A YOUTHFUL OUTLAW.

A 19-Year-Old Boy Shoots Two Men In Oklahoma and Is Captured.

In Green County, R. T. Anderson, lately from Belleville, Ill., quarreled with his employer, H. O. Buckley, and fatally wounded him. Anderson fled to the woods and when a posse went after him he shot Constable Ferris and kept the crowd at bay for hours.

A continual fire was kept up on both sides. He was finally captured and is being held by the posse, though in danger of being lynched. He is only 19 years old.

Pot Boiling.

From the running of the maple trough in the Spring to the boiling of the apple butter pot in the fall, and all household boiling between times, there are a thousand chances of very severe scalds and burns. In all household work, winter and summer, in great factories and in nurseries, where careless children play with matches, there is need of something to be always on hand in such emergencies, and St. Jacobs Oil fills that want to the letter. With careful attention to directions for use, there is nothing more soothing, healing and curative than this great remedy for pain. It cures promptly, and, making a new surface, leaves no scars. The pain of scalds or burns is acute and torturing, and the relief by the use of the Oil is immediate and sure.

Cleverness is a sort of genius for instrumentality. It is the brain of the hand.

Nervous

People find just the help they so much need in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It furnishes the desired strength by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood, and thus builds up the nerves, tones the stomach and regulates the whole system. Read this:

"I want to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla. My health run down, and I had the grip. After that, my heart and nervous system were badly affected, so that I could not do my own work. Our physician gave me some help, but did not cure. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Soon I could do all my own housework. I have taken Hood's Pills with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and they have done me much good. I will not be without them. I have taken 13 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and through the blessing of God, it has cured me. I worked as hard as ever the past summer, and I am thankful to say I am well. Hood's Pills when taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla help very much."

Cured

TORNADO IN KANSAS.

Five Persons Killed, Twenty Injured and Much Property Destroyed.

Five persons at least were killed outright, three fatally and seventeen more or less injured and great destruction of property was wrought by a tornado which passed over Clay county, Kansas.

The tornado started about six miles south of Clifton and went in a northeasterly direction for twelve or fifteen miles, then lost its force by spreading. It passed about half way between Clifton and Morganville.

Its tracks varied from 150 yards to a quarter of a mile in width. It tore through a farming community and left nothing standing. Houses and barns were wrecked, trees torn up or broken, fences leveled and haystacks blown in every direction. The tornado was followed by a terrific rainstorm, which lasted several hours, flooding the devastated district.

The victims were in their houses and the most of them had retired. The storm struck Peter Anderson's house at 9.30 o'clock. This was about a mile from the starting point. The house was demolished in an instant. Every member of the Anderson family was injured. When they had extricated themselves from the debris they discovered that Anderson's grandchild was missing. The dead body of the child was found in a ravine half a mile away.

A large number of cattle and horses were killed and fruit in the storm's track was ruined

Many of the injured lay all night pinned down by wreckage, while others crawled or hobbled across the country to neighbor's house. In several instances people were lifted into the air by the wind and carried for a distance.

FOR STARS AND STRIPES.

EFFORT IN CONGRESS TO HELP AMERICAN MERCANTILE MARINE.

May Revive the Old Discriminating Import Duties—Policy That Flew Our Flag on the High Seas—Was Dropped to Suit British Notions.

Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, who, by the way, is among the real friends of protection in the Senate who has repeatedly expressed a desire to see some legislation enacted by the present Congress in the interests of the falling interests of the country, is also making a good fight for the enactment of a shipping law that shall discriminate in favor of the shipping interests of the United States. Senator Elkins is a stalwart protectionist, and he is ready to support any measure that will be beneficial to American interests, whether of the factory, the farm or of commerce. In reply to the question recently propounded by us to the Senators respecting their duty toward the Dingley Revenue bill, Senator Elkins replied promptly, and with great earnestness, that he favored pressing the bill to a vote at every opportunity, and that he had been of that opinion from the beginning.

The West Virginia Senator is equally in earnest with respect to the bill which he introduced early in the session, the object of which was to restore the discriminating policy as enacted by former legislation of Congress, by which American ships carrying goods imported from foreign ports are to be given an advantage over ships owned and sailed by foreigners. This policy is in line with the best protection to American shipping, which is certainly entitled to every fair advantage that can be given by the laws of an American Congress.

Senator Elkins's bill is still quietly sleeping in the pigeon holes of the Committee on Commerce, and although that committee is presided over by so good a friend of American shipping as is Senator Frye, of Maine, there does not appear to be any prospect of the bill being reported and favorably considered during the remaining few days of this session. Like the Revenue bill, and similar measures that are designed to give more and better protection to American interests from the tremendous competition to which they are subjected by the cheap labor and low standard of living in the old world, the Shipping bill must wait until the Senators become awakened to a realizing sense of the duty of the hour.

It is creditable to Senator Elkins, however, that in the face of the discouragements of the times he continues his fight for all protective measures, and that he promises to stir up the Senate before the present session is ended with some vigorous talk and work for the Shipping bill and discriminating duties in favor of our shipping.

The history of such discriminating duties, the levying of a 10 per cent. additional duty on goods imported from foreign countries when they are brought in here in foreign ships, gives so much evidence of the beneficent effects of that policy upon our shipping that it would seem that a mere reference to it should arouse even the Republican members of the United States Senate. Every time that policy was tried it resulted in splendidly stimulating the American merchant marine. During the periods when the discriminating duties were enforced our shipping interests were materially revived, and the abandonment of the policy was promptly followed by a corresponding decline in our shipping interests. After more than half a century of do-nothing policy, and the competition of the heavily subsidized shipping lines of foreign countries that are aggressive in their contests for trade, the result has been that American ships are carrying only 11 per cent. of our foreign trade. Under the policy of protection to our manufacturing industries, and in spite of the vicious and unrelenting opposition of the free trade party, our industries have thrived and prospered until the present blight of the free trade administration. But, even during those years of continuous protection to domestic industries, the American shipping interests were denied one of the simplest and safest means of securing to it protective advantages by the adoption of a policy that would also afford additional protection to American industries, and put more money in the Treasury, where it is now so greatly needed.

