Read Them Carefully.

Attention is called to the list of the names of land owners in Talbot county, published in another column, who give warning to trespassers not to shoot partridges on their land. The cause of this is to preserve the birds from complete destruction in the county while they are so scarce. Over two hundred names are advertised in this issue, which is the last time they will appear, and it is to the interest of the sportsmen to read them carefully.

Good advice: Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by Harry Roberts, Easton; A. D. Harrison, St. Michaels; J. F. Sisk, Cordova.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

A Former Eastonian Arrested in Baltimore For Committing A Double Murder.

Jerome Councel, who was raised in Easton, was arrested Tuesday night in Baltimore by Detective Gault, of Marshall Price game, for the murder of Captain Frederick Lang and his wife, of Gardenville, a suburb of Baltimore.

The murder is one of the most horrible and shocking double murders ever committed in Maryland and it was brought to light Tuesday morning near Gardenville, on the Belair road, in Baltimore county, about three miles from the city limits.

Captain and Mrs. Frederick Lang, a prominent and wealthy couple of that section, were brutally murdered in their bed sometime during Monday night and their mutilated bodies were found side by side Tuesday morning.

In the most tragic imaginations, a more pointedly horrible crime has never been envolved. Every circumstance of it is full of a relentless bloodthirstiness.

The murderer was tracked by Detective Gault by his footprints and he is confident that Jerome Councel is the man.

George Councell, a brother of Jerome, was also arrested on suspicion of knowledge of the affair. Detective Gault was put on the case Tuesday afternoon, and at once began the search for Jerome. He tracked him around until he came up with the brothers at East Baltimore and Gay streets, where he promptly a[illegible]ested them. Jerome denied his guilt but th[illegible]etective soon got conflicting statements [illegible]m him, and will work on the clue. Jerome is but twenty years of age, and had lived for years with the murdered couple.

Councel was brought up in Easton and for years lived in the old house adjoining the Masonic Temple, which was torn down some months ago.

He lived in Easton as a boy, and his father was at one time a tax collector of Easton District, and was very well known.

Many of our citizens recall the young man and not a few knew intimately.

An Important Office.

To properly fill its office and functions, it is important that the blood be pure. When it is in such a condition, the body is almost certain to be healthy. A complaint at this time is catarrh in some of its various forms. A slight cold developes the disease in the head. Droppings of corruption passing into the lungs bring on consumption. The only way to cure this disease is to purify the blood. The most obstinate cases of catarrh yield to the medicinal powers of Hoods Sarsaparilla as if by magic, simply because it reaches the seat of the disease, and by purifying and vitalizing the blood, removes the cause. Not only does Hood's Sarsaparilla do this, but it gives renewed vigor to the whole system making it possible for good health to reign supreme.

For some weeks there has been displayed in the glass doors of THE GAZETTE office an excellent picture of Governor Lowndes. It was generally admired by all except a few Gormanites, and these few vent their spite on it Monday night by pasting all over the doors, on the outside, a copy of the Baltimore Sun. Despite this, however, the face of the Governor soon showed with its customary pleasantness. THE GAZETTE is well informed to whom we are indebted for the copy of the Sun, and hereby return thanks.—

Piles.

Piles is so common that every other person you meet is troubled with it more or less. It seems to be a little thing and usually gets little attention. It may not be serious at first, but it makes a man sick—makes him nervous, cross, irritable—unfit for business. It robs him of sleep, takes his appetite—cuts down his flesh—and yet he is careless about it.

This is the successful ticket which was elected in Talbot county on Tuesday by a large majority.

In Talbot county the election passed off quietly, with a great deal of hustling on both sides, and with no trouble. Early in the day the weather gave indications of being stormy, but later the fog lifted and the day turned out a beautiful one.

Both parties worked hard, but by noon it was clearly seen in Easton that the democrats had been worsted, and reports from the other precincts throughout the county were either that the Republicans had carried everything or that the democratic ticket was falling behind.

Shortly after noon the democrats saw that they had lost Easton district, and they tried to raise more money, but without success.—Some of their workers said that they could not buy many of the colored voters that they had usually bought. In some instances they offered colored voters $15, which was promptly refused, the voters walking off to the polls and voting the Republican ticket for nothing.

The democrats claim that many negroes whom they bought voted the Republican ticket. It is currently reported the democrats had $15.000 to carry the county.

During the afternoon the Republicans had everything their own way, the democrats simply standing around with a 'hang-dog' look on their faces. Voters, whom the democratic money could not touch, voted the Republican ticket without asking a cent.

The independent democrat, and other conscientious voters who had not been to the polls for years, came out for good government and voted the straight Republican ticket. It was a fight for good government, economical administration of affairs and for the cause of right, and the cause of right triumphed.

