To those who are familiar with men and methods in Talbot county there is no doubt that Mr. Preston B. Spring, William H. Adkins, Esq., and other representative Democrats are honest and sincere in a determined effort to make, so far as lies in their power, the political party to which they belong better, purer and more worthy in every respect the confidence and support of the people. This is a noble and praiseworthy effort on their part. It denotes citizenship of the highest order, and gives interest in politics a superior tone to that which ordinarily dominates party affairs. If these gentlemen have asked office of their party with a view to personal emolument derived therefrom, or other recognition at the hands of the managers even though it be but "empty honors," we have never been so informed. Upon the contrary we believe they are smarting under no such disappointment, but as expressed above, are actuated by a sincere desire to better the condition, wipe out the evils and otherwise improve the character and general tone of the Democratic party in this county. To successfully do this they are obliged of necessity to oppose to a certain extent men and methods which have represented this party both in the past and present—and as methods cannot be changed without changing the men who advocate and promote them, we find the gentlemen referred to, in our opinion, upon this ground hostile to the regular Democratic organization or "managers" in Talbot county. We wish them success.

There are other well known and prominent citizens of high standing and character—good Democrats, in this county who may be quite as anxious to cleanse the party of impurities as Mr. Spring, but who have never been so out-spoken in this particular line of work. They wish the party maintain a high standard of excellence, but if it has failed through various reasons, it is a condition to be regretted, but left to remedy itself as best it may without for one moment impugning the motives or censuring those managers who were responsible for the condition.

These gentlemen have never had any great fault to find if any, heretofore, with the recognized party leaders—but have been regarded as with them rather than against them. It so happens, though, that the failure of Senator Charles H. Gibson to gratify all his friends by placing them on the sunny side of official patronage, has caused quite a number to withdraw from that distinguished citizen the support heretofore so freely accorded him, and array themselves with the opposition to "men and methods"—(the leaders or regulars) above referred to.

At a recent meeting representating Democrats of the "pure and holy order" in party affairs, we find associated with them Democrats of the other class who are not finding fault with the short-comings of the party, but certain leaders whom they wish to dethrone on account of personal grieviances.

So elements of reform, revenge' resentment and disappointment all got together under the one roof to devise plans from motives herein before given, to wipe out "the regulars" at the coming primaries. This singleness of sentiment but hotchpot of inspiration might have accomplished decided results had the principle of "united, we stand—divided, we fall" been carefufly guarded. But the motives which lent inspiration to the meeting being so vastly different, "reform" found the atmosphere uncongenial when she attempted results too sweeping in character, and as a consequence it was the old case of a "house divided against itself."

We admire Mr. Spring's manly stand against bribery at elections, but he might have known, and perhaps did, that his resolution at such a time would cause something of a breeze.

A MOST remarkable communication appears in last Saturday's Democrat, promising terrible punishment to certain Democrats for daring to vote against Mr. Pascault at the late town election. The threats are so abundant and far reaching in effect, that it is a wonder a "Democrat" knows the meaning of free citizenship. The author might well read the Constitution of the country in which he resides, and if still not satisfied, seek a climate where his "blood and thunder" vaporings would receive more consideration.

BROWN CHEMICAL CO. BALTIMORE, MD.

ADDICKS and his three or four henchmen have made their own political coffins in Delaware. The sooner the funeral is over the better will it be for Republicanism in that State. At a largely attended meeting of the Young Men's Republican Club in Wilmington Tuesday night a resolution was adopted to the effect that the unprincipled, corrupt and selfish course pursued by John Edward Addicks has marked him as unworthy of the recognition of the Republican party, or to be longer considered a member of that organization.

THE TIME HAS COME.

The time has come when the truth should be told about the Democratic managers. The party must be dissasociated from the men who have brought disgrace and shame upon it, if it expects to make a successful appeal for the support of the people next November. The effect of Mr. Rayner's attack on the machine has been to excite the bosses to renewed activity. There is no longer any attempt to conceal their purpose of controlling nominations. The humility of a few months ago has been cast aside and the bosses are openly and arrogantly in the field. Unless the rank and file of the party take matters in their own hands, the alternative will be presented at the fall election of voting for a ticket which will mean the continuance of the Gorman-Rasin machine, with all that that signifies at Washington, Annapolis and in Baltimore city, or of remaining away from the polls and allowing the State to step into the Republican column.

