☞ ADVERTISING RATES FURNISHED UPON APPLICATION AT THE OFFICE.

SATURDAY, - - - - - APRIL 29, 1893.

NEXT week we will give our readers more reading space. We have been compelled to omit not only much reading matter that has been prepared but several columns of advertisements this week. A supplement would not have been satisfactory to the advertisers nor to our readers, so we beg their indulgence for this and the past week or two. The GAZETTE seems to be in usual demand and this is appreciated, for we have already contracted for more than five columns of advertising space for next ssue. We hope to make the paper all that it has been and more too.and will not be slow to enlarge or at least to increase the capacity of the office, if business forces us to do so. As a rule we do not speak of the merits of the paper, and ask pardon this time.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, April 24, 1893.

What is the financial policy of the administration, or has it such a thing? These are questions that a good many people have asked during the last week; and they are still unanswered, and will probably remain so for some time to come. That the cabinet was divided upon the question of what should be done when the gold in the Treasury fell below the $100,000,000 held as a reserve fund is not denied. Secretaries Carlisle and Gresham and Attorney General Olney advising that no more gold be paid for what are known as Treasury notes, which are payable in "coin," and Mr. Cleveland and the rest of the cabinet (Secty's. Smith and Herbert were absent) favoring their continued redemption in gold which was done. Whether the adoption of Secty. Carlisle's idea would have resulted in gold going to a premium is a question. The plan adopted was simply carrying out what Secty. Foster, when at the head of the Treasury, said he would do if the necessity arose therefore, rather than issue bonds. The reserve was only impaired one day,and the Treasury now has sufficient "free gold" to meet all the demands expected this week. Thoughtful people regard the disposition to make the financial question sectional, as a source of danger. It can certainly do no good to have Mr. Carlisle posing as the champion of the South and West as against Mr. Cleveland, who is claimed to stand for the East. Any financial policy that is not for the entire United States is bound in the end to be disastrous to the administration that fathers it. A political party may, as every intelligent person knows, succeed in securing power by claiming in different sections of the country to represent different and opposite ideas but a National financial policy cannot be conducted on any such basis without a smash-up.

The administration declined to act upon a hint that Max Judd, of St. Louis, formerly of Austria, would not be acceptable to the Austrian government as U. S. Consul General at Vienna, and it now finds itself confronted with the positive refusal of that government to receive him. It cannot leave the place vacant, as was done in the first Cleveland administration when the Austrians declined to receive the U. S. minister appointed by Mr. Cleveland, because large business interests required the constant presence at Vienna of an American Consul General. This is a clear case of obstinacy, as Mr. Judd might easily have been given another place as soon as it was known that he was objectionable to the Austrians,which was as soon as his nomination was made public.

Few republicans have any love for the man who changes his politics for the purpose of retaining or getting an office. The action of Postmaster Gen. Bissell in notifying S. J. Watt, postmaster at Columbus, Georgia, who was originally appointed as a democrat by Mr. Cleveland during his first administration, re-appointed four years ago by Gen. Harrison as a republican, and is now here seeking another re-appointment as a democrat, that he would be removed as soon as his successor was selected, gives general satisfaction.

The much talked about decision of Judge Ricks at Toledo, Ohio, will this week be brought before the Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus for the release of engineer Lennon, who was sentenced to prison thereunder. The labor organization will be represented by E. W. Harper, of Indiana, and ex-Congressman Hurd, of Ohio.

Christopher Columbus is on top this week. His distinguished descendant, the Duke of Veragua, is at present in Washington, the guest of the Nation. He was given a state reception at the White House to-day, and on Wednesday he and his party will accompany Mr. Cleveland and the cabinet to New York and take part in the official ceremonies attending the close of the International Naval Review in New York harbor. The duke is delighted with America as well as with his reception by the American people, and he anticipates much pleasure in attending the Columbian Exposition.

Mrs. Gen. Grant, now in Washington, it is said to remain permanently, paid Mrs. Cleveland a social visit Saturday, at the White House, and enjoyed renewing her acquaintance with the scenes amid which she spent eight happy years. Mrs. Cleveland paid her marked attention; she has been her personal friend and admirer for some years.

CAROLINE DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Edward E. Rogers.

UNCLE SOC ON THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION.

Mr. Editur:—Deer Sir,

As I predickted Mr. Cleveling got there. I knowd all the time that right would prevail and if it didn't Grover would hev to either reduce his expenses or increase his law bizness. They's a few pints in Pres. Cleveling's character and jineral build that I rarely like and have thunk about in my dreams. In the fust place Grover air a hull team. In the second place he air firm: when he puts his fut down onto a subjick (and his fut air a prominent feature and costs purty considabul to clothe) that air subjick gits a hustle onto it to onct. Thardly, they haint no blame fulishness about carryin on this here government; if he thinks that his predecessor made a mess of the tariff he says so, and if said predecessor gives him any of his sass he don't invite him to any more of his taffy pulins. Fourthly, he has some original notions of his own about a durn lot of matters that goes right to a feller's heart (if he be a dimynerat) and makes him wish he hadn't sold his vote last fall to the republicans. Frinstance, the Indjun question air handled in a cool and philosophical way—wot seems strange to us after thirty years of the other way. Mind now, I haint mentioned no names. President Cleveling thinks that the Indjun wasn't created for to be cheated by the present gineration—he seems to think that when a feller air rout out thar as a Agent he oughter be satisfied with his salary 'thout drinkin the pore Indjun's Whiskey. And he don't keer a durn for a man's perlitical complexion if he only knows a Injun when he sees one. That's the kind of Injun agent Cleve wants and air goin t> have, even if he hafter sell the Columbian Expostion fer to git him, b'gosh! Fifthly, he takes his own time bout fillin offices but fills them full when he does git a move onto his elf. He finds a man as big as the office or that office waits a spell while he takes a nuther look at the crowd. And sixthly, Pres. Cleveling could run this or anyother government 'thout any Cabinet or private secretary if he wanted to, but he don't wanter. He don't need nobody's advice, but he's perlite and listens to others and then does as he blame druther.

I like Mr. Cleveling and I would be glad to show my appreciation of his qualities and kindness of heart by accepting a office under his administration. I would hev to make sacrifices fer to do so, and would have to hire a man to hoe my 'taters, but when I like a feller I am willin to accommodate him or bust a spender tryin. The ole 'oman says I may go if I wanter, and that's encourigin.
