AFTER THE FEAST.

What A Member Of The W. C. T. U. Has To Say Of The Easton Convention.

EDITOR GAZETTE:

Our W. C. T. U. Convention is now over and I trust all who were privileged to attend the meetings, have been enlighted, and instructed in this great work, and are now willing if not to join our organization, to at least give us their approval, and encourage us as far as lies in their power, in our effort to overthrow this great evil of intemperance.

While our meetings have been deeply interesting and the capabilities of woman fully demonstrated to every intelligent mind, and while we listened with pride to our sisters eloquent words, we felt that still greater efforts must be made in practical work; we must be more diligent in searching out those places of iniquity which entise our young men to ruin and drag them down, until they are shut out from every position of honor and trust.

The standard of morals is constantly being raised in all our greatest enterprises, when positions are being asked for, and even the whiskey dealers themselves, will not employ in a responsible place one of their own victims. The Rev. Mr. Sutton, in his address, delivered on the night when speeches of welcome were extended to our delegates, touched a chord in the hearts of many by his practical suggestions which we hope will bring forth good results. This is the first word uttered at a public meeting, in condemnation of an existing evil in our local option town.

Plenty of proofs can be brought that intoxicating drinks can be bought, even without perscription at some of our drug stores—and if there were no other proof, that unmistakable odor which always prevades the air, of these degrading places, is sufficient to convince all who pass by them, that their sins have found them out and sooner or later they must be betrayed.

Better to be a poor harmless tramp, begging from door to door for daily bread, than dealing out that which drags down our young men, body and soul. Wives, mothers, sisters, wait not until this insidious enemy enters your own home, before you feel aroused to action or sympathy in this great cause but cast aside your pride of position in society or your church, and come forth strengthened by right and work as far as lies in your power for the pulling down of this great evil in our town and land.

SHE WRITES TO GORMAN.

Miss Eugenia Cook, Of Easton, Wants Him To Meet Her In Debate.

Miss Cleora Eugenia Cooke, aged seventeen years, of this town, has issued a challenge to Senator Gorman, in which she says in part: "I ask you, are you afraid to meet a seventeen-year-old girl in open debate concerning the supreme question now before the voters of Maryland? This question is whether they are willing longer to submit to the grasping rule of your wicked hand."

Miss Cooke is the daughter of Mr. D. A. Cooke, the people's party candidate for sheriff of Talbot county. She was a pupil of the Easton High School. Miss Cooke made a special study of elocution, and has been using her abilities in that line on the stump in Talbot during the past two weeks. She has addressed meetings in halls and out of doors. She has a clear penetrating voice, and has no trouble in making herself heard by the largest audiences. When not accompanied by her father Miss Cooke has her meetings arranged by Prof. Ira Guilford, a friend of the family. Arrangements are being made to have her address a Baltimore audience.

Remember The Registration.

Don't fail to register. If you do you will be sorry for it on election day when you realize that your own neglect has deprived you of a vote. The officers of registration will sit again in October. If you are notified that your name has been noted to be stricken off don't fail to appear in person before the registrar at the time named in the notice; if you do not appear before him and show why you should not be dropped, you will lose your vote. If you want to be transferred, go to the registrar and get the transfer yourself. If you want to be registered on a transfer take it yourself to the officer of registration. He cannot register you unless you go before him. If you are not registered you cannot vote. See notice in another column.

Republicans Victorious.

The Democrat Supervisors Back Down.

AND NAME THE RIGHT MEN.

Were Afraid of The Mandamus.—Their Cry of "Test Case" Is Mournfully Swallowed.

The Democratic Election Supervisors of Talbot have backed down and granted to the Republican supervisors the right to appoint the men whom they wanted appointed, but whom they refused to appoint some weeks ago when the election officers were named.

The Board of Supervisors of Elections met in Easton Saturday and appointed Clayton Mullikin ballot-clerk in place of D. Carroll of Trappe; Robert Rastall Walker in place of Millard Cobourn of Easton and Thomas B. Leaverton a judge in place of Alex. Fountain of Easton.

