BLESSED are the mirthful, for mirthfulness is God's medicine—one of the renovators of the world.—H. W. Beecher.

THE high price for hogs which prevailed a year ago influenced a free marketing and a consequent scarcity this year. It is predicted that the present heavy marketing of cattle this year will produce similar results among cattle, so that the herders of the great West and Southwest have something to which to look forward.

WHY do the bicycle makers palm off a kind on the men that makes them look, when riding, like spiders suspended in mid air, while for the ladies they so arrange the saddle and pedals that the riders can sit and look as graceful as if occupying a seat before a piano? Why should not the male riders have their bicycles so constructed that stoop shoulders, or what the New York Tribune calls "Kyphosis Bicyclistarum," the "bicycle riders' stoop," will not be inevitable?

THE war against diminutive girl names is still waged. A diminutive name for a girl is very appropriate as long as the girl remains diminutive. But a full grown woman should have a full grown name. When women begin to vote and to hold office there will be something incongruous in having a president named Mamie, with a cabinet composed of Flossie, Mollie, Dollie, Susie, Bessie, Kittie and Bertie.

THE Star gets much satisfaction in reporing Mr. Bennett as more hostile to the republicans than to the democrats. The only credit we heard him give the democrats was when he said the party was a truthful one on the whiskey question as they were a whiskey party and owned it and gloried in it and did not try to squirm out of being so considered. He treated the old parties with remarkable fairness and justice we thought.—From the eulogies he paid that grand old party we would suspect him of being as willing to have a dead cat hung around his neck as to be thought a democrat, although he was once a loyal, ranting, whiskey, moss-back specimen of the breed.

THE editor of the GAZETTE had an interview with Mr. J. M. Wooters with reference to his absence when the Kansas Cyclone struck Cordova on Thursday of last week, in which he regretted very much that he was called away on business and not able to enjoy a fresh breeze from Kansas. Mr. Wooters said it was much drier then than it was on the day of the cyclone, and is thinking more about the effect of a good rain to make corn, grass and vegetables grow to feed the people of the land, thereby enabling farmers to realize money on their products and pay their debts and subscriptions to their newspapers than he is about politics, or the result of the efforts of a cyclone, unless such would bring plenty to all.

TIME will soon prove which end is dog and which end is tail by the wagging. The fight for the senatorship is shaping and lines are being drawn among the Talbot democrats. The two T's are measuring lengths. The one has always been a hard worker in the cause of democracy and has been shown the door out on more than one occasion. But faithful to his convictions and true to his scent when he points his nose down the trail for office, he returns with a bone to offer the other occupants of the kennel and the first thing he knows he is in the race again. The other is a man who is said to have been a wonderful help to the democrats by going rabbit hunting on election day. He has the advantage of being of royal breed and is on favorite terms with the boss of the pack. He has a decidedly mellow note and the music sounds pleasant, so it is hard to tell just which will get the game—the scenting worker or the blooded favorite. At the democratic primaries one will prove dog and the other tail, or both will be tail while the dog is yet to be heard from. Time will prove.

MR. BENNETT said that if the money spent for rum was used to build houses, the country could not supply the lumber, nor the factories the nails nor could enough builders be found to erect them. And what a blessing it would be to have that money diverted to a cause to bless mankind rather than to a cause that curses him,

All this sounds rational and meets with a responsive echo in every heart. But stop for a moment to consider if all this be true. In the first place if that money did not pass through the till of the liquor dealer thence to the breweries, thence to the workmen engaged in them, thence to the manufactories and merchants, etc. would it be piled up dollar for dollar so that it would be available? No, it would circulate in some other channel, some for blessings some for evil uses, it would all be scattered to the four corners of the world as it is at present.—Again, it would be only a fair estimate to presume that each dime spent for drink did not then and there cease to circulate, but would continue to buy hundreds of drinks as it passed from hand to hand among the drinking people. And the pile of money which actually bought drinks would be found not so large but that if turned into buildings, we would have material and workmen sufficient to erect them.

We are not defending the liquor traffic, far from it, but when a comparison is made that does not do justice and only prejudices without reason, then it is fair to call attention to it. Why not take the immense amount of money spent for other wickedness and divertions that disgrace humanity and heap it into millions and say what an amount of good it would do? Why simply because there would be no argument in it—only a statement to appall the understanding, and that is all.

