THE Democrats are not contemplating a walk-over in this district.

THE Republican Primaries are called by the State Central Committee. See announcement at top of this column.

THE condition of affairs throughout the country, the do-nothing Congress of the United States, the exciting quarrels among themselves, the lack of fixed policy and weakness in ability to perform, the disregard of party principles, the charge of Senatorial bribery, the doing of acts diametrically opposed to party custom and principle, the distorting of facts to suit sectional campaigns, the bolstering up of crippled and ruined politicians for policy sake, knowing that as a row of bricks when one falls all are gone, and lastly the jim-jammed condition of the fallen prophet, all conspire to weaken faith in the great democratic party and contribute to the success of the Republicans this fall.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Correspondent.

Washington, July 30, 1894.

The free traders publicly bluster quite as loudly as they did a week ago as to the House conferees holding out for free raw materials until the Senators are compelled to surrender, but their private talk and acting tells another story. Mr. Cleveland has discovered that he could not dictate to Democratic Senators in matters affecting the welfare of thousands of citizens of the States they represent, and he is said to deeply regret that he allowed the advice of Don Dickinson, the Michigan rainbow chaser, to outweigh that of Secretary Carlisle, who advised him not to send that letter. He hasn't changed his mind about free coal for the benefit of the Whitney syndicate; free iron for the Carnegie crowd, and protection for the sugar trust, but he has found out that he went the wrong way to get this unique combination of "tariff reform." He wants them as bad as ever, and some way he is willing to see all tariff legislation fail rather than not to get them, but he regrets having jumped on those who know how and do not hesitate to fight back.

Although the Conferees held their first recorded meeting today since the bill was, on Friday last, sent back to conference without instructions by the Senate, the democratic conferees spent all day Saturday and Sunday in trying to batch up the differences between the house and Senate, but as no satisfactory answer has yet been found to the ultimatum of the Senators—"take the bill as it is or you'll get nothing"—the status is unenanged. Some of the shrewdest observers are convinced that victory for the Senate bill is assured, and that the time of the democratic bosses is now principally taken up with arranging a series of more or less confusing changes in the bill, which shall make it seem that concessions were made on both sides, or as one man puts it: "finding a soft place for Cleveland to fall on." The House conferees are individually willing to hold out against the Senate, but the democrats of the House generally are not willing to keep up the fight, and they have plainly shown their disinclination to fight Mr. Cleveland's battle for him.

Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle are doing their best to defeat the bill which provides that immigrants shall be inspected by U. S. Consuls, before being allowed to start for this country and which was recently passed by the House and is now before the Senate Immigration committee. The principal ground for their opposition, according to their chief spokesman, Mr. Stump, U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, is that the bill, if it became a law, would stop all immigration. That argument will hardly defeat the bill, as there are meny who believe that immigration ought to be stopped for a time, anyway. Representative Stone, of Pa., the author of the bill, and by whose shrewd management it was engineered through the House in spite of the opposition of the chairman of the House committee on Immigration, thinks it will be just the law that is needed; that it would shut out the undesirable, giving us only the class of immigrants who are always welcome in all countries.

Mr. Cleveland seems to have little difficulty in controlling the actions of democratic members of the House Only the other day the democratic members of the House committee on Commerce were insisting upon the necessity for the adoption of the resolution authorizing that committee to make an investigation of the recent strikes, because they did not consider the law under which Mr. Cleveland appointed the investigating commission broad enough to furnish the necessary authority. Mr. Cleveland gave the chairman of that committee a hint that he thought one investigation enough, and straightway the democrats on the committee began to talk about the clashing that would be caused by two investigations and to indicate very plainly that the resolution was dead. Mr. C. would doubtless be willing to pay largely for a recipe that would enable him to control the Senators as easily.

No finer bit of sarcasm was ever got off on the floor of the Senate, than when Senator Vandersom sent a fan to Senator Vilas, just before his name was called on the vote to instruct the Senate conferees to recede from the differential duty on refined sugar, to hide his face while he voted against a motion he had orgionally made himself and had only withdrawn after two lengthy and exciting democratic caucuses. He certainly must have felt like hiding his face when he voted for the sugar trust after having posed before the country as one of its most determined opponents. Senator Stewart's refusal to vote prevented the striking out of the differential duty.

The Senate Investigating committee is at a standstill because of its inability to get hold of one Battershall, a man who is said to have taken the orders of Senators for the purchase of sugar trust stock. As soon as Battershall found out that he was wanted and ascertained that he would be made to tell all he knew or to go to jail, he took himself out of the country; at any rate he cannot be found, and rumor says he was supplied with money enough, by those who would be injured by his testimony, to make his trip a long and pleasant one.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON VI, THIRD QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, AUG. 5.