This settles the wrangle between the two parties and the court did not convene Monday to investigate the charges made against the supervisors. All of the commissions were signed by the entire board, and leaves no loop-hole to get out.

Last week a meeting of the Democratic Supervisors was held, at which a number of the party leaders were present. The whole matter was considered by them and it was decided not to retract from the step already taken.

The democrats rejoiced at this and practically regarded the battle as won. The Democratic press of the town claimed that they only wanted a test case, that a proper construction of the law could be had. This construction they already know and their excuse was lame.

But on Saturday last, however, the Board met again and the Democratic majority declared their intention of appointing the men whom the Republican supervisors had asked for. Naturally the Republicans had expected nothing else and consequently were prepared for it, but not so the Democrats. Some of them raved and kicked; declared that it was a cowardly back down, and that the majority supervisors had no backbone.

These and many other things were said but all to no purpose, for the Republicans have secured what they asked for and there the matter rests. This only goes to show that the Democrats realize they cannot bulldose the Republicans, and all their tricks will be met with a sharp rebuff.

The Baltimore News, of Monday, a good Democratic paper, which is now arrayed against Gormanism has this to say of the matter:

"The Talbot Democratic Supervisors have backed down. They have appointed the Republicans whom their party wanted for election officers. At first these Supervisors claimed that they were within the law, and were acting on the "legal advice" of the Hons. Peter J. Campbell and James Henry Preston, Speaker to the House of Delegates and "counsel to the Board of Election Supervisors of Baltimrre City." When mandamus proceedings were instituted, however, the Talbot Supervisors concluded to overlook the "legal advice." It is understood that the judges of the Second circuit, the chief of whom is Judge John M. Robinson of the Court of Appeals, are on record in a similar case, and that they would have granted the mandamus. The Talbot Democrats made a bluff about upholding their view of the law in the Court of Appeals, and they talked very bravely, but in the end ignominiously surrendered. The Democratic methods of conducting elections in Talbot are not above reproach, anyhow, and the honest men of both parties there, as elsewhere in the State, have determined that the coming election shall be a fair one."

SOMEWHAT PERSONAL.

The Names of Visitors Here and a Other Points.

James Wright has accepted a position in Philadelphia.

Miss Isabel Trippe of Baltimore is visiting Miss Nan Taylor.

Mrs. Patterson of New York is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Warfield.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of E. P. Sangston, a former Eastonian on the 9th instant.

C. A. Chipley and family have removed from the Anchorage to their Philadelphia home for the winter.

Cards are out announcing the wedding of Mr. Percival Mullikin of Trappe to Miss Ardie Barnes to take place on Oct 16.

Commissioner N. E. Clark and wife have returned home after quite an extensive trip through New Jersey and New York.

Misses Annie H. Smith and Minnie Fleckenstien, two handsome young ladies of Easton, visited Miss Laura Sullivan, Saturday.—Talbot Times.

Hamilton L. Roe has the official score-card privilege at the Delaware State Fair this week. He will also be the starting judge at the Frederick Fair races next week. Mr. Roe is making quite a reputation in this line.

The annual re-union of the First Eastern Shore Regiment Maryland Volunteers was held in the Town Hall on Thursday and was an occassion of much pleasure to those participating. Col. J. C. Mullikin of Easton was one of the prominent speakers.

Mr. Fisher Kemp, late with the Shannahan & Wrightson Hardware Co., is now with the Peerless machine works at the depot. Mr. Kemp is very popular with the farmers and understands their needs in time of trouble with machinery.

Easton Musical Talent.

In an account of the W. C. T. U. Convention held in Easton last week, published in the North East Star, the following appears; One of the most pleasing features of the convention each evening was the music jointly rendered by the M. E. and M. P. Church choir led by Mr. Jas. A. Spence. These choirs contain some of the best musical talent of Easton. It will be gratifying to the choirs to know that the ladies considered it as fine if not the finest music they ever had at their conventions.