At seven o'clock at night the democrats who had been the most hopeful during the day, conceded the county to the Republicans by 250. As the returns came in, indicating that the county was strongly Republican, the democratic hope turned Hurstward.

But even this hope was dispelled on receipt of this telegram from the Baltimore Herald:

> "Republicans have carried the State by at least 15.000. Baltimore city elects all three legislative tickets and the Senators elected in Harford and Anne Arundel will be republican. Hooper elected Mayor of Baltimore, Legislature probably republican by a good majority. It's a landslide."

Thus ended the greatest campaign in the history of the State.

How It Was Done In Cordova.

MR. EDITOR.—Our organization in Chapel was perfect, could not have been better. In the morning the Democrats claimed a majority of 200. We were willing to concede 100 at 3 p. m. We wired to Easton that we were hammering down majorities, which meant, that the democrat claims were all bosh and we were doing better than we expected, with one hour more of daylight we would have sent you a republican majority. Aunt Mary Hines was our mascot. She has been praying for our success for the past six weeks.

Our genial friend, Col. John L. Fisher, was most eagerly sought after. An old colored man states that the reason the democrats were so badly beaten here, was because Col. J. M. Wooters did not wear the vest that held the votes. We are as much gratified over the result in Chapel District as of that in the county or State because for 20 years we have been the under dog in the fight, on Tuesday we were on top, and had the democrats completely demoralized by noon, and the balance of the day had things to ourselves, excepting for an hour or two, after the publisher of the Easton Star put in an appearance, with a horse covered with foam and presumably with a little more of the eloquence, that gets votes. Every republican did his duty, we were ably seconded by such men as Capt. Thompson, Tom Rowens, Lewis Smith and Kilby Callaway. It would be invidious to make distinctions, we were all business men and there for business, and we did it.

Yours Truly, WORKER.

How It Was Done At Tilghman.

Election day never passed off so quietly in Tilghman as it did on Tuesday, nor have the Republicans ever 'put their shoulder to the wheel' and worked so faithfully and earnestly against what we beforehand knew to be overwhelming odds, and the result was highly gratifying and satisfactory. Our friends, the enemy, were very much in evidence, and very industrious, yet their election majority of 110 kept dwindling until the votes were counted, when it had stuck at a plurality of from 71 to 73, 38 short of their dreams.

In county elections the Republicans usually poll here from 30 to 32 votes, but this time we jumped to 54, a gain of 22. Wednesday when the returns began to come in the boys were afraid to shout, as they might not be out of the woods. But as the day advanced, and the reported plurality in Baltimore swelled from 3000 in the early morning to more than 6000 at noon, the jubilation began. Then news that Lowndes had a plurality of over 30.000 in the State, and that Talbot was surely and solidly Republican capped the climax.

"Hurrah for Lowndes, and the ticket, too!"

Musical Entertainment.

A musical and elocutionary entertainment will be given at the Peach Blossom school house, Easton, by Dr. Lowrie. A singing and elocutionary class will be organized at its close. The meeting will be held Friday next, Nov. 15, commencing at 7.30 p. m. No charge for admission. Free to all. All lovers of music welcomed.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr Holden, the merchant there sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Harry Roberts, Easton; A. D. Harrison, St. Michaels; J. F. Sisk, Cordova.

WALKING ON A WAGER.

A Man Stops In Easton Who Is Walking For A Wager Of Five Thousand Dollars.

Considerable curiosity was shown on Thursday in Easton when a young man, not more than 25 years old, stopped here on a walking tour of the United States.

His name is Paul Smith and he said he was walking for a wager of $5000. The wager was that within a specified time he must walk to every State capital in the United States and Territories, and was to average twenty miles a day.

The wager was made by an athlete club of Boston, and Smith started from Norwich, Conn., Oct. 19, 1895. So far, he said, he had covered about 400 miles.

He was walking to Annapolis when he passed through here, having come direct from Dover. After leaving Annapolis he will go to Richmond. He is an Englishman by birth, a fluent talker and of rather good appearance. Every town he visits some of the leading citizens sign a paper to the effect that he was in the town on a certain day.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP.

Some Reading That Will Prove Interesting To Young Mothers. How To Guard Against The Disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the case, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by Harry Roberts, Easton; A. D. Harrison, St. Michaels; J. F. Sisk, Cordova.

Accepted The Call.

