs" to them so completely that advertising is unnecessary. With a few honorable exceptions, the Baltimore merchants have not only been keeping aloof from making acquaintances here, but actually ridicule all efforts made to open up business relations. If a change is about to be made, it is well for Baltimore that she is not waking up to the necessity too late.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Correspondent

Washington, July 23, 1894.

Grover's Epistle to the Free Traders still holds its own as the most absorbing subject of conversation now before the Washington public. It was bad taste and an outrageous assumption of authority for Mr. Cleveland to have written that letter and it only aggravated the case when he compelled Mr. Wilson to read it as part of his speech on the floor of the House; but there is no denying that the letter has had, at least partially, the effect it was intended to have. It has made it certain that the House will never agree to the Senate amendments to the tariff bill, because, as Senator Hill significantly remarked, such agreement would merely result in getting the bill vetoed. It has had another effect, however, which it is certain was neither expected nor intended by its writer. It has wrought a sufficient number of democratic Senators to control the Senate, with the help of the solid republican vote, up to publicly declaring that they would refuse to vote to accept any conference report that puts upon the free list [illegible] articles upon which the Senate amendments placed a duty.

That is just the way the thing stands at this writing. The House will not accept the House bill. Now the only change that can take place must involve the surrender of either the House or the Senate. It can be surmised, without any great risk of making a mistake, that Mr. Cleveland will be able to prevent any surrender on the part of the House, and as the democratic Senators who added the protection amendments to the bill did so because of pressure from the states they represent, it would seem that they might be counted upon to stand firm even if they were not strengthened by their hatred of Mr. Cleveland not only because of the insulting manner in which he refers to them in his letter, but also because of the manner in which he has tried to boss his party in Congress—aye, and succeeded, too—from the day on which he became President. Still, if there is a break in the lines of either side it is believed that it will be on the part of the Senate. The republicans are playing the part of onlookers at the contest, but they are by no means disinterested. On the contrary, they are so much interested that Senator Aldrich has asked all unpaired republican Senatoas to be on hand and to remain within call until the tariff is in some way disposed of. The republicans wish to accomplish one of two things—prevent any tariff legislation, if that can be done; otherwise to aid in getting as many of the Senate amendments as possible in the bill that finally gets through.

Mr. Cleveland's alleged arguments in favor of the sugar trust and of the Whitney Nova Scotia coal syndicate, in which all the world knows the money of his closest personal and political friends is heavily invested, have greatly weakened his position and added to the chances for non-action on the tariff bill. Everybody knows that Mr. Cleveland's friends put their money into that coal syndicate solely because he assured them that free coal was a certainty, and, although it is not absolutely known, there are excellent reasons for the belief that other friends of his have obtained options on certain Cuban iron mines upon assurances that iron ore was also to be free.

Did some democratic Senators commit perjury when they swore that they had never purchased stock in the sugar trust? The direct charge has been made that they did, and the Senate committee has reopened the investigation and is again taking testimony. It is keeping the testimony very dark too, members of the committee claiming to be afraid that its publication might result in preventing the committee obtaining important evidence. It is rumored that at least one witness has sworn to having seen a written order for the purchase of sugar stock, which was given by a democratic Senator and is now in existence, and to have told the committee in whose possession it is. The gossip concerning this matter has been very much enlivened by the statement that certain parties who had been snubbed by certain Senators proposed to get even by furnishing the evidence to make a case of perjury against one Senator, in order that the whole business might be brought out in court. There is little doubt in Washington that perjure has been committed, but there is much doubt as to whet[illegible]r it will be proven. If ritten orders for the purchase of sur stock are in existence it is more ely that they will be used to con l Senatorial votes than that they be produced before the investi g committee or in court.

e House on Saturday passed by ecessary two-thirds vote the esolution providing for a con nal amendment for the elec U.S. Senators by direct vote ople.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JULY 29.

Text of the Lesson, Luke ii, 40-52—Memory Verses, 46-49—Golden Text, Luke ii, 52, Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

40. "And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him." The previous verse says that after all things written in the law had been performed for the child they returned to Nazareth. This first verse of our lesson may be said to contain all we know of the first 12 years of His life. Since John the Baptist was filled with the Holy Spirit from his birth (Luke i, 15) we cannot think otherwise of Jesus, and that would explain His being "strong in spirit and filled with wisdom."

41. "Now, His parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover." Three times a year all men in Israel were commanded to appear before the Lord in Jerusalem (Ex. xxiii, 17; Deut. xvi, 16), at the feast of the passover, the feast of weeks and the feast of tabernacles, and none were to appear empty. The time is coming when all the nations of the earth shall be represented in Jerusalem once a year to worship the Lord (Zech. xiv, 16).

42. "And when He was 12 years old they went up to Jerusalem, after the custom of the feast." It would be a journey of two or three days as they traveled then from Nazareth to Jerusalem, but nothing is said of the incidents of the journey.

43. "And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem, and Joseph and His mother knew not of it." He does not appear to have been the prodigy which the Apocrypha would make Him out to be, but probably a quiet, thoughtful boy whose mind was more in Heaven than on earth, yet not so absentminded as to be at any time or in the least degree disrespectful or disobedient, for He never sinned in thought, word or deed (II Cor. v, 21).

44. "But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey, and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance." Had he been the wonder working boy of the Apocrypha, they would hardly have left Him out of their sight, and great would have been the commotion in Jerusalem concerning Him. As it is, they actually lose sight of Him for a whole day.

45. "And when they found Him not they turned back again to Jerusalem seeking Him." While they had sacredly excluded all leaven from their food for days past, they would now think that they had not excluded all evil from their hearts and lives, else they might have been spared this retracing of their steps. Satan would be very busy at such a time suggesting all manner of doubts and fears, and we may imagine Mary full of upbraidings. His presence is peace and fullness of joy. Let us never lose it.