REV. MARTIN VAN BUREN BENNETT the Kansas Cyclone, has been stumping the county this week in the interest of the Prohibition party. He addressed a large audience on the Court House square Friday night of last week. He was greatly admired by the prohibitionists and did not hurt the feelings of the members of the other parties so far as we have been informed. The democrats were particularly jubilant when he scored the republicans and the republicans were dignified when he lavished his anathemas upon the democrats, all in his good natured style.

His arguments were statistical, anecdotical, at times convincing and at times rather vague. That he was an unusually entertaining speaker none dispute. If he has not made many converts to the prohibition cause, he has probably done much to awaken a greater interest in the subject about here than any who may have preceded him.

WE are asked again and again why we are not a Prohibitionist. Why is it the editor of the GAZETTE, such a pronounced temperance man, is not a third party man and a radical prohibitionist. Where do you stand on the question anyhow? Some think you are with us because you are not against us. And so the questions come, and will continue to come. We will attempt an answer though it might not have much in it that will show the exact workings of our mind in this respect.

In the first place we are not a preacher nor the son of a preacher. We are not a religious enthusiast nor a pattern of holiness. But if we wished to be taught the principles of justice, fairness, brotherly love and virtue we know of no higher authority than the New Testament. What age of the world needed a reformation more than did the age and place in which Jesus appeared? Did he raise a force of arms to put down the abuses of the moral law? Did he inaugurate a prohibition party or a party of teachers and practitioners? Did he come to condemn the world or to save? Did he say "thou shalt not" or say "blessed are they" who do so and so? Did he teach righteousness by prohibiting the passions of the wicked? He knew that men forced beyond their ability to understand were three-fold more the children of the Devil than if allowed to go unmolested until the work of regeneration had enlightened their conscience to a full understanding of their duty.

We believe in the prohibition party as a disseminator of the principles of temperance, and as a teacher of morals and better living among men. We believe in the work of the W. C. T. U. in its efforts to raise fallen man to a higher plane. We believe in all well directed movements for the betterment of society, but we have not got to the point when we believe in force, or legislating righteousness through the ballot box. We will hail the day when this question of ardent drink and the use of narcotics will have so taken possession of the masses that with one voice throughout the land all parties will proclaim that a Christian people have no use for them.—Not through "prohibition" but through education and enlightenment will this condition come as surely as have come all other reforms through the light of the gospel, silently permeating every party and people.

MORE money is the cry all over the land. The people want more money to liquidate the indebtedness under which they are groaning. Where does the trouble lie, all have a theory and all a redress. The republican says it is the lack of confidence and fear of legislation. The democrat says it is the fault of legislation and the tariff. The prohibitionists thinks it the whiskey power controlling the laws in the interests of rum. But after all what is it? These theories do not satisfy the rank and file of the people. All they know is that the times are oppressive and that money is short—locked up somewhere and not being used for the legitimate purposes for which it was created. Few among the massess stop to realize that money, per se, has no value. If the circulating medium was cut down to one tenth its present bulk, the purchasing power of a cent would then be equal to the power of a dime now. The man who then earned his dime a day would be as independent as the one who earns his dollar now. On the other hand if the quantity was increased ten fold the intrinsic value would proportionately decrease, and a ten dollar bill would buy no more then than a dollar buys now, other things being equal. So it is not the inflation nor restriction of coinage that must solve the dilemma.

The law of supply and demanm dust be regarded and looked to for all remedies in the trying situation. As a nation if we are supplying more than we demand we are prosperous, if on the other hand we are demanding more than we supply we must eventually come to want. The same may be said of individuals and communities. There are limitations to the law of supply and demand when it comes to healthy business activity, there can be too much supply for the demand, or there may be a greater demand than the supply can possibly fill, in either case it produces an unhealthy condition, which if long continued will cause a reaction in the opposite direction and before the equilibrium is established business houses topple and a panic sometimes is the result.

