—A Newspaper carrier has been fined $100 for delivering papers on Sunday in Pittsburg and a man has been arrested in the same city for hauling newspapers to a railroad train on Sunday. The fine and arrest are due to the continued existence of a Sunday Blue law passed in 1794. An attempt was lately made to amend this act so as to conform it to the conditions of the present age, but the legislative committee in charge of the bill reported against its passage. The sole remedy at the present time seems to lie in a "campaign of education.

On the other side are three figures, with the words: "Fortitudo, prudentia, Æquitas," and at the bottom: "Conspicuae in uno." The coin was probably dropped by some of the British soldiery on their way to the West under Braddock. It was found in a field by his son, John Weller.

Died of Tumor.—Mr. Charles T. Chance died at his home in Easton on Saturday evening last, aged 39. Interment in Spring Hill Cemetery, Monday, Rev. C. D. Harris officiating, and attended by the order of Red Men. Mr. Chance had been confined to his bed for months with abdominal tumor, which a few weeks ago was successfully removed by Drs. Dunning, Trippe and Malone. His physicians entertained no hopes of recovery after removing the tumor as it was seen that it would return. After death the same doctors made an autopsy and removed another very large tumor enveloping one kidney, while attached to other organs were small ones. How the sufferer lived so long is a mystery. Mr. Chance leaves a widow and five dependent children.

Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our readers, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. J. C. Henry & Bro., druggists.

A NOTABLE OCCASION.

THE MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY AT M. E. CHURCH, SOUTH.

A full Account of the Exercises, Reported by our Church Reporter.

Rev. W. W. W. Wilson is expected to preach at M. E. Church tomorrow.

Trinity M. E. Church, South was the scene of a very beautiful missionary entertainment last Sunday evening. The success which has always attended the efforts of this Sunday School resulted in drawing to the church an immense crowd of people, all anxious and willing to encourage, by their presence and contributions, the great work of spreading the gospel. It would almost seem that this church has already accomplished its portion of good in the sight of God, but it is one of its mottos "We can never do enough for God." The energy and enthusiasm with which the Sunday School took hold of the preparations for the missionary entertainment only emphasizes the above motto. On Sunday evening long before the hour for the services to begin the church was filled as never before. Those familiar with the interior of this church can form some idea of the number of people in attendance, when I state that every seat was filled, standing room was completely occupied and some were even glad to find room on the pavement, although they could not hear a word. It is estimated that nearly a hundred returned to their homes, finding admittance impossible. This mark of popularity is certainly a glowing tribute to the schools which deserves all the praise that can be said of it. Those having the entertainment in charge can, without egotism, greatly pride themselves on the excellent results of the evening.

The decorations were exquisite, being arranged very artistically and beautifully. The lovely effect of the following flowers, all properly arranged, can better be imagined than described. Calla lilies, geraniums, hyacinths, tulips, palms, daisies, begonias, scilla cluse, butterfly tulips and Florida moss. The flowers were furnished by Mr. Jos. Robson. The instrumental music was rendered by Miss Maud Chaplain at the organ, Hamilton Roe, violin; W. C. Meintzer, cornet; Mr. Fisher Kemp, bass viol; Mr. Griffin, dulcimer, Mr. Alonzo Robson was musical director, and his efficiency in this respect was well remarked upon. The program was a lengthy, as well as an interesting one. It was particulary entertaining in some parts, for instance, Miss Nellie Chaplain sang a very sweet little solo with more than her accustomed grace and beauty. No program of any kind in this church would be complete without some contribution from her. The opening address by Percy Payne was well delivered, and also the recitation by Miss Katie Beckwith. Little Maggie Meintzer and Edith Payne sang a charming duet in quite an accomplished manner, while Miss Jamie Todd took a place of high prominence for the cute way she recited her address. Misses Bertie Bland and Virginia Ledmum are also deserving of praise. Others may be mentioned, but the above will serve to give the reader an idea of the excellent character of the entertainment. The report of the secretary, Mr. Sherwood, who has served the school in this capacity long and well, was a most encouraging one. A large increase was reported in all the classes both in attendance and collection. The figures have already been published and it is there fore unnecessary for me to re-publish them here. This entertainment marks another era in the history of this church where great enthusiasm and untiring energy always brings about the deserving result—success.