We wish Senator Elkins success in his battle for more protection to American shipping. He is so true a friend to protection to all our industries that his labors in behalf of our shipping interests cannot but result in good fruits at no distant day. And the sooner the better. The policy he advocates is distinctly American in idea and spirit. In results, also, it would be distinctly of American advantage. Therefore we need it. And the more legislation of a similar character that we can place upon our statute books the better it will be for the United States.

Protection for Hay Crops.

Farmers are appealing to Congress for increased protection for their hay. Thousands of petitions have been in circulation in the country in the past few weeks, signed by hundreds of thousands of farmers, asking Congress to increase the duty on hay, because of the enormous increase in the importations of hay, mostly from Canada, since the repeal of the McKinley law. The rate of duty on hay under the McKinley tariff was four dollars per ton. In the year following the enactment of that law the importations of hay dropped from 125,000 tons to 29,000 tons. The Wilson law reduced the duty to $2 per ton and the result has been an enormous increase in the importations of hay.

The amount of hay brought into the country since the enactment of the Wilson law has been more than double what it was in the corresponding length of time under the McKinley law. The official figures for the first seventeen months of the Wilson law show a total importation of 373,860 tons of hay, against 140,083 tons in the last seventeen months of the McKinley law. This is an increase of 233,773 tons. It will thus be seen that the importations under the new law, by reason of the reduction in the tariff rates, have increased more than 150 per cent., and that nearly two million dollars, which would otherwise have gone to the farmers of the United Stases, have left the country for the benefit of foreign farmers.

McKinley on Labor Conditions.

No worthy American wants to reduce the price of labor in the United States. It ought not to be reduced; for the sake of the laborer and his family and the good of society it ought to be maintained. To increase it would be in better harmony with the public sense. Our labor must not be debased, nor our laborers degraded to the level of slaves, nor any pauper or servile system in any form, nor under any guise whatsoever, at home or abroad. Our civilization will not permit it. Our humanity forbids it. Our traditions are opposed to it. The stability of our institutions rests upon the contentment and intelligence of all our people, and these can only be possessed by maintaining the dignity of labor and securing to it its just rewards. That protection opens new avenues for employment, broadens and diversifies the field of labor, and presents variety of vocation, is manifest from our own experience.—Hon. William McKinley.

Under Republican Administration.

With our factories again set in motion under a more thorough system of protective tariff, with increased revenues for the Treasury to maintain the Government credit and a sound currency and with the restoration of the reciprocity treaties, the people of the United States will enter upon an era of great prosperity.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Less Work for Our Labor.

There was imported during the month of February $5,352,410 worth of manufactured woolens. This is more than double the imports of woolen goods during the corresponding month of 1892 under the McKinley tariff.

A devil fish, measuring fifteen and one-half feet from the tip of one of its eight arms to the tip of another and ten feet from the top of its head to the tip of its longest arm, was killed in the channel at Santa Barbrra, Cal., by two boys a few days ago. It was the largest devil fish ever caught in those waters.

There are only two survivors in France of Napoleon's grand army, and one of them, M. Baillod, was recently decorated by President Faure with the cross of the Legion of Honor. Baillod is 103 years old, and still reasonably active, though after Waterloo he was discharged from the army as a consumptive.

A white coon that hasn't a dark hair on its body is owned at Weiser, Idaho, and is a kind of town pet. It has distinguished itself by whipping all the dogs in the neighborhood, and is sure death to cats that stray into its vicinity. It spends most of its time chained to the sidewalk outside its owner's store.

An unusually large octopus, with eight arms, each measuring a little less than six feet in length, was killed at Alameda, Cal., a few days ago. The fish fastened its tentacles on a boat which a fisherman was rowing in the harbor. The man rowed his boat ashore, the fish still clinging to it, and killed the octopus with an oar.

His Funny $230 Cable Message.

In the course of a lecture delivered in Omaha, Neb., recently Edward Rosewater, editor of the Bee, said:

"In August, 1866, I was manager of the Omaha office of the Pacific Telegraph Company, and on the day after it was announced that the Atlantic cable had been completed, my attention was directed to a message that was being repeated from Denver. The message was:

"Denver, Col., August 3, 1866.—To Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor, Tuilleries, Paris, France: Please leave Bohemia alone. No interference will be tolerated by this Territory. JOHN GILPIN, Governor.

"I remarked at the time that it was evident there were people out in Colorado who had more money than brains, but when I was asked what should be done with the message, I gave instructions to send it to New York direct. At that time there was no telegraphic communication between New York and the American terminus of the cable at St. John's, and the message had to be sent from New York to St. John's by steamer. Soon after I received a bill from the New York office against Denver for $134 in gold, which represented the expense of sending the telegram at that time. I sent the bill on to Denver, but the Denver people did not seem to take much notice of it, and they finally said that they did not understand what it all meant. I assured them that they would have to pay that amount for that message, unless they recalled it before the steamer sailed, but they failed to do so. I never heard what the Emperor said when he received the cablegram, but I know that eventually the claim for $230, which was what $134 in gold was worth at that time, was pressed against the Denver office and they had to pay it.

"More recently I met Governor Gilpin and ventured to inquire if he remembered the telegram. But for some reason he did not seem to consider the allusion at all funny, and refrained from discussing the subject."—New York Press.