The desire to speculate on the prospects of the future too often produce financial distress. The farmer, to satisfy his desires this year will draw on the crop of next year, the weather fails him, he cannot meet his obligations and all his savings go to reward those who accommodated him in carrying out his desires. The same with every form of speculation it is building on a foundation that may or may not prove stable.

Monopolies have a great deal to do with the depression of the times. They force the supply down and the demand up beyond a general healthy condition. The desire to become rich or get more than one is willing to give in exchange—to obtain money without an equal amount of labor, (which too many have the faculty of doing under the license of the law thereby sapping the circulation of business life from the veins of the laborer who gives to the country all the wealth it enjoys) is another cause of depression. This produces an army of dependents fighting for existence, who in turn make an army of idlers and convicts, who in turn make increased taxation that falls back most heavily on the laborer again. Thus the wheel revolves and at each turn the condition of things is worse than it was before.

What is to be done? That is the question.

Equalize taxation; encourage home enterprise and protect home industries within fair and honorable competition, thus keeping the laborer employed at living wages; avoid asking credit and learn to live within the limits of circumstances. With it all, it will then matter not whether the silver dollar has fifty cents' worth of silver in it or not, so long as it is recognized by a strong government to pay a dollar's worth of debt.

For the Gazette.

EDITORIAL CRITICISM, FRIENDLY AND OTHERWISE, OF VAN BENNETT.

MR. EDITOR:—Allow me brief space in behalf of many Prohibitionists and others to thank you for your candid estimate of the speaker above named in your last issue. I will say further in this direction that yesterday at the meeting at Wye, Rev. Mr. Collins read your political parody upon the 23rd Psalm published several weeks ago in the GAZETTE which all recognize as a clever hit. You can no doubt refresh your reader's minds by its re-publication. There is but one stricture I would place upon your last week's editorial and that is your reference to and seeming endorsement of the idea of prohibition as a moral issue alone. This can hardly be true now, in fact, as political parties are organized upon acceptance or rejection of it in their platforms and must fight against or for it. Neither can any great issue like this be simply moral and not political among a self governing people. Other great moral issues have forced themselves into the political arena; such as the rights secured by Magna Charta; American Independence; Non-interference with American Seamen; Annexation of Texas; freedom of soil for Americans; also questions of domestic policy such as tariff and finance. Separate the moral element from these issues around which parties have stood and they would lose their political importance. So prohibition is a political because a great moral issue. But it is not in order to argue uninvited with the GAZETTE in its own columns. We simply claim that besides the commendation it gives Mr. Bennett his arguments are unanswered. Now a word about the Star's criticism this week, not for controversy but for explanation. The term "Cyclone" which the Star seems to think a catch advertisement, Mr. Bennett does not use himself. It attached to him as Stonewall Jackson's dame did, as a term used by another. A political competitor once said of him pleasantly that he had canvassed a state with the velocity of a cyclone. The fact that the name follows him because crowds everywhere hear him with his marvelous influence is no just cause for derision. Concerning one statement of the Star, it must have misunderstood. I have carefully listened to six of his speeches; have heard him compliment both Mr. Harrison and Mr. Cleveland personally. was at Easton the 21st and do not remember ever hearing him say that "there had not been an honest chief magistrate of this country for twenty five years." On the contrary, the people testify everywhere that his speeches are free from that abusiveness so common. As thousands have heard him this statement will find its natural answer in the impression made. Again it is claimed by the Star that his views upon the monetary system are identical with its own. Careful examination will show, we think that there is a difference while both favor the use of gold, silver and paper upon an equality, the usage of the present administration even, is to accord gold a value and receivability the others do not have given them by the law. A little further inquiry will convince the Star of a great difference in the practical workings of the two systems, which of them may be best we need not now discuss.

Of course all prohibitionists will maintain, notwithstanding the editorials named, that Christian men will carry their moral convictions into their actions as citizens. They have done so concerning other questions and will still so do. The prestige of the old parties is not so great as to prevent political reform upon a moral basis and that lesson they had just as well begin to learn.

J. M. LINDALE.

[All that the GAZETTE says this week about the Prohibition party was in type previous to the receipt of the above communication, and has no reference to anything in this article.—ED.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT,

Washington, July 23, 1893.