Rev. Chas. A. Hill now of the M. E. Church at Salisbury, has accepted the call from Ebenezer M. E. Church of Easton, to take effect in March next. Mr. Hill is one of the ablest ministers in the conference, and at every charge where he has seen stationed, has always served out his full term. He is known by the people of Easton, who are a unit in welcoming him to Easton,

Dr. Avery, as was stated in our last issue, has accepted a call to Dover.

A Famous Talbot Officer.

Lieutenant-Colonel Tench Tilghman of Talbot.

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Was Washington's Aide de Camp And Intimate Friend.—What Colonial Magazine Says.

Talbot county can boast many descendants from men who made themselves famous on the battle field and in the legislative halls of the country, and one most noted of these is Lieutenant Col. Tench Tilghman, great grandfather of Col. Oswald Tilghman of Easton.

The Colonial Magazine for October, kindly loaned by Mrs. Senator Gibson, gives the following interesting sketch of this noted officer.

Tench Tilghman was born on his father's plantation, situated upon Fansley Creek, a branch of St. Michaels River in Talbot county, Maryland, about two miles from the town of Easton, on the twenty-fifth day of December, 1744. He was the oldest of twelve children. His father was James Tilghman, who married Anna Francis, who was the daughter of Tench Francis, of Fansley, of Talbot county. Of the early education of Tench Tilghman, the oldest of the brothers, there is little authentic information. He probably went to school in Easton. There is a tradition that he was subsequently instructed by the Rev. John Gordon, rector of St. Michaels parish. Tench Tilghman entered the army when little more than a boy. In August, 1776, he became a member of the military family of Washington. He was then made a member of the Flying Camp. In that capacity he served until August, 1776, when he surrendered his captaincy for a place upon the personal staff of the commander-in-chief. He afterwards was aid-de-camp to General Washington, and was honored with his esteem, confidence and friendship. He was a brave officer and as a reward for his gallantry was selected to bear to Congress the tidings of the surrender of Cornwallis. He rode from Yorktown to Philadelphia as fast as horse could carry him. He arrived in Philadelphia on the twenty-fifth day of October, having traversed the distance from Yorktown in about four days, crossing numerous large rivers and probably the Chesapeake Bay. On the twenty-ninth day of October, 1781, Congress gave to his brilliant services a vote of thanks, presented, too, a horse properly caparisoned and a sword which was made in Paris. It is the usual officer's dress sword, with rapier blade and gold and silver mountings. Upon the handle is engraved the insignia of the Society of Cincinnati, and these words:

"Presented to Lieutenant Colonel Tench Tilghman, by Congress, October nineteenth, 1781."

Tench Tilghman married in 1783 Anna Maria Tilghman, daughter of his uncle, Matthew Tilghman. Their two children were Anna Margaretta and Elizabeth Tench. Anna Margaretta married Tench Tilghman of Hope, and Elizabeth Tench married on the twenty-fifth of April, 1891, Colonel Nicholas Goldsborough.

Among some of the interesting letters which passed between Washington and Tilghman, here is one wrtiten on January seventh, 1783. Washington writes:

"I received with great sensibility your assurance of affection and regard. It would be but a renewal of what I have often repeated to you, that there are few men in the world to whom I am more attached by inclination than I am to you. With the cause, I hope most devoutly, there will soon be an end to my military services, when, as our places of residence will not be far apart, I shall never be more happy than in your com[illegible] glad to hear from and keep up a correspondence with you."

A man who could win such words from such a man must have had qualities of mind and heart, principles of thought and action, singularly in harmony with those possessed by him who wrote them. If this be a legit[illegible], can praise go farther than to say, Tilghman was like Washington?

After the war Tilghman became a merchant and settled in Baltimore. He died April 18th, 1786. His widow established herself on her estate called Phimhimon in Oxford Neck, Talbot county, which was her home until her death. Bancroft's History of the United States speaks of Lt. Col. Tilghman as "the most faithful member of Washington's staff."

Tilghman witnessed as Washington's aid, the fall of Fort Lee and Fort Washington. He was in the disaster of White Plains, and also shared with the army the terrible suffering at Valley Forge. He accompanied Washington on that famous Christmas night when "Washington crossed the Delaware." In fact he was in every action in which the main army took part. In Washington Irving's life of George Washington, in the fourth volume, he speaks of Tench Tilghman's death. George Washington said to a friend concerning Tilghman: "He leaves as fair a reputation as ever belonged to human character," which is high praise indeed.

SHOOTING AFFRAY AT OXFORD.

A Colored Man Shoots Another Wednesday Night At A Colored Ball—Died Thursday.

A negro ball at Oxford on Wednesday night culminated in a shooting match between two colored men. The ball drew a great crowd of the colored people together, and many from a distance.

Two men particularly, were very pronounced in their attentions to a colored girl there, and it was over this that the trouble arose.