There is no question more important in this campaign than that of bossism. A system which has put in the Senate of the United States as the representative of the Democracy in Maryland the most potent ally of the Republicans, the friend and champion of the trusts and the open and secret enemy of the Democratic President, has become odious to the people and they are resolved upon its destruction. The people of Baltimore city are no less resolute in their determination to smash boss rule in municipal affairs.

The fight is not against the Democratic party but against those who have used and abused it. It is a question of a thorough house cleaning within the party or a crushing defeat at the hands of the enemy.—Balto. Evening News. (Dem.)

THE Philadelphia Ledger says:

"Both the great political organizations are divided upon the currency question, but they are divided with a difference. An overwhelming majority of the Republican party have not only opinions, but unalterably fixed convictions of the necessity of maintaining its traditional policy in defense of an honest, safe currency; in the Democratic party the majority is upon the other side of the question, especially in the West and in those states in which the Democracy are numerically the strongest. In the Middle and Eastern states the Repubcans are virtually solid for sound, safe money, and generally intelligent Democrats sympathize with them."

And So It Continues.

MR. EDITOR: They tell me that revolution is rife in the democratic household; that two Anti-Gorman meetings have been held in the Hub of the county, resulting in the perfecting of an organization in opposition to the partisan powers that be, that have been and ever will be supremely dictatorial during its existence in the State; that in the democratic encampment in Talbot, two camp-fires will soon be aglow, burning fiercely with the heat of opposition. Could one assume the responsibility of offering a single word of admonition, he might say: My political friends, look well, lest in November next your political rush-lights will all be burnt out, with nothing for any of you, but the dead cinders of defeat. All this work going on within a few miles of our sequestered little hamlet, and we the "yeomanry," the raw product of rurality in blissful ignorance of it all until days and sometimes a week after such momentous occasions. Imagine, if you can, the happiness of a professional clod-hopper absorbed in the exquisit sense of a mere tranquil existence.

I know not whether some deceiving spirit haunts my place of abode, or whether it be the warm celestial fancy of my own heart, which makes all nature around me appear like a glimpse of a faith-picture of paradise. Never expecting any political recognition or preferment, one can serenely rest in his rural retreat, await developments, and calmly listen to and read the reports of the political battle as it progresses in our county metropolis. O, Mr. Editor, I treat my ever misgiving heart with the tenderness a little tot treats her kitten, or a love-sick swain the divine empress of his soul; gratifying its every desire, whenever it is in my power to do so. If, at any time, the hours drag wearily along, and the simplicity of such a life becomes monotonous, I dispel the ennui by taking up and re-reading all the late deliverances of the silverites of Easton, especially the ex-Comptroller's. If I continue indulging in this soul-transporting pastime, I may be made a convert like the gentleman from Trappe.