Born On A Steamer.

A baby girl was born on the steamer Gratitude on the steamer's trip to Baltimore. The mother said her name was 'Mary Smith' and that she lived in Easton. She got on the boat at Centreville. She was attended by Dr. Rebecca Wright, of Chicago, who happened to be among the passengers. On the arrival of the boat in Baltimore Dr. W. B Burch was called to attend the mother and sent her to the Maternite Hospital.

Peculiarity In Mouths.

Some mouths look like peaches and cream and some like a hole chopped into a brick wall to admit a new door or window. The mouth is a hot bed of toothaches, the bunghole of oratory and a baby's crowning glory. It is patriotism's fountain-head and the toolchest for pie. Without it the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth and the corneter would go down to an unhonored grave. It is the grocer's friend, the orator's pride and the dentist's hope.—Ex.

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS IN THE COUNTY.

Three Enthusiastic Mass Meetings Held. The Candidates On The Stump.

Republican meetings are being held throughout the county. So far three have been held. Saturday night week at Tilghman's, last Saturday evening at Cordova and Thursday evening of this week at Oxford.

All of these meetings have been very largely attended and the greatest enthusiasm shown. The speakers at Cordova were Col. J. C. Mullikin, Clayland Mullikin, Dr. Barber, Hiram S. Hall, William H. Seymour and Mr. Jump, all candidates with but two exceptions.

The meeting was held in Callahan's Hall and was attended by a large number of democrats. That the audience was in thorough sympathy with the speakers was demonstrated by the great applause from all present. After the meeting was over the speakers were served supper by the ladies of one of the churches, who were holding an oyster supper.

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at Oxford Thursday night in the Tred Avon hotel. The Oxford band was in attendance and the large audience hall was filled to overflowing. Hiram S. Hall, cannidate for House of Delegates, was the first speaker, who made one of his characteristic outspoken addresses which the people applauded greatly. Dr. I. A. Barber next made a ringing speech of three-quarters of an hour, which was the speech of the evening. Mr. Seymour, candidate for sheriff, spoke for a few minutes, as he said to let the people know "what this man Seymour was." Clayland Mullikin, the next State's Attorney, arrived on the late train and was the last speaker of the evening. Col. Mullikin was called to the floor, but owing the lateness of the hour did not speak.

THAT FAMOUS OXFORD GRAPEVINE

It Is Said To Be The Largest In The World—Oxford Incidents.

The Oxford bi-centennial celebration brought out some interesting incidents of the past, such as the fact that many years ago there was a nail factory there, at which were manufactured all the nails, bolts, hinges and other builder's hardware used throughout the country side.

The big grapevine, whose trunk has been found by actual measurement to be larger than the famous grapevine at Hampton Court, England, was planted by Capt. John Willis, an ancestor of Rev. Jonathan Spencer Willis, one of the bi-centennial orators. Capt. Willis was a seafaring man in his younger days and brought the grapevine cutting from some foreign country. Strangers have come hundreds of miles to see this grapevine. At the close of the Centennial Exposition in 1876 a large party of Western people stopped at Oxford on their way home to see the famous vine and compare it with the celebrated Santo Barbara (California) vine, which was on exhibition at the exposition.

The oldest man now living who was born in Oxford is Samuel Stewart, ex-judge of the Orphans' Court, aged eighty-three. He was too infirm to attend the celebration. Next to him is Nicholas Willis, who at eighty, is active, robust and vigorous. The oldest man now living in Oxford who was born there is Capt. James H. Benson.

Judge Henry Hollyday Goldsborough, of Baltimore, one of the bicentennial speakers, is a native of Talbot county. He confesses to be eighty years old but does not look a day over sixty. He read very fine manuscript in the open air, and very fluently without the aid of glasses. He is seventy-two years older than his youngest child.

