"PRESIDENT CLEVELAND invariably supports the "regular" nominated Democratic ticket, and the voter who does otherwise makes a false assertion when he claims to be a Cleveland Democrat."—Star.

Brother Smith forgets that last year when Boss Hill was on trial for his political life in New York, and all good democrats had combined with the republicans to smash the machine, President Cleveland did not register even, and of course failed to vote at that election. So Cleveland democrats are not inconsistent, Brother, when they refuse to support a "machine" that is running the State and Cleveland democrats in Talbot have a good precedent for staying from the polls this year. "Be sure you're right Bro. Smith, and then go ahead."

No Excuse.

A Prussian princess, having married the Duke of York—of course not the present duke—resided in England, where she attracted much attention on account of her original way of doing things.

One day, to commemorate the duke's birthday, she gave a ball at his country house and invited his London tradesmen to come to it, sending them 2 guineas apiece to pay carriage hire.

A company of strolling actors begged the duchess to be present at their performance in a barn. She attended and carried all her servants who were Germans.

The next day an itinerant Methodist was to preach a charity sermon in the same barn. She was asked to attend and consented. Her servants, on receiving orders to be present, excused themselves on the ground of not understanding English.

"Oh," replied the duchess, "but you went to the comedy, and you shall go to the sermon."—Youth's Companion.

Sparsely Settled Counties.

Cook county, Minn., is one of the most thinly populated counties in the Union. It had, by the census of 1890, only 5,000 inhabitants, a gain of but 63 in ten years. Bowman county, N. D., had 6 inhabitants, and Sheridan county had but 5. Choteau county had only 8 inhabitants and Martin county 7. Most of these sparsely settled counties of the new states have doubtless gained considerably since 1890, but the sparsely settled counties of Texas are probably little changed in this regard. Lamb county had 4 inhabitants, Parmer 7, Yoakum 4 and Loving 3.—New York Sun.

Explaining It.

Featherstone—How is it, Willie, I was shown into this room? Usually I go into the parlor.

Willie—Sister said the clock in this room was half an hour fast.—Detroit Free Press.

His Gain.

"Mr. Smarte," said the head of the firm, "I happened to overhear your criticisms this morning of the manner in which business is carried on here. You appear to be laboring under a mistaken idea. As a matter of fact, we are not running this house to make money. Not at all. We carry on this business simply as a school for the instruction of young men. But as you seem to know so much more about business than we do it would be only wasting your time to keep you here. The cashier will settle with you. What is our loss is your gain."—Boston Transcript.

A Tip to the Boys.

"One of the sure indications that a man wants to marry you," said a young woman the other night, "is the fact of his coming to see you steadily and sending both flowers and theater tickets rarely. I have discovered that the beau who floods you constantly with these favors can never be taken seriously. That is a rather sad parador tox."—Atlanta Journal.

Tea Biscuit.

It is a mistake to make a large tea biscuit. Properly speaking, a tea biscuit should not be more than 2 inches in diameter and proportionately thick when baked. This gives a delicate, moist, flaky biscuit, which will be cooked through before the outside crust has become hard or overbrown.

THE DEN OF A VOUDOO PRIEST

Who Was The Old "Doctor Sol?"

An African Superstition Practiced In New Orleans, With Hundreds Of Followers.

From Gazette's Special Correspondent.

Returning from a most charming tour over the Sunset Route of the Southern Pacific Railway from San Francisco, stopping a few days at Los Angeles, the beautiful, and San Antonio with its triplex division of the antiquated, the improved and the more elegant modern structures, I arrived promptly on schedule time at the city of New Orleans. I had arranged to spend several weeks there, to study the intermingling of character such as I do not believe could be found in any other city of the world, for variety and intermixture of the Caucasian, the Mongolian, the African, and the several forms, features and dispositions that come by a miscegenated combination of these.

No person can possibly know New Orleans until he has left its beautiful avenues where the palmetto waves and the roses bloom in rich perfume on trellised vines that cover the porches and climb the walls, and spends at least a few days in visiting its haunts along the Orleans canal, goes into the by-streets where live those who in mediocre or poverty are trying to exist, and studies life as seen in the relics of its mixed nationalities, whose ancestry came to New Orleans when Louisiana was like a base ball thrown from France to Spain and back again.