Tomorrow at 11 a. m. Palm Sunday services will be celebrated at the Catholic Church. High Mass will be sung by the Rector. The Passion of our Divine Lord will also be read. The church will present a beautiful appearance as it will be handsomely decorated with natural palms which Father Waldron has procured from Florida. At the end of the services Palms will be distributed to the congregation. In the evening at 7.30 services of special interest pertaining to the day will be held. An elaborate program is being prepared at this church for Easter Sunday. It will be an occasion of great interest and will most assuradely excell anything of this kind ever held in a Catholic Church on the Easton Shore. The people of Easton will, on Easter, have an opportunity to hear the renowned and highly gifted pulpit orator the Very Rev. Francis Ryan, S. J., cousin of the present famous Arch Bishop of Phila. The musical program will be announced in the next issue. Appropriate services will be held Good Friday morning at 10 a.m., afternoon at 3 p.m. and evening at 7.30. All welcome.

It is with great joy that the members of Ebenezer M. E. Church welcome again as their pastor, Rev. W. E. Avery, who has been returned by the conference to the Easton charge. While this church has, in the past, suffered to some extent from changes and removals, it has yet been fortunate in its band of tried and true workers and advisors. Mr. Adams, at the time of his removal left a compact body of church workers, whom he had so trained that they had the one desire to advance the work of God. During the interval when the church was without a pastor, the good work continued. The attention of the committee was finally drawn to Mr. Avery, who was at that time almost unknown to any of them. He was unanimously welcomed.—From his first sermon he has interested and completely satisfied the people. He is easy of approach and very build and direct in social intercourse. He impresses one as modest, genuine, able, full of earnest good will to all and sincere devotion to his work. Services will be held as usual tomorrow. It is expected that the Rev. W. W. W. Wilson will be present and preach at both services. This will be very gratifying as Mr. Willson will ever have a warm place in the hearts of the people here. He is welcomed again among us with great joy. I want, before closing, to briefly remark upon the preparations for Easter. The choir will have a list of selections from the most prominent composers of the country. Some of the selections will consist of harmony never before heard in Easton. I know "whereof I speaketh" when I say that no other choir here would even attempt to render some of the selections that this choir will sing on Easter night. Mr. Spence has, for a long time, had his choir in training and at the rehersal which I attended Thursday evening I was completely surprised and astonished at the manner in which I heard those difficult passages of music sung. The program in full will be announced next week.

The service which begins at 7.30 p. m. on Easter evening will be a song service, at which the above mentioned selections and many others will be sung. Everyone desiring to spend a pleasant evening and enjoy sacred and inspiring music will find a warm welcome awaiting at this church on Easter evening. PAUL E. SHANAHAN.

Hon. Frederick Douglass in Easton.—Some little surmises have passed from mouth to mouth since Thursday, as to the cause of the flying visit Frederick Douglass made to Easton. He was seen on the street but a short time, and then went to St. Michaels where he was to lecture, it is said. Rumor says he is about to purchase the Villa and spend his retiring days in Talbot on the soil of his nativity and bondage. The Villa was once the finest estate in the county, and could be made so again.

The Planting of the Vine.

BY EGBERT L. BANGS.