The beaches around Oxford were once, and until comparatively recently, the breeding-grounds of the king crab, that cross between the turtle and the crab, and which looks more like a turtle than a crab. At a certain season of the year, about a month in spring the "flats" in the rivers and estuaries were infested with these housed crabs with long tails, shaped like tournament lances. They were taken and used as hog food and for cornfield fertilizer purposes. There are on record town ordinances, not twenty-five years old, made by towns where it was legal to raise hogs within the corporated limits, forbidding the feeding of king crabs to swine "because of the stench they created." The king crab has entirely disappeared from these waters.

Last Week's Weather.

The past week was notable on account of the occurrence of a great variation in temperature. The heat continued to increase each day culminating on the 26th with a temperature of 95° at Green Spring Furnace, 96° at Sharpsburg, 93° at Baltimore, 96° at Solomon's, 92° at Easton, and 99° at Milford. This extreme was followed at the close of the week by a sharp decline in temperature, the minimum thermometer at Baltimore on the night of the 30th, registering 42°. This range of 51° was doubtless exceeded in the western sections, and it is anticipated that killing frosts will be reported from many localities The rainfall was limited to a few local showers. General dryness prevails, and more rain is needed in all sections. About the normal amount of sunshine was given.

Mr. Henry Shreve, local observer for this county, says of Talbot:—Dry weather has retarded preparation of land for wheat seeding; should this condition continue much longer the wheat area will be considerably curtailed. Tomato "glut" has passed. Some belated crops are still producing well. Considerable millet hay has been grown; crimson clover has suffered from heat and drought.

Coburn's Reply To The Ledger.

To Editor GAZETTE.

I see by the Easton Ledger of late date that the Editor of that paper criticises my action in signing the petition to allow the People's party to have their ticket printed on the official ballot. Why not, Mr. Ledger state all the facts and tell your readers that the petition was handed me by a gentleman whom I have always known as a Democrat, or are you afraid to own that there is a Democrat who would interest himself in giving any other party except his own a chance for fair play. I believe that any body of voters, large or small, should have the privilege to cast their ballots for whom they chose, and if the Peoples party chooses to ask the signatures of voters who differ from them they have a perfect right to do so, but whether they get on the official ballot or not the election ballot or not the election law provides a way by which they can vote their ticket without the consent of the Democratic ring or its boss.

The Thirsty Crow.

The crow was dry; some water found:
A half-filled pitcher stood upright
Nor could o'er turn with wings; and ground
Would soon absorb clear out of sight;
Nor could with bill the water reach;
How then to raise must plan devise:
It instinct has alone to teach
The pebbles drop, the waters rise.
'Twas one by one, great patience paid;
Its thirst was quenched. Man, comfort find,
We may by earnest effort made,
Gain love to stay the thirst of mind,
And we may learn the inner thought,
That stones of fact with waters placed—
Those daily needful truths are brought
In reach; with them our lives are graced.

He's Going To Die Sure.

Mr. Peter Want s to Die Before Republicans Win.

A VERY PLEADING SPEECH

Spoke For The Hurst Club Tuesday Night.—His Oratory Not Exactly Appreciated.—Etc.

Senator Wm. B. Peter, of Gorman's county, was scheduled to make an address before the Hurst Club in Easton last Tuesday night and he came, but like his party will do in November, he took a late train, and didn't get here until 8.40.

When he did arrive, he found a few "ringsters" sitting in the court room in silence trying to keep themselves warm and look cheerful. Several Republicans and a few Populists strolled in and made up the crowd and the Senator began to speak to them and the empty benches.

He said he didn't want to offend any body or any party and so he would be very careful, and he was. He eulogized President Cleveland but the "ringsters" didn't "catch on" and failed to applaud even when the speaker tried it a second time.

The Senator said he went to Baltimore to the State Convention and the only man he could find who would harmonize the party and heal the sores was Hurst. He said he went to the Convention to do the bidding of the people who sent him there, but he didn't say that those people were Gorman & Co.

Why did he omit this, we wonder? He begged the "ringsters" to be forgiving and generous to the Democrats who had said they would have a change; he urged them to plead with them and be kind to them and not drive them out of the party, and take it all in all it was the most begging, pleading speech that we ever heard from the political platform.