Then I shall wish I could be metamorphosed into a veritable silvery beetle, and flit hither and thither o'er his silvery sea of thought, and find my whole existence therein. I have spent many precious hours in persuading my poor heart to have faith in the political stability of sundry prominent men. But to my plaintive pleadings it has ever responded; men are by nature false. Listen with not too much credulity to their silvery songs, be they ever so alluring, enticing, sweet as an angel's whisper in the bright joyous dream of sleeping innocence. Happy indeed must be the man, who, apparently without any effort on his part, can produce so many "facts upon silver," showing the world's production of two metals "by periods." Just at the opportune time some "gentleman" tenders those chunks of incontrovertible facts which "knocks into smithereens all the theory" of the gold bugs. Truly fortunate, must be the man who can escape the exasperating, the mystifying, stupefying labor of making deep research into the labyrinthian depths of prosy statistics, having all the necessary facts and figures obsequiously presented by his grateful proselytes. Twice blest must he be who has letters pouring in from "different parts of the country commending my views upon silver as one of the money metals." Maybe, these all so solid-seeming facts have been gleaned from "Coin's Financial School," and the ex-Comptroller's imagination has played an important part in furnishing some of the absurdities appearing in several of his recent declarations. It might not be inopportune to here suggest that he glanced over Coin's Financial Fool, a little pamphlet published by the Reform Club of New York City. When I think seriously of all the aforementioned honors having been thrust upon one man and my friend Major and myself not to have any share in it, my heart becomes imbittered; a feeling of the rankest jealousy boils up from the nether depth of my soul. It is too much. The strongest must sink under the weight and grandeur of so much distinction. A thought hunts me just now, and I wonder if the ex-Comptroller has not touched the wrong Spring—Prest-on, recoils with so much force and severity. Mr. Turner apparently finds much gratification in exhibiting official figures to show the excess of the world's production of gold over silver during that period from 1850 to 1892 inclusive. If he will turn to the official statement of the world's production of the two metals during the closing years of his favorite period; that is, from 1882 to 1892 inclusive, he will observe that the excess of the production of silver over gold was upwards of $300,000,000. It was during these eleven years that the white metal underwent its greatest decline in price. During that period, with one exception (1884) its yearly production enormously increased, undoubtedly caused its depreciation in value; yet the sensibilities of the silver gods in Easton were never fully awakened to the enormity of the "crime committed" against their ideal money, until about twenty years after its perpetration. The rudely jumbled, conflicting ideas that escape from the pen of a nom de plume scribble are not worthy of notice. They seldom bind themselves into distinct filaments, and are not always attached to the rock foundation of facts. Hence he can sail in with free lance, and cut right and left without fear of molestation. Who knows, however. but what he would accept the most severe lampooning with a gracious smile, happy in the thought that he is making a little noise in his circumscribed sphere. May be, then, it is more by accident than otherwise that he sometimes hews closely to the line of truth. A little more than a year and a half ago I ran as a sort of third rate coacher with my champion for the State senatorial prize from this district. My political "sprunter" was distanced before he reached the three-quarter pole in the primaries, I am not now reluctant to admit that at that time some faint tone of sadness was breathed through my heart over his defeat. Since that time my ideal statesman has exhibited so many vagaries, appeared so capricious, politically coquetting with those who were then his supporters with the consummate skill of a flower goddess incarnate, or some dreamy hazel-eyed amber-locked baloon-sleeved maided, that my faith in the political infallibility of some of our local leaders has not been strenghtened. How well I remember reading an editorial in an Easton paper about that time; also the comments of the metropolitan press thereon. Great Scott! if the "deadly parallel lines" were now produced. This same paper now editorially singing its hallelujah chorus to the silvery songs of the ex-Comptroller. Du Himmel! when I think of all this, I am silent, and sit thinking of the changes that come not by time but in time.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

The Baltimore Herald, aside with getting out daily one of the newsiest papers of the State, publishes a Sunday edition that is certainly a gem. It contained 113 splendid illustrations, and this is on the par of similar numbers issued every Sunday.

The Evening Capitol, of Annapolis, celebrated its eleventh anniversary on Saturday. The Capitol is the pioneer of daily journals in southern Maryland, and has reached an enviable standard of excellence by years of hard work. Its editor, Bro. Abbott, is one of the best known journalists in the State, and his paper is classed among the most influential in Maryland. We wish The Capitol many more years of prosperity, and if the future is to be judged by the past its prosperity is assured.

HOW SHALL I LOVE YOU?

How shall I love you? I dream all day,
Dear, of a tenderer, sweeter way.
Songs that I sing to you, words that I say,
Prayers that are voiceless on lips that would pray—
These may not tell of the love of my life.
How shall I love you, my sweetheart, my wife?

How shall I love you? Love is the bread
Of life to a woman—the white and the red
Of all the world's roses, the light that is shed
On all the world's pathways, till life shall be dead!
The star in the storm and the strength in the strife.
How shall I love you, my sweetheart, my wife?

Is there a burden your heart must bear?
I shall kneel lowly and lift it, dear.
Is there a thorn in the crown that you wear?
Let it hide in my heart till a rose blossom there.
For grief or for glory—for death or for life,
So shall I love you, my sweetheart, my wife.

NOSE BLEED.

What Causes It In Youth and Later In Life and What to Do.