It takes very lively hustling these days to keep up with the changes in the plans of the administration. The announcement was made months ago that the administration in conjunction with several eminent free traders intended to prepare a tariff bill and that Secretary Carlisle's supposed knowledge on the subject was the principal reason for his having been made Secretary of the Treasury—his best friends never claimed that he was selected for his financial knowledge, they couldn't, because he had none. This was printed in all the administration papers and was never denied until now, when Secretary Carlisle says that no tariff bill is being prepared, and that neither he nor President Cleveland ever "thought of doing anything which might be interpreted as an attempt to dictate to the House what it should do in regard to the tariff". He forgets however, to tell why this statement was not made long ago, which makes the inference clear that the free trade idea has been, for the time any way, abandoned.

Democratic Congressmen have already begun to do some very plain talking to Commissioner Lochren about the wholesale suspension of pensions he has been making, and unless they are quieted in some way a number of them representing districts having a large number of old solder voters will join the republicans in bringing this matter before Congress.

There seems to be a hitch somewhere in regard to the House committee chairmanships, Inasmuch as Mr. Crisp's re-election to be Speaker has been a certainty for months past it is difficult to understand why there should be any delay in announcing the committees and it was not supposed there would be. Mr. Crisp's friends have been saying ever since he was here several weeks ago that he would arrange the committees before he returned and expected to announce them just as soon as he took his seat as Speaker; but, as I said, there seems to be a hitch somewhere, for these same men now say that he hopes to complete the committees within a week or ten days after Congress meets. This sort of thing is mere child's play, and this announcement is now made not because Mr. Crisp does not expect to have the committee assignments all made when he comes to Washington next week, but because he fears that the rows which will follow his having obeyed Mr. Cleveland's orders in making those assignments will necessitate making some changes after he gets here before they are made public.

Comptroller Eckels wants to be Secretary of the Treasury and he is said to have started the last rumor about the intended retirement of Sec. Carlisle because of a disagreement with Mr. Cleveland.

Secretary Carlisle denies very emphatically the rumor which came from New York, that he had been tendered the vacancy in the Supreme Court caused by the death of Justice Blatchford. But when asked whether he would accept it is it were tendered to him he was discreetly silent: as becomes a man who would be very glad to let some other fellow hold up the financial end of the administration, if he could only read his title clear to a membership in the Supreme Court. His anxiety on the subject has not been lessened by the statement made several days ago by a friend of Sec. Gresham, and not up to this time contradicted, that Mr Cleveland had promised that the influence of the administration should be exerted to make Gresham the democratic presidential nominee in '96. Mr. Carlisle had been encouraging the bee to do a little buzzing around his head, but he knows there cannot be two administration candidates.

There is one set of democrats in Washington who are not slow in expressing their dislike of the cheese paring in the last Congress, on at least one of the appropriation bills.—It is made up of officials of the Post Office Department who find themselves unable to meet the demands of postmasters throughout the country in the matter of additional help, owing to insufficiency of the appropriation. These officials are already getting some plain talk and it will probably become plainer when they shall have alloted the money at their disposal for increased help at the Presidential post offices. Some of the very Congressmen who were loudest in their demands for reduction when the appropriation was before Congress are now loudest in complaining because offices in their districts cannot get what has been asked for.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD EXHIBIT AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

A Glimpse at its Interesting Treasures.

Of more real interest to the average visitor to the World's Fair than all the confusing array of locomotives, cars, ships, wagons, bicycles and velocipedes in the great Transportation Building is the compact yet comprehensive exhibit which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company makes in its own beautiful little model railway station. What with signal tower, over head foot-bridge, automatic switches, tracks, ballast, and ditches just outside its door, and the original "John Bull" locomotive, the oldest in America, with its trains of antique cars, and the colossal iron vehicles upon which the hugh Krupp guns were conveyed from Baltimore to the Exposition standing in the shadow of its walls, it presents to the passer-by an appearance so distinctly characteristic that a careful inspection of the treasures of the interior is almost inevitable.