Only once did the speaker recover his nerve and then he came out in that Gorman manner the ringsters assume and said that even if the independent Democrats had pledged themselves and vowed to to their friends that they would never vote the Gorman ticket and would vote for Mr. Lowndes, that he knew better and that they would all march up like little men and vote the ticket.

The Senator evidently didn't know the kind of Democrats and the class of men who were saying these things—in Talbot at least.

The speaker labored to wax eloquent and tried to get up enthusiasm with his audience but poorly succeeded. Not because he was not a good speaker and fair reasoner, but because he tried to smooth over and plaster up the differences between Messrs. Gorman and Cleveland and apologise for the nomination of Hurst, saying it was the only alternative, etc. He thought the worst calamity that could befall Maryland would be to place her in the Republican columns, and he hoped he would die before he ever saw the day.

He carefully refrained from touching local politics and differences, telling the Talbot Democrats they must settle that themselves. He only wanted to impress upon them the necessity of standing by the state ticket, and forget that Hurst was Gorman's man, and that Cleveland was Gorman's sworn enemy.

When the speaker was through some of the Democrats did not know what they were or where they stood and did not feel much eiated.

AN ARGUMENT FOR BARLEY.

A Local Writer Recommends its Use By The Farmers of Talbot Couuty.

John Stewart, late professor of Veterinary medicine in the Andersonian University of Glascow, says in his Stable Economy, "In this country horses are fed upon oats, hay, grass and roots. Many people talk as if they could be fed upon nothing else." Provincialism is as apparent in Maryland as in Scotland, while the menu of the horse, the world over, is as varied as that of the man of the world. I have a horse which is sound, is never sick, whose bill of fare is as varied as the pigs', whose work is as varied as his bill of fare, and as constant as his devotion to the dairy refuse and the swill tub. He gets no grain except barley, and has had none of the dreadful conjurations attributed to it, neither have his ten fellow-workers on farm and road.

I do not wish to trespass upon the domains of Dr. Lowndes and Mr. Trail, the introducers of barley in this county, but will leave to their intelligence and facile pens other points relative to barley as a crop. Barley, as a feed for horses, I am incited to make notes of, owing to a thorough misapprehension of its qualities by those who would be most benefited by it. Continuing with Mr. Stewart's remarks about barley, he says: "There is much difference of opinion concerning this article. Some consider it quite as good as oats in every respect, others allege that it is too laxative, others that it is too heating, some that it is cooling, and some that it is flatulent. In Spain and in some other places, horses and mules receive no other grain but barley; in this country (Scotland) it is very often boiled and given once a day, and sometimes a little is given raw with every ration of oats, and some use it to the entire exclusion of oats. I know that barley has none of the evil properties ascribed to it. I am daily among a large number of horses both fast and slow workers, who receive a considerable quantity in the course of twenty-four hours. At first it relaxes the bowels a little, and unless it be mingled with chaff, the horses swallow some of the grain whole. They seem to swallow it more readily than oats. After a week or two the bowels return to their ordinary state. The skin and coat are almost invariably improved by barley. By gradually increasing the quantity from day to day, deducting the oats in proportion, the horse may be safely inured to barley without any other grain."

This care in changing the grain feed has no relation to any deleterious quality of barley, it is cautioned by every authority on a change in feeding, more, it seems to me, on the principle of an ounce of prevention. To continue with our authorities on barley, Lt. Genl. Fitzwygram, in his late edition of Horses and Stables, revised by W. B. Walters Army Inspecting Veterinary Surgeon says, "Barley is a common substitute for oats. It is more heating than oats and it is often desirable to combine with clover, lucern, grass or other green meat as a corrective."

White tells of horses fed "entirely on barley and cut straw." Two pecks of barley and one bushel of straw formed the daily allowance. It is said that upon this "the horses did more work and were in better condition than others at the same task upon ordinary feeding." Stewart continues, saying, "It seems sufficiently clear that barley is not much, if at all, inferior to oats." Youall says, "Barley is a common food of the horse on various parts of the continent, and until the introduction of oats, seems to have constituted almost his only food. It is more nutritious than oats containing nine hundred and twenty parts of nutritive matter to every thousand."