Bleeding from the nose is caused by the congestion of the lining membrane of the nose.

This congestion may be the result of catarrh, or, more properly, of the diseased condition of the nasal membranes which is due to catarrh, or it may accompany congestion of some organ of the body, as the liver. It may also result from heart disease or even from dyspepsia.

Nose bleed in children is commonly supposed to indicate nothing more than that the child tires easily or is overactive. Yet even these terms express more than is obvious upon a casual reading of the words.

If a child tires easily, or, in other words, if the least overexertion at play or study results in a more or less severe attack of nose bleed, the child must be in a weakened state, while, on the other hand, if he is accustomed to allow his play or his studies so to absorb his interest as to make him forget his fatigue, he is placing an injudicious strain upon his constitution.

In either case he will be benefited by a curtailment of work and an increase in the amount of time allotted for rest until his body is more fully developed. No child's mind can be developed faster than the body except at the expense of health.

Nose bleed occurring in middle life and old age is a more serious thing, as it indicates a graver condition of affairs. It is usually coincident with disease of the liver, heart or kidneys. Its cure is of course dependent upon the restoration of the organs to a normal condition. In elderly persons the disorder sometimes appears to result from weakness, which, in turn, it aggravates.

It is a common saying that, in full blooded persons, an occasional nose bleed is beneficial, and this may in a certain sense be true, inasmuch as the nasal membranes are thus relieved of congestion. But it is safe to say that bleeding from the nose is never anything but a sign of weakness.

The treatment of an attack of nose bleed consists in absolute rest and cool applications to the head. The extremities should be warm. The head should not be held down over a basin, as this favors the flow of blood. One of the simplest and most effectual methods of stopping an ordinary attack is for the person to stand erect, with the head in the usual upright position and the hands extended at length directly over the head.—Youth's Companion.

Tape by the Mile.

At first blush it would not seem likely that electricians would have much use for tape, but as a matter of fact they employ it literally by the ton, especially of late years. The electrical circuits are of wire, and every time a joint is made it is served with tape, or should be, the tape being nearly an inch broad and well impregnated with insulating material to keep the current in and the moisture out. Sometimes, if one looks up at wires in the street, stray ends of loose tape can be seen fluttering in the breeze, like rags from a sore finger. A great deal of electrical machinery is wound up with tape to prevent burn outs, and the street railway companies are wisely fond of liberally wrapping up their car motors in this way. It would, in short, be difficult to find a modern department of electrical work in which tape is not an indispensable and ready means for helping to maintain the integrity and efficiency of the circuits.—Detroit Tribune.

Insurance.

Insurance solicitors can get a point from one of their kind down in Greenwich, Conn., who has hit upon a novel method of securing people to take out policies in his company. He mails a circular to those whom he thinks will insure, stating that, as their time is worth $50 a day, he incloses a check for 15 cents, which will pay for the time consumed in reading the accompanying insurance propositions. He caught one man for $10,000 who would probably never have read the circular but for the accompanying check.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY!

The times are hard, but here is a good show. In the last month I have made $175 selling Climax Dish Washers. I never saw anything take like they do. When any women see me wash the dinner dishes, clean and dry them in one minute, they buy one right away. Anyone can make $6 a day right at home easy. I have not canvassed, so anxious are the people for the Climax they send for them. Write to the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio, and they will send you circulars. It is easy selling what everybody wants to buy. I will make $3,000 this year easy.

Something More to be Considered

A good article is paramount to all else. You do not study your best interests in bringing a portrait because it is "dirt cheap." There are two other essential points, namely a first class likeness—and a No. 1 finish. You say these two features added make a higher figure. True, but in the end the best is the very cheapest. One more thing needs no repetition. If you will take the pains to enquire my prices for Crayon Portraits, and examine the Superior quality of them and latest designs in Frames, I am confident you will leave your small pictures with me. I can't afford to ask for money in advance. First because I am sure my work is correct. Second, I am bound to trust to your integrity from the fact that you entrust to me your valuable pictures in my hands. Now then shall I have your order for a Crayon, Oil Water Color or an India Ink Portrait? Hope so. Come see or write me for prices.