Once inside, you enter immediately into a study of transportation history in the United States on the kindergarten or object lesson basis, and by means of models, ranging from the old Conestoga wagon, through a series of curiously fashioned cars, up to the standard locomotives and passenger coaches of to-day, you secure a most effective idea of railroad progress. Nor do the models here shown have to do with vehicles only. In the cases which line the walls of the cool, white interior are also to be seen models of track of all periods, various systems of signals in use at different times, and even tickets and time-tables, not forgetting conductors' punches and lanterns.

In the way of models, the post of honor is given to a magnificent reproduction of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's new double-deck ferry-boat "Washington," which plies between New York and Jersey City, a model complete in every detail, even to the electric lighting and the rubber mats at the doors. Maps, in relief, of a most interesting and instructive character are numerous, not the least important being one four feet wide by twelve feet long, showing at once the old Portage, the new Portage, and the present road of the company over the Alleghenies, all arranged to a scale, and giving a better notion of that wonderful feat of engineering, the Horse-shoe Curve, than can even be had by a trip over it.

To furnish a comprehensive idea of the magnitude of the Pennsylvania Railroad system no better method could have been adopted than that which is here presented in the shape of a perspective map, thirty-three feet long, showing the position of each train in motion on the system at 6 P. M. on Columbia Day, October 21st, 1892, the passenger trains being indicated by tiny gilt locomotives, and the freight trains by similar locomotives colored blue. In addition to all this there is are cases of photographs posters, letters, bills, and other documents, all more or less interesting, and a number of wax figures, clothed in uniforms of the Pennsylvania's working staff of employes, from baggage porters to conductors.

FRAME FURNISHED WITH PORTRAIT.

Are you fortunate enough in having a Photograph, Tin Type or Box Picture of a Wife, Husband or Friend, deceased or living, and from which you would like a large one made for the Easel or Wall? If so, and you wish work of real merit and a good likeness, advise me by mail and I will call, show you samples and quote prices. Any changes desired in wearing apparel, arranging hair differently or removing from a group can be successfully made. Broken Glass Pictures, Photographs nearly obliterated or Tintypes badly scratched are corrected and freed from imperfections. We are not offering Portraits less than Cost, but placing goods into your homes that are Right, are finished with care by skilled artists and at Prices that allow us margin enough to live, and not so high that you cannot do the same. Give me a trial order, and if not satisfactory, you are at no expense. Would respectfully refer you to any of the business houses in town for my standing, quality of work I put out, etc. Hoping for a very liberal patronage.

ATTENTION FARMERS.

WE ARE IN THE FIELD THIS SEASON with the best and most complete assortment of Implements and Machinery ever offered on the Eastern Shore. First come Plows, and the "Bissell" leads them all in lightness of draft and best work in all conditions of land. Next comes the "Oliver" pattern plow manufactured by Bissell, which is, we claim, superior to any Oliver sold; this plow we have sold a great many of during the past and present seasons and can give a host of references supporting our claim. Lastly comes the "Advance," which is too well known to need any comments. Of the Harrows we are selling the complete line made by D. M. Osborne & Co., including Spring Tooth, Spike Tooth, and Disc—the Spring Tooth especially being the grandest thing of its kind ever put on the market. One of them last winter sold at a sale for $16 which was within $2 of what it cost originally, the bidding having commenced at $10.

In Corn Planters we have the U. S. Combined Check Row Corn Planter. This Planter uses a plunger direct from the check row rod to the rotary seed plates and does away with all the shakebar and center irons between the seed boxes. A single pin spring anchor is furnished with the U. S. and with their use the wire can be drawn the same tension at each end of the field, thereby insuring great accuracy in planting.

Our Sulky Cultivator is the "Akron," which is already at the top of the heap both as a cultivator and as a fallow worker.

We are still selling the Osborne Binders and Mowers, which are most reliable, and also the Empire Binders and Mowers, which are new to this section, but have more good points than any machine ever sold.

Farm Wagons—We are handling the "Jackson" and "Auburn." The Jackson is the old Webster very much improved and no one should think of buying a wagon without seeing them. To continue to enumerate all the good things that we have would take up so much of your time that we will cease with the assurance that no matter what you may want we believe we can suit you from a shoe peg to a traction engine.

P. S.—Barb Wire is lower than ever before. Do you need some? We have a large supply.

E. T. NICOLS.