Oats according to same authority containing only seven hundred and forty-three. A table of the comparative value of different kinds of fodder for cattle, published by M. Antoine, of France, the result of experiments made by the principal agriculturists in Europe. Thaer, Gerrnerhausen, Petro, Reider, Weber, Krautz, Andre, Block, de Dombasle, Boussingault, Meyer, Plotow, Pohl, Smee, Crud, Schwertz, Pabst gives values with one hundred pounds of good hay as a basis, rye 54, wheat 54, barley 54, oats 59, and Indian corn 57. We here see that barley is ahead of oats five points in nutritive value and three ahead in corn. In another table representing the average results from a number of experiments in France and Holland, taking one hundred pounds of hay as a basis, barley's relative value is 50 to 60 (i. e., it takes that many pounds for same results) wheat 50 to 60, oats 40 to 70 and Indian corn 50.

While we are examining the data of comparative nutritive qualities of the grain, we must not forget that the same authorities make the value of barley straw as from one-half to one-fourth of hay, while wheat straw is only one-fourth to one-fifth. Granting the foregoing for the sake of the argument, space being limited, also granting we can grow a larger average amount of food per acre, we will tackle the bug-a-boo following in the wake of barley. He does not appear so tangible in Stewart however as Indian corn for he says there, quoting from Bracy Clarke, "it is apt to clog the stomach and effect the feet in such a way that the hoofs frequently fall off while on a journey." He alludes to founder, but seems ignorant that any grain when improperly given will produce the same effect. Maize does it more readily, perhaps on account of its greater amount of carbon, or the fat forming principle.

No one with any experience will deny that corn is more heating than barley, the authorities agreeing also that wheat is more clogging. From wheat being more viscid colic ensues; preventive, mix chaff or cut straw with it. Barley being not so heating as corn there is not the danger ensuing from founder. We have no creditable data of any bad after effect, as of wheat and corn in barley. And so I throw the burden of proof upon the detractors. The ill effect of wheat is mechanical, the ill effect of corn is incipient. We have no proof of any ill effects of barley and it can not be demonstrated neither by anatomy nor analysis. There is a tradition of why the cultivation of barley was discontinued, and the case against this grain being not proven, I am inclined to give it as the "ghost of the thing" and it is, that when sickles were used, the reaper having to gather his armfull close to him before cutting, it having a full and sharp beard, there were many accidents from "barley beard in the eye," *and hence there was no love for it among the laboring class. But in these days of machinery that will not make a case, so the virtues of this grain is the only thing now to consider about it.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Interesting Items Concerning Our Different Churches.

Under the direction of Rev. E. V. Register, the new Trinity M. E. Church South, of Easton, is being rapidly completed. Already the vestibule on the ground floor, the stairways and the windows have been completed and now it is announced that the large ornamental windows in the auditorium will be put in in the course of the next six weeks. It is also proposed to plaster the walls in the main auditorium shortly. The large windows will be of a very handsome and tasteful design, and are now being made to order and will be put in place as soon as received. All this work is due largely to the pastor's zeal. A meeting of the building committee was held Monday evening.

The General Convention of the Prot. Episcopal Church in the U. S., which is triennially, met in Gethsemane Church, Minneapolis, Minn., on Wednesday morning, Oct. 2. There were four Clerical and four Lay deputies from each diocese in the U. S., besides delegates from the several missionary jurisdictions. All the Bishops, both Diocesan and Missionary, were present and sat as a separate House. The Clerical and Lay deputies from this county are, Rt. Rev. W. F. Adams, D. D., Bishop of the Diocese, Rev. W. Y. Beaven, John C. Earle, M. D., of Easton.