46. "And it came to pass that, after three days, they found Him in the temple sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them and asking them questions." Not one nor two but three days of sorrow had they experienced because of Him and their neglect of Him, but even 20 years after this Mary had three days' deeper sorrow through no fault of hers. Where had He spent the days? Who had fed and lodged Him? These and other questions we must wait to have answered. But we see the bent of His mind in the place and company and occupation in which He was found.

47. "And all that heard Him were astonished at His understanding and answers." He could say then in at least some measure, as He did later, "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of Myself" (John xiv, 10). We may also suppose that his questions would be in the line of pressing Scripture hard upon the precepts of man, such as "What is written in the law?" "How readest thou?" (Luke x, 26.) His own answers would doubtless be in the very words of Scripture.

48. "And when they saw Him they were amazed, and His mother said unto Him: Son, why hast Thou thus dealt with us? Behold, Thy father and I have sought Thee sorrowing." They had learned that carelessness—going from the sanctuary—causes loss of Jesus—that is, communion—and one day's neglect had caused three days' anxiety. How often it is so in the spiritual life—a forgetfulness of Him for an hour or not responding the moment He calls may lead to much anxious seeking for Him. See S. of Sol. iii, 1-4; v, 6, 7.

49. "And He said unto them: How is it that ye sought Me? Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?" People today seek Him everywhere but in the one place where He is to be found. He will always be found in the sanctuary, not necessarily in a so called place of worship, though He should be found there, but always in His word. Contrast His "My Father" with her "Thy Father." This is the first "My Father" of human lips used in reference to God, and the words of this verse are the first recorded words of Jesus.

50. "And they understood not the saying which He spake unto them." If even Mary understood not, what wonder that the apostles afterward understood not? How utterly helpless we all are, apart from the Holy Spirit, to understand the things of God! The things of God knoweth no man but the Spirit of God (I Cor. ii, 11). All the wisdom of Egypt and of Babylon could not interpret the dreams of their respective kings. None but a Joseph and a Daniel filled with the wisdom and the Spirit of God could do it.

51. "And He went down with them and came to Nazareth and was subject unto them, but His mother kept all these sayings in her heart." Verse 40 covers the first 12 years of His life, and this verse covers the next 18 years. One has said that submission is the highest mission on earth, and we certainly see it in Jesus. He knew who He was, whence He came and what He came to do, yet for 18 years after He said He must be about His Father's business He quietly submitted to Nazareth, and the carpenter's shop, and the humble home.

Thirty years, unknown, He trod
Galilee's sequested sod,
But His life was known to God.
Daily work at Joseph's call,
Daily duties howe'er small,
Yet He was the Lord of all.

52. "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." Physically He grew as other boys; spiritually He became filled with wisdom from above, like Joseph and Daniel, but in greater measure. All who admired goodness could not help looking favorably upon Him, while He did always those things which pleased the Father (John viii, 29). The Scriptures were His special and probably His only study and the Holy Spirit His great teacher. See our commands and privileges in Joshua i, 8; Col. iii, 16; John xiv, 26; II Cor. iv, 11.

Selfish Resignation.

Some people seem to see nothing disastrous in any event so long as its results are beneficial to themselves. They have much virtuous submission to another man's fate.

"There's no misfortin so big that there ain't a little good in it," said Captain Joe Smallett.

"I dunno 'bout that," answered the younger man, who was being consoled for the loss of property. "I could name a good many catastrophes that hain't been profitable right in this town," he continued. "How 'bout the time John Sawyers' barn burned, and he lost all his hay an critters?"

The captain was silent, but unconvinced, and presently his features lightened with an idea.

"Well, it does seem so it was tarnal hard on John, but there was a little good in it, too," he said. "You know that apple tree that stud close to the barn? Well, it was brimful of the nicest apples you ever set tooth to, and that fire roasted 'em to a turn. There they hung, and the juice jest dripped out of 'em. We eat 'em after they got the fire out. Seem's though I never tasted sech good baked apples."

Captain Joe smacked his lips at the retrospect, but the other man was still uncomforted. He was in no mood just then for looking on the bright side of even a neighbor's misfortune.—Youth's Companion.

Caribou Habits.

In summer the caribou feeds chiefly on common plants. It is especially fond of a broad leafed grass growing in wet places and around the barrens which are so numerous in various places in the interior of New Brunswick. In September you will find them on these barrens feeding on the reindeer moss (Cladonia rangiferina), of which they are very fond. They will dig for it when the snow is nearly or quite four feet deep. They have been seen at this work when only their backs were visible above the surface of the snow. When there is a crust on the snow, their operations at once cease, as they are no longer able to work. Then they betake themselves to the black moss which hangs from the trees which skirt the barrens. This they will, however, never eat so long as they can get the genuine reindeer moss. Toward spring they ascend to the highlands and hard wood ridges, where they remain until the snow has left. The dark and white caribou are often seen together in droves. —Forest and Stream.

ATTENTION YOUNG MAN!

A Bicycle is better than a team for the following reasons:

1ST.—It will never die, but even a Nancy Hanks is liable to do so at any time.

2ND.—It costs nothing to keep, as is the case with a horse.

3RD.—It does not require over five minutes to clean. How long would it take you to curry a horse?

4TH.—You travel twice as fast as you do with a team, make no dust and when you stop there is no danger of a runaway.

5TH.—There is no kind of exercise more highly recommended by physicians for the Minister, Lawyer or Student, than Bicycle riding.

It will be to your interest not to buy a bicycle until you have at least seen the large stock we carry. We are one of the largest firms in Baltimore. Read the following:
