Twenty-fourth cross-interrogatory. How do you know that the word "twentieth," in the first line of the first page, was written on a different day from the day on which the same word was written in the acknowledgment?

24 answer. Only from my recollection, my memory may not be clear, but that is my interpretation of it to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Twenty-fifth cross-interrogatory. Who was present when you wrote the word "twentieth," in the acknowledgment?

25 answer. I don't recollect, sir.

Twenty-sixth cross-interrogatory. Who was present when you wrote the word "twentieth," on the first line of the first page?

26 answer. I don't recollect, sir.

Twenty-seventh cross-interrogatory. When did you write the words, "Mary Joseph," on the first page of the paper?

27 answer. I think it was the day, the time he demanded the paper - my recollection of it; anyway it was the same time I made the erasure of the other name - the same day, I think.

Twenty-eighth cross-interrogatory. Whom do you mean by "he," in your last answer?

28 answer. Mr. Willson.

Twenty-ninth cross-interrogatory. Did you write the words, "Mary Joseph," on the first page of this paper at the same time that you wrote the words, "Mary Joseph," in the acknowledgment?

29 answer. I think so, sir.

Thirtieth cross-interrogatory. Then how did it happen that you wrote the words, "Mary Joseph," on the first page at the same time that you wrote the same words in the acknowledgment, and yet wrote the word "twen-tieth," on the first page on a different day from that on which you wrote the word "twentieth" in the acknowledgment?

30 answer. It was supposed the party would come in the same day, that is my recollection of it - he was to come in when he came home.

Thirty-first cross-interrogatory. ——?

—— ——. If he had have come in, I should certainly have erased the afterwards after the twen-tieth - erased the word "twentieth," and put whatever day it was finished upon; that is my interpretion; of course I might be.

Thirty-second cross-interrogatory. Who was the party who was expected to come in?

32 answer. It must have been Mr. Thomas E. Hubbard, as I see he has acknowledged the paper. Thomas T. Hubbard, I think it is; I think it is "T."

(Solicitor of the complainants requested the commissioner to note, that at this point the witness looked at what was written on the fourth page of the deed) -

- as to having erased the name, I am not certain of the fact, only from the acknowledgment he had.

Thirty-third cross-interrogatory. Did you mean to say in your examination-in-chief, that when you went to Mrs. Hubbard's house at about half-past nine O'clock in the morning of the twentieth of August, the parties there assembled waited some time for the arrival of this person whom you describe as Thomas E. or Thomas T. Hubbard?

33 answer. I thought so, sir.

Thirty-fourth cross-interrogatory. Why did you think so?