Such a study of character here will reveal a great deal of that grade of illusive reason which is semi-insanity in its mysticisms, full of suspicions and superstitions, especially among the negroes who live in the traditions handed down from the times when their ancestry came as the slaves to be sold in the old French market a hundred years ago. This tendency seems to have grown among these people since they have been released from the environments of slavery, and in the wanton liberties of freedom have in their viens the tracings of the blood of the descendents of the lower grade of the French and Spanish element. Cunning has woven its woof into the warp of superstition, and produced textures of rationalism, mysticism, hypnotism, hypochondria etc., with a disposition to trade on these freaks of intelligence to get a living.

By a pleasant friendship formed with one of the principal officers of the Southern Pacific Company, whose headquarters for its Atlantic division are located in N. Orleans, I have had unusual opportunities for research into what might be termed the covert life of this Franco-Spanish American city—a sort of human alluvion that is a fitting type of the 'batture', or river deposit, by which the soil has been formed upon which today stands this city of New Orleans, and which indeed constitutes the thousands of acres of rich plantations watered by bayous and inlets from lakes Ponchartrain, Borgne and Maurepas.

This friendship with an affinity in fondness for prying into the curious has inducted me into the history of old "Doctor Sol," who was for many years the oracle and great priest of Voudooism in New Orleans, and whose den was daily the haunt of scores of all races whose idolatry to this strange mysticism led them, rich and poor, white and black, to meet on one level of superstition in Doctor Sol's squalid cabin, to have him utter his incantations and practice on them his "Black Art" of healing, or driving away the spirits of evil.

Curiosity made me want to see this man who exerted such a strange fascination upon many far above him in grade of intellect, and I wanted to study the practical trend of the Voudoo charm-breaking and its effect upon diseases, if mayhap, it may cure by its impress upon the imagination and thus through the mental control the physical. This Doctor Sol was living in the Third district, or lower part of the city, on Love street. He was said to possess wonderful healing powers in his hands, and claimed to drive away the spirits of evil which "voudooed" victims, imparting his virtues by the laying on of his hands and by the use of some sort of greasy ointment which he applied to rub the "misery" out of the sufferer.

His house was a shabby-looking double frame dwelling. Our knock was answered by a woman that showed in her negro face the Spanish taint. On being told that Doctor Sol was up and seeing patients, we entered and found a score or more of a mixed assemblage waiting their turn and talking together low and with a sort of awe expressed in their voices and faces that showed how a common superstition can break down the barriers of race prejudice and culture right in the midst of the influences of a Christian civilization in an American city.

One look at old Doctor Sol was all I needed to absolve my mind from any possibility of becoming a Voudoo devottee. His great black avoirdupois, weighing at least 250 pounds was squashed (excuse the word) upon an old box covered with a dilapidated cushion. His limbs were clad in an old pair of jean pants which slouched down upon a worn out pair of carpet slippers that only partly covered a pair of stockingless feet. On his upper body was a cotton undershirt, open low down in the neck, and his arms were bare above the elbows, while above an ox-thick neck was a coal black face and a kinky woolly head. By his side on the table, were innumerable bottles, and on the floor around him were cans and jugs, and a keg of his grease bought no doubt from the butcher on the opposite side of Love street.

I will reserve a description of our interview for another letter, for this is not the season of the year to weary the reader with long stories.

PASTIME.

Blotches And Pimples

indicate inactivity of the skin. They show that the pores are clogged and that poisonous refuse matter has been denied an egress. The accumulation of this matter under the skin shows in red lumps, blotches and possibly in pimples.

Foster's German Army and Navy Cure

softens the impeding matter, penetrates the pores and draws the poison out. All the time it is soothing the inflammation caused by the congested state, and finally leaves the skin smooth, clear, active and healthy. It is absolutely the best and most efficacious skin medicine in the world. Its action on the skin is perfectly in accord with science, but its curative effect is almost miraculous in its quickness and thoroughness.

It has cured innumerable stubborn cases of pimples, blotches, ring worm, tetter, eczema, dandruff, itch and salt rheum. It will cure the worst kind of itching piles.

50 cents. Druggists.