The flood was over; rich the soil,
That promised recompense to toil.
The legends of the Talmud say,
That Noah, digging hard one day,
When asked by Satan what he sought.
As with perspiring face he wrought.
"I plant the grape," the patriarch said,
As from his toil he raised his head.
Said Satan, "In favor ask,
Let us together share this task."
The tired man could not say nay,
And so the devil had his way.
A bleating lamb he caught and killed
And on the vine its blood was spilled.
"Henceforth," said Satan, "lamblike he,
O vine, who tasteth fruit of thee."
A lion's blood then wet the vine
That it might bring forth royal wine.
"Who as a lion shall he be
Who sippeth sparingly of thee,
O vine, whose clustering cups shall hold
Juice worthy to be drunk from gold."
A pig that rooted on the plain,
Was next by Satan caught and slain.
Upon the vine its blood was shed,
And as it flowed hell's monarch said:
"Who drinketh to excess of thee,
O vine, a very swine shall be."
Through all the ages since that time,
In every nation, every clime,
Wherever wine doth fill the cup,
Man gives his better nature up.
The lamb, with trembling, timid feet,
Before the lion doth retreat,
The lion to a swine doth turn
When wine in man's proud vein doth burn,
Who drinketh once will drink again,
For Satan tempteth not in vain.
Who drinketh wine his soul to bless,
Full oft drinketh to excess.
His soul he bindeth with a chain
That few indeed can rend in twain.

Breaking and Training Colts.—The usefulness of the colt depends largely on his training and development, and many a driver who can pull off a great race is not competent to break and handle colts. The boy is the type of the man, so a colt will never make a top sawyer whose disposition becomes soured in breaking or his growth stunted in developement.

No trainer or driver is competent to break or handle colts until he has first subdued himself. A man who can control himself is greater than the general who can conquer a city. The trainer, therefore, who loses his temper in breaking a colt is sure to spoil the animal; and such a man needs breaking himself. Aside from the natural instincts inherited from its ancestors the colt has to be taught all its knowledge.

In breaking a colt's education should be commenced ot weaning time. The youngster at six months old is of sufficient age to separate from his dam and breaking commenced. The first day taken up the colt is turned into a box with his dam and is halter broken, which is done very easily.

Taking an assistant to aid the trainer, he enters the stall, provided with a halter, to which in addition to the usual shank, is attached a 14-foot rope. He catches the colt and slips the halter over his head meanwhile standing close to colt and getting acquainted with him by simply carefully running his hand over the colt's head and down his neck to his withers. By gently pinching the top of his mane the colt commences to lose all fear of his new friend, an idea learned by watching young colts get acquainted with each other's manes.

The halter once on, the rope is passed back around the hind quarters, crossed on the withers, and thence again into the ring of the halter, which, while it goes far towards controling the colt, at the same time accustoms him from the first to the wearing of a breeching. The dam is then led from the stall, and the natural inclination of the colt being to follow her, he is half broken to lead before he knows it. He is never asked to go above a couple of hundred yards, and when returning is led first, the dam following. Should he evince any fright or dislaclination to lead, by allowing him to look back and see his dam coming after him, he soon becomes reassured. In this way the youngster is broken to halter generally by the first lesson.

The next day the mother is taken away and another colt of the same age substituted, experience teaching that two colts running together in the same box do better than if separated. The colts feet are trimmed up, and a light bridle, provided with a soft leather bit and a pair of 14 foot web lines, is put on, under which is worn the halter, provided with a long shank. Light shin and quarter boots, and a roll on the front tendon, are all so worn to provide at the outset, against any misstep and consequent hurt or injury, as nothing retards progress so much.

A good lead pony is one of the most indispensible things to the colt breaker, as with a poor one advancement is almost impossible. First mounting the pony with the lines and whip in hand, the colt should be allowed to become familiar with the saddler, and he thus gains confidence in his surroundings, while he can easily be made aware of the whip, the use of which he soon learns, be checked in any attempt towards too much friendliness.

Beginning this way, it is surprising to see how soon he will learn to drive tandem ahead of the pony. The meaning of whoa! and the command to go ahead are quickly fixed in his mind, while, should he attempt to rush off, he is kept in hand by the halter shank, which is grasped together with the reins, and thus controlled without sawing on the lines and injuring his mouth. By quickly bringing the pony alongside if he endeavors to sheer off too wilfully he is also taught to keep straight as well as by the pressure of the bit.