The names of the men cannot be learned as they were both strangers in the town, but report has it that one of them is from St. Michaels. One was particularly attentive to the girl, and this so enraged the other man that he drew a revolver and shot him.

The unfortunate man did not die until the next afternoon. The man who did the shooting made his escape, and to this time has not been heard of, although the officers are in hot pursuit.

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION TRAIN EXHIBITS.

The Pullman Display Reads Like A Fairy Tale, Yet No Pen Nor Pencil Can Describe It.

[EXPOSITION GROUNDS ATLANTA, NOV. 6.]

Nov. 6.—I do not wonder at the exclamations of admiration expressed by those who go through the resplendent exhibit of the Pullman Car Company at this Cotton States and International Exposition. The editor of the GAZETTE, who himself has seen it, will endorse my statement that it could be no higher type of workmanship. Hence it will be impossible in this sketch to give even a faint conception of what I know I am not extravagant in terming the supremely ornate and delicate elegance of this train.

Bell Chimes Tower.

There are carvings in wood almost as exexquisite in their tracery as the finest sculptured reliefs in Italian marble. There are conveniences and comforts that pass beyond conservative demands and create palaces on wheels fit for the royal railway equipage of courtly king and gracious queen, nor does any royal house possess such a hostelry for travel.

So far as my descriptive powers may be competent to command language for such a task, let me take the reader with me to study the construction of this work of art that would challenge the rivalry of Angelo if he were here with us, this masterpiece of car erection and adornment, in its varied features to court refined taste and mental aestheticism, pander to our creature comforts, and gratify that sublime sense which creates an uplift to the plane of appreciation at least with those who have produced this "Aladdin" of transportation. Nor need I hesitate to compliment those whose capital was placed at command to co-operate with genius to make this marvellous production possible.

I want to say just an introductory word here for Mr. C.O. Chenault, the conductor in charge of this exhibit, that those who may be coming to the fair may enquire for him by name. He is a most courteous gentleman and wears the five service stripes of gold braid, one for each five years of service, indicating his honored employment for over a quarter of a century with this company. In his ready task his labors are supplemented by six reporters, one in charge of each car. These cars in their names suggest historic associations with the discovery of our America so patent as to need no mention.

"Marcena" is a combination baggage-car and smoker. Here are the dynamic appliances for lighting the train by electric incandescence. The second half of the car is given to the necessities, comforts, pleasures and gratifying predilections of the "lords of creation" with the bath-tub, barber's chair, elegant Mexican onyx wash-stand, toilet miscellany, arm chairs with choice Russia leather upholstering, and suggestive ornamentations in harmony with the purpose of the car, with a Turkish smoking-pipe standing in a niche in the farther end. And I may say here that the interior wood work in the several cars is wrought from or carved in the rich vermillion wood from the jungles of India.

"Larabida" is the dining-car. Such a kitchen and pantry! The range and all the paraphernalia of the cuisine reflect the brightest metallic lustre. The tables are richly polished, and one is spread with an exhibit of the silver used, each piece fretted and chased in choice design. All through the car are potted plants and cut flowers, and one end is richly fragrant with a bank of roses. In sideboards are petite vases and delicate glasses with the richest decorations in Bohemian ware. Above each table, to create sectional effects, are designs in grill work. Such a cafe is fit for the feasting of mythology's gods, and its splendor is yet more enhanced by the flashing glow that is thrown from the electric lights upon the display of cut glass.

"America" is a ten section sleeper, with an elegantly furnished stateroom at one end and a superlatively superb bridal chamber at the other end. The panels of the upper berths are covered with satin inwrought with needlework of silk, the handiwork of the deft fingers of Austrian women. The upholstery, roped portierres, soft downy blankets and fine linen, all are of Austrain importation. The ceiling—as indeed of all these cars—is in most unique design of tracery. The wood in the bridal chamber is enameled in white, and all the appointments here suggest that immaculate alliance in harmony with the church ritual that marriages are made in Heaven.

"Isabella" is a happy suggestion in name as in construction, for it is the boudoir where the lady, if she so choose, may enjoy relaxation from the stretch of hours spent in even the cosiest of chairs and settees, or may roam at her sweet will, write at a pretty desk, full of conveniences, or sit at one of the observation windows and look out in meditative thought or read the latest current periodicals, or from the broad rear platform, protected by a guard of wickerwire, take in the charm of scenery, or watch the seemingly receding tracks as they narrow in their distant parallels and show how deceptive is even the vision of the real. This observation compartment is fitted up in California redwood, and is a proud and patriotic illustration that our native woods hold no second place in the world's fibrous plants.