Services at Calvary M. P. Church tomorrow: preaching 11 a. m. and 7.30 p. m. Morning subject, "Watchers at the Cross." Evening subject, "Religious Patchwork." On next Friday evening, 11th inst., directed by Prof. Lowrie, Mrs. Doc. of Charleston, W. Va., will be given in the main auditorium of the church to which the music loving public is invited.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church, has secured the services of Rev. L. E. Barrett, Presiding Elder of the Wilmington District, to lecture in the church next Tuesday evening, the 15. Refreshments will be served by the entertainment committee at the conclusion of the lecture. Everyone is most cordially welcome to attend. Let no one stay away.

The annual Harvest Home services will be held at Trinity Cathedral tomorrow. Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 a. m.; Evening Prayer and sermon at 7.30 p. m. The services will be musical, with a largely increased number of participants, both vocal and instrumental. All invited.

Services at SS. Peter and Paul's Church tomorrow are High Mass and sermon at 11 a. m.; Sunday School at 2 p. m.; Vespers, sermon and Benediction at 7.30 p. m.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

For The Cotton States And International Exposition, Atlanta, Ga.

The Southern Railway operates nearly five thousand miles of road in eight of the Southern States and its lines enter Atlanta Ga., from five different points of the compass. Washington D. C., is the Northern or Eastern terminus of one of its lines, which is operated in connection with the Pennsylvania Railroad "the standard railroad of America," between New York through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Lynchburg and Danville, Va., Greensboro and Charlotte N. C., Spartanourg and Greenville, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Montgomery and Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans, with connection at Salisbury for Asheville, Hot Springs; Knoxville and Chattanooga, at Charlotte for Columbia, Augusta, Savannah and Jacksonville, and at Atlanta for Birmingham, Memphis, Macon and Southern Georgia. Solid vestibuled limited trains, with through day coaches, Pullman Drawing-room Sleepers and Dining-cars. Time between Washington and Atlanta, eighteen hours, without change of cars of any class.

The Southern Railway is the only line which enters and lands passengers in the Exposition Grounds, and no effort or expense has been spared by the management in the improvement of its roadbed, increasing the number of its coaches and inaugurating its own dining car service preparatory to handling expeditiously and comfortably the heavy travel to and from Atlanta during the Cotton States and International Exposition, which opens September 18 and closes December 31, 1895.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays, from September 17 to December 24, inclusive, excursion tickets will be sold from Washington, D. C., to Atlanta, Ga., at $14, good for return 10 days from date of sale.

Excursion tickets will be sold every day from September 16 until December 15, inclusive, from Washington at $19.25, good for return 20 days from date of sale, and excursion tickets for the entire Exposition season with final limit of January 7th, 1896, will be sold from September 16 until December 15, inclusive, $26.25.

Map folders furnished and Pullman Sleeping Car reservations made upon application.

In Imitation Of "The Towson Troubadour."

Ah! Mr. Gorman touched the button at the Carrollton Hotel,
And the edict of the master on the State Convention fell,
O the potency of that message, its charm, its magic spell,
It came like a sweet evangel—never fear for all is well.
We heard it down in Talbot—up went the "regulars" banner.
Mr. Gibson pulls the wire from his home on "Ratcliffe Manor."

Yes, the independent voters in Talbot may go to—pot
Their "carping and their harping" is all "consummate rot;"
They are bolting of their own accord, and never have been driven—
They would kick and cuff the blessed, had they a seat in heaven.
"Let them go their way" we'll have our say" ther's not much wrong with "Hanner,"
Mr. Gibson pulls the wire from his home on "Ratcliffe Manor."

Talbot "kickers" and "bolters," what are you going to do.
Stab the convention tickets, and cross them through and through?
Beware, political prodigals, return we do implore,
And help us fight as gallantly as in the days of your.
Then, we'll smirk, and wink, and "taffy" you in such a gracious manner,
While Gibson pulls the wire from his home on "Ratcliffe Manor."

