ceived from me, said distribution of my estate would not be such as I intend. It is, therefore, my will, and I do so devise and direct, and all the devisees and bequests or benefits claimed under this, my will, are to be taken and construed subject to this qualification and condition, that is to say, that in the event of said parties, or either of them, claiming any benefit or title whatsoever, under and by virtue of either of the said wills of my brother, John Oliver, or of William Knight, that then and in that case the said parties or party so claiming such benefit or title, shall forever forfeit all right, title, interest and benefit, in and under this, my last will and testament. And the estate, property or money so forfeited, shall go and be held by my said trustees and their successors in trust, to and for the equal use and benefit of all and every of my other children who may not have so forfeited, (with the exception, however of my son, Henry, who is to receive no benefit from any such forfeiture,) their heirs and assigns forever, as tenants-in-common, and not as joint tenants; subject, however, as to the part or share which may thus accrue by such forfeiture to either of my said daughters or their children or descendants, or to be held by my said trustees and their successors in trust, and shall be subject to each and every of the conditions, limitations, restrictions and requests in every particular, and to the same extent as are hereinbefore attached and imposed on the original portion or share hereinbefore attached and devised for the use of such daughters and their children and descendants. And should either of the parties making such claim, and subjecting themselves thereby to this forfeiture, be the child or children of my daughter, Margaret Colt, then and in that case my will is, in addition to said forfeiture, that whatever may be received by such child or children under and by virtue of such claim my estate, shall be deducted from the amount or part devised in this will for the benefit of my said daughter, Margaret, and my said trustees or their successors, are hereby directed to make such deduction, and to hold the amount thereof in trust, to and for the equal use and benefit of my three children, Charles Oliver, Thomas Oliver and Emily Gibbes, their heirs and assigns forever; anything herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding. And in order that my executors may be enabled to settle my estate as soon as possible, and without any unnecessary delay, it is my wish that any of my children or sons-in-law, their executors, administrators or assigns, who may be supposed by my executors entitled to any bequest or legacy by or under either of the said wills of my said brother, John Oliver, or of William Knight, shall in consideration of the benefits they have respectively received from me during my life, and also in consideration of what is devised or bequeathed to them by this will, execute within twelve months from the time of my death, a written release or discharge for all right or benefit which they may be so supposed entitled to, or under either of the said wills of my brother or William Knight. And any of my grand-children, their executors or administrators, who may by my executors be supposed entitled to any legacy or bequest by or under either of the said wills of my brother or William Knight,