"Santa Maria" is a parlor car. It stands apart from the others of the train, from lack of room under the shed. It has twenty-six of the cubbiest of chairs and two settees. A library-case at one end is filled with choicest standard books. The description of decorations as already given applies in like measure and expression to this car.

What wonder that such a train should be presented as an ideal wrought into the real, of the supreme conception of the mind in the finest touches of art applied to the luxuries of travel. But why may not the general specifications of this exhibit be carried out in such a train, utilized for travel, excepting out of it for practical service those adornments and sublime elegancies which make these Pullman palaces beyond compare and in advance of the reasonable demands of the tourist, or the rush-a-day business man or the necessitous refinements of a woman's personnel?

I learn with a pleasure that I know the public who have occassion to travel that way will share, that the Southern Pacific has had completed several equipments at the Pullman shops for such train habilitation as I have here described, barring those richer features, and the famous "Sunset Limited," which now leaves New Orleans for Los Angeles and San Francisco each Monday and Thursday, is so constituted. I have been over that route in other days and other trains, and close my eyes to fancy that trip, in such a train, over a roadway where no snows blockade, seated in such an observation-car to look down from the dizzy heights of the Pecos trestle in Texas, or that "sunny Italy" in the vales of Southern California, where the large yellow poppy gives a golden glow to the fields, while the hilltops far away are seen crowned with snow, and the clouds come down and weave their vaporous tracery among the mountain pines.

Let no visitor to the Exposition fail to give full time for studying the artistic effects, rare mechanical skill, and ingenuity of thought in studying what men and women want in travel, as seen in this Pullman exhibit that I have tried to describe, but so vainly succeeded, and not be content to merely glance at it in outline.

Negro Building, Atlanta Exposition.

Located south of Fourteenth street entrance, upon a prominent elevation, surrounded by high terraces with broad stairways leading towards "Clara Meer" and the Plaza, stands the Agricultural Building, covering an area of 40,000 square feet.

The style of architecture is true Romanesque. The dimensions are 150x300 feet, with a central dome rising 107 feet above grade. The interior, handsomely finished in native Georgia pine, presents a magnificent appearance.

One of the most elaborate agricultural displays, complete in detail and representing every section of this broad Southland, will not only interest, but prove instructive to the visitor.

Upon an elevation of 923 feet above the sea level, and just east of Jackson street entrance, stands the Negro building. It has a beautiful main front with large windows, and four corner pavilions; a large central tower rises 70 feet above the floor line, adding much to the general design. The pediment over the main entrance is artistically decorated with beautiful figures and groups representative of life, character and work of the Negro Race.

The dimensions of this building are: length 276 feet: width 112 feet. It was erected entirely by negro labor; the exhibits represent the handiwork of the negro alone. The ingenuity and execution not only demonstrates ability, but shows clearly the capabilities of the Negro Race in their present coadtion, as well as the progress that has been made since their emancipation.

Didn't Call Here-

Some homely philosopher has remarked that "all the good things of life seem to be on the other side of a barbed wire fence." Meaning that price was bigger than the pocketbook.

That philosopher ought to come to our Establishment. He won't find any barbed wire fence in the way there.

We are in the business to make money. It is our desire to put prices as near cost as any merchant can. We want every buyer to be pleased. It is a part of our policy to please patrons so well that we can almost count on their trade with certainty.

IT'S GOING TO BE COLD

This winter. All weather prophets agree on that point. So the wise woman will begin to look around for

CAPES, CLOAKS and WRAPS,

The right time to buy such things is before you need them. This gives plenty of time to compare prices and qualities, and plenty of time to think the matter over and make up your mind. Being sure before buying is a good deal better than buying first and finding out afterwards. To simply say our new lines of the latest are pretty is not doing them justice. They are more than pretty—dainty and sensible novelties that combine style and wear and satisfaction. Prices the lowest.

TOUGH CLOTHES FOR BOYS

to wear to school this winter. Strong Clothes to stand the wear and tear of sleigh riding and snowballing and out-of-doors fun in cold weather. Clothes with the seams well sewed and the buttons tightly fastened on. We have just such things for the youngsters. Besides being full of wear, they are neat and shapely. Six to seven dollars will buy a suit.

IT'S A LONG EACH.

The way to make money reach a long way is to invest it right. The first cost is the point where a short-sighted man stumbles on the road to economy. He thinks it extravagant to pay $12 for a suit of our clothes when $10 might buy one elsewhere. He forgets that $10 suits won't last very long or look very well. Price and quality ought always to be considered together. Price alone means nothing.

Dry Goods, Trimmings, Shoes, Carpets, Gent's Furnishings,