Text of the Lesson, Mark i, 1-11—Memory Verses, 9-11—Golden Text, Mark i, 11. Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." This is the gospel specially of service. In it we are reminded of the words, "Behold, I will bring forth my Servant, the Branch!" while "Behold, the Man whose name is the Branch!" is seen more clearly in Luke's gospel (Zech. iii, 8; vi, 12). Here Jesus is the patient servant and sacrifice for others, spending and being spent to serve the sons of men. This gospel is written that the same life of unwearied service may be in some measure reproduced in us (II Cor. iv, 11), but as we are in this first verse introduced to the Son of God so we must be sons of God before we can serve God. "Let my son go that he may serve me," said the Lord of Israel (Ex. iv, 23).

2. "As it is written in the prophets, Behold, I send my messenger before Thy face, which shall prepare Thy way before thee!" The whole story of His sufferings and glory is written in the prophets (I Pet. i, 11; Luke xxiv, 25-27). They also spake of the heralds who should precede Him, John the Baptist, in the spirit and power of Elijah before his first coming, and Elijah himself before his second coming (Compare Mal. iv, 5; Luke i, 17; Matt. xvii, 10-13. As to preparing His way, every believer can, in a measure, be His messenger to do that. What an honor to be sent of Him in His name!

3. "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make His paths straight." When John was asked if he was the Christ or Elijah or the prophet, he said that he was neither, but only a voice proclaiming the Christ (John i, 23). He sought no honors for himself, but rejoiced to decrease that Christ might increase (John iii, 29, 30).

4. "John did baptize in the wilderness and preach the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." A sample of his preaching may be found in Math. iii, 7-12, and Luke iii, 7-15. He made it plain that unless their lives afterward manifested that they had become new creatures their baptism would amount to nothing. One of the last commands of Christ was that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem (Luke xxiv, 17).

5. "And there went out unto him all the land of Judæa, and they of Jerusalem, and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan, confessing their sins." There must be a sense of sin, a true conviction of sin, and the deeper the better, before any one will come to Christ, for He came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance. This is the work of the Holy Spirit (John xvi, 8, margin), and He uses the word and the lives of believers. In Acts v, 31; xi, 18, Christ is said to give or grant repentance.

6. "And John was clothed with camel's hair, and with a girdle of a skin about his loins, and he did eat locusts and wild honey." Thus was Elijah clothed (II Kings i, 8), and, as to locusts, they were among the creatures which God had permitted Israel to eat (Lev. xi, 22). John was certainly not extravagant in the matter of food and raiment. What a contrast was Isaac, who loved Esau because of his venison and would bless him only in connection therewith (Gen. xxv, 28; xxvii, 3, 4). Jesus has taught us not to think too much about either food or raiment (Math. iv, 4; vi, 25), but has assured us that if we make His kingdom and His righteousness our first concern He will see to all our need in that direction (Math. vi, 33).

7. "And preached, saying, There cometh one mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose." John sought not to attract people to himself, but to the Lamb of God, whom he came to herald. He had no ambition to make himself a name, but only to honor Him of whom he said, "He must increase, but I must decrease" (John iii, 30). He sought not great things for himself (Jer. xlv, 5,) but his watchword was "Not I" (Gal. ii, 20; I Cor. xv, 10).

8. "I indeed have baptized you with water, but He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost." Both Matthew and Luke add "and with fire" (Math. iii, 11; Luke iii, 16), which fire seems, from the context, to refer to the judgments of His second coming as King and Son of Man. As the servant, which He is peculiarly in Mark. He does not speak of fire. But how much we do need to be filled with the Spirit—in fact, it is a command laid upon us, and as much a command as not to be drunken (Eph. v, 18). Then what a comfort to know that He, who is our Saviour, Brother, Friend, is the one who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost (John i, 33). We need not think we must beg and entreat Him, but simply ask Him (Luke xi, 13).

9. "And it came to pass in those days that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized of John in Jordan." In Luke iii, 23, it is written that He was about 30 years of age. In Math. iii, 4, 5, it is said that at first John forbade Him because of John's greater need to be baptized of Him, but Jesus said, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." He humbled Himself from heaven down to the manger of Bethlehem, and the home in Nazareth, and the life of rejection, even to Gethsemane and Golgotha, all for us, and surely it is becoming in us to humble ourselves for Him, yet it seems strange to say so, for, whereas He actually came down from great glory, we, being nothing, have nothing to come down from but sinful pride.