Thus working him about 10 days, during which his progress is often so rapid as to be marvelous, the colt is finally fitted out with a complete set of harness, including collar and breeching, and got accustomed to them, being driven from the ponie's back until used to his new accoutrements. He is then ready to be hitched.

When first harnessed to the cart he is hitched double, his old friend, the pony, being again his companion. Already habituated to the harness, he is made fast the cart ere he is aware of it. In starting the pair it is of the first importance that the pony should move off at once, thus inciting the colt to action, as should the latter start first, and then suddenly find himself fast and unable to pull weight it will be apt to scare and sour him.

He should be driven the first day hitched upon one side, the second on the other and by the third is to be trusted in single harness. When this point is finally reached, the pony is still brought into requisition, being ridden alongside with the rider holding the shank of the halter (which is still used), and thus serving the double purpose of not only allaying the colt's first fear and suspicions, and also as a means of control should the youngster become too obstreperous.

Let the pony drop back a little and then come up again—at first a few feet or yards only, but gradually increasing the distance until he is well behind and out of the colt's sight, and in this manner the pupil soon learns to travel along without company and the breaking is reaching the beginning of the end. On the third time hitching singly, the pony starts off beside the colt, but immediately falls back and returns to the gate, the colt going on alone. The pony is then stationed near the finish of the end of the drive to encourage the colt to step along to the stable.

It was owing to this mode of working that fast young horses are enabled to finish the last quarter of a record breaking mile in 35 seconds. Accustomed every time they are opened out to coming the last quarter as fast as possible, they would settle to their work, take hold of the utmost determination, and undisturbed by the pace-maker racing beside them finish in a way to marvellous as to excite the admiration of all horsemen.

In making speed, a yearling should be breezed out twice a day. Never drive one above three-quarters of a mile, and as before described, always send them the final eighth at top speed. Pernadis and Frou Frou were driven eights in 21 and 22 seconds at 10 months of age. Fausto as very shitty gaited, and not desiring to make a pacer of her, she was worked very slow to get her squared away, but notwithstanding, she was driven a mile in 2.40½ before Mr. Sanders returned from the East. When finally allowed to pace the wonderful rapidity with which she made speed is familiar to all turfmen.

Colts should be gaited barefooted, taking care to keep their feet level and smoothly trimmed, and should a tendency toward a mixed gait be evinced, use a light bell quarter boot loaded with a few ounces of lead to balance the action. In this way a colt, when finally shod, learns to go in a much lighter shoe than if he had been wearing a set from the first.

Use in all cases an open bridle. There are few colts if properly educated, but will work kindly if allowed to see what goes on around them, and acquire perfect mouths, an advantage so important in a trotter.

[We much prefer to handle the foal as soon as dropped, and harter break him before he is a week old. It requires less of expenditure of strength on the part of the groom, and is not nearly so liable to injure the foal.—ED.]

Sixty Million Bushels of Wheat—A Bushel for Every Inhabitant of the United States. The Kansas Crop of '92.

Never in the history of Kansas has that state had such bountiful crops as this year. The farmers cannot get enough hands to harvest the great crop, and the Santa Fe Railroad has made special rates from Kansas City and other Missouri River towns, to induce harvest hands to go into the state. The wheat crop of the state will be from sixty to sixty-five million bushels, and the quality is high. The grass crop is made and is a very large one; the early potatoes, rye, barley and oat crops are made, and are all large. The weather has been propitious for corn, and it is the cleanest, best looking corn to be found in the country to-day. Cheap rates will be made from Chicago, St. Louis and all points on the Santa Fe east of the Missouri River to all Kansas points, on August 30 and September 27, and these excursions will give a chance for the eastern farmers to see what the great Sunflower State can do. A good map of Kansas will be mailed free upon application to Jno. J. Byrne, 725 Monadnock Block, Chicago Ill., together with reliable statistics and information about Kansas lands.

It Will Pay You to get our prices on undertaking after this date. Samuel Patchett & Son, Dover St. tf