Victims of "Political Cholera Infantum," Gormonpho bist"—all,
The de'il's crematory is ablaze for all that scratch this fall;
So say the faithful worshippers, and thus they will indict
Every party "scab" and "skulker" a democratic hermaphrodite,
Yes, we're "gutter snipes," "Jay Hawks," politically-starved lanners,
Mr. Gibson pulls the wire from his home in "Ratcliffe Manor."

We have "hawked about, and talked about" the "practical politicians,"
And they in turn have dammed us, beyond all future recognition,
A fusillade of epithets for months have held their sway,
With the rupture in our party's ranks, growing wider day by day.
Will re-action come in time to save our torn and trailing banner?
Mr. Gibson pulls the wire from his home on "Ratcliffe Manor."

Send the comforter quickly, before the breach grows wider,
Send a barrell of "O be joyful," and some Talbot county cider.
Some truant voter may draw nigh, and still a little nigher;
Juice and campaign sugar mixed, is a wonderful mollifier.
Then we'll raise aloft exultingly our father's old "bandaner,"
If Mr. Gibson sends the stuff from his home on "Ratcliffe Manor."

Oh! my political brothers, shall we ruefully rue the day
If our dissentions and contensions hold their wanted sway?
Must the good men on our ticket feel the independents' sting,
Die political martyrs, in the death of our county's ring.
New born victory then will come, and raise our falling banner,
When there is no wire to pull from the shade of "Ratcliffe Manor."

VILLAGE RHYMER.

Third Precinct, Sept. 30, 1895.

The Darlington, Wis., Journal says editorially of a popular patent medicine: "We know from experience that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is all that is claimed for it, as on two occassions it stopped excruciating pains and possibly saved us from an untimely grave. We would not rest easy over night without it in the house." This remedy undoubtedly saves more pain and suffering than any other medicine in the world. Every family should keep it in the house, for it is sure to be needed sooner or later. For sale by H. Roberts, Easton; A. D. Harrison, St. Michaels; J. F. Sisk, Cordova.

St. Michaels Broke Her Shaft.

The steamer St. Michaels, of the Eastern Bay and Miles River Steamboat Company, broke her shaft Sunday off Wye Creek, Md., and was, in consequence delayed. She was to have arrived Sunday night from St. Michaels, Md., but she is not now expected before 6 o'clock this morning. A telegram was received at the steamer's office on Light street Sunday bearing the news. No alarm was felt for her safety.

Didn't Call Here-

Some homely philosopher has remarked that "all the good things of life seem to be on the other side of a barbed wire fence," meaning that the price was bigger than the pocketbook.

That philosopher ought to come to our Establishment. He won't find any barbed wire fence in the way there.

We are in the business to make money. It is our desire to put prices as near cost as any merchant can. We want every buyer to be pleased. It is a part of our policy to please patrons so well that we can almost count on their trade with certainty.

IT'S GOING TO BE COLD

This winter. All weather prophets agree on that point. So the wise woman will begin to look around for

CAPES, CLOAKS and WRAPS,

The right time to buy such things is before you need them. This gives plenty of time to compare prices and qualities, and plenty of time to think the matter over and make up your mind. Being sure before buying is a good deal better than buying first and finding out afterwards. To simply say our new lines of the latest are pretty is not doing them justice. They are more than pretty—dainty and sensible novelties that combine style and wear and satisfaction. Prices the lowest.

FALL DRESS GOODS, ETC.,

TOUGH CLOTHES FOR BOYS

to wear to school this winter. Strong Clothes to stand the wear and tear of sleigh riding and snowballing and out-of-doors fun in cold weather. Clothes with the seams well sewed and the buttons tightly fastened on. We have just such things for the youngsters. Besides being full of wear, they are neat and shapely. Six to seven dollars will buy a suit.

IT'S A LONG REACH.

The way to make money reach a long way is to invest it right. The first cost is the point where a short-sighted man stumbles on the road to economy. He thinks it extravagant to pay $12 for a suit of our clothes when $10 might buy one elsewhere. He forgets that $10 suits won't last very long or look very well. Price and quality ought always to be considered together. Price alone means nothing.