10. "And straightway coming up out of the water He saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon him." Here in this gospel we meet the first "immediately," used about 80 times in the New Testament, and 40 times in this gospel, and 11 times in this chapter, sometimes translated "anon" or "forthwith." It is the word for a good servant. The opened heavens make us think of Ezek. i, Math. iii, John i, Acts vii and x, Rev. iv and xix, in each of which chapters heaven is opened and always concerning Christ or His church. The Spirit coming as a dove makes us think of the dove that found no rest except in the ark while the waters of judgment were on the earth. Jesus, the true ark, is the only place where the Spirit can rest fully. If we are filled with the Spirit, we will rest only in Jesus.

11. "And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." See also chapter ix, 7, where the same testimony was given at the transfiguration. In John viii, 29, Jesus says, "I do always those things that please the Father," and in Rom. xv, 3, it is said, "Even Christ pleased not himself." Since the Father is well pleased with Jesus, when we are well pleased with Jesus and accept and abide in Him, God is well pleased with us for Jesus' sake. Let us abide in Him (I John, ii, 28).

Business Women.

In her admirable sketch in Woman's Progress Miss Lenore D. Monfgomery criticises some aspects of theorizing upon business women. She makes a neat distinction when she says: "Men are too prone to look upon the successful women whom they know as 'exceptions.' It is seldom that the woman is exceptional; it is frequent that her circumstances have been. When this has passed, and a young woman can enter any and every employment with the same freedom that a young man can, it will help to bring about such a mended condition of affairs that we shall rub our eyes and exclaim, 'Why did we not think of this before?'

"All that is now needed is for women to help themselves, and they will find that business men will gladly help them. There is such a freedom in thinking for one's self, acting for one's self, earning for one's self and spending for one's self, that it is well worth the hard effort that must first be made in clearing away the mists that hide these things from view. No life in this world ever becomes entirely easy and always pleasant. The most successful life has unsuccessful days, but growth and prosperity will attend the steps of the business woman if she be honest and earnest in her work."

Hood's Saved My Life

I Can Honestly Say This

"For years I was in a very serious condition with catarrh of the stomach, bowels and bladder.

Mr. W. R. Young, Potter's Mills, Pa.

I suffered intensely from dyspepsia, and in fact was a miserable wreck, merely a skeleton. I seemed to go from bad to worse. I really wished I was dead. I had no rest day or night. I did not know what to do. I had taken so much medicine of the wrong kind that it had poisoned me, and my finger nails began to turn black and come off. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had faith in the medicine, and it did more for me than all prescriptions. I have gradually regained perfect health, am entirely free from catarrh of the bowels, and pain in my back. My recovery is simply marvelous." W. R. YOUNG, Potter's Mills, Pa.

ORDER of PUBLICATIGN.

Elizabeth Pratt, vs. Wm. B. Attix, Amy Hubbard, Edna Hubbard, Carlton Attix.	In the Orphans' Court for Talbot County In Equity.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain property in Easton, Talbot County, Md., of which Mary H. Attix, late of Talbot county, Md., died, seized and possessed; for the payment of her debts. The bill states that the said Mary H. Attix was in her life time indebted unto Elizabeth Pratt of Wash., D. C., in the sum of $[illegible] on her open accounts, dated January 10, 1892 and March 10, 1892, that the said Mary H. Attix being so indebted to the said Elizabeth Pratt, and also unto other persons in several sums of money, and having Real and Personal Property of considerable value, departed this life on or about July, 1892, intestate, and leaving her husband, William B. Attix and her three infant children, viz., Amy Hubbard, and Edna Hubbard, who reside in Talbot county, Md., and Carlton Attix, who resides with its father, Wm. B. Attix, in the State of Delaware. That letters of administration were granted by the Orphans' Court for Talbot county, upon the personal estate of the said Mary H. Attix, to the said Wm. B. Attix that said personal estate is insufficient to pay and discharge all of the debts due and owing by the said intestate, at the time of her death, and that any deficiency thereon ought to be supplied by the sale of her real estate or so much thereof as may be necessary for the payment of her just debts.

It is, thereupon this 24th day of July, A. D. 1894, ordered by the Orphans' Court for Talbot county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Talbot county once in each of four successive weeks before the 28th day of August, A. D., 1894, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this court in person or by solicitor on or before the 4th day of Sept. next, to show cause if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.
