A VISTA OF FASHION.

Fete Gowns and Gowns For Yachting, Boating and Seaside Wear.

The command to walk "in silk attire," which was proclaimed by the goddess of fashion at the beginning of the season, still holds good, two favorite silken fabrics at the moment being the foulards of all descriptions and the glace silks.

Some of the prettiest foulard gowns, in blue and white, are made up over separate foundations of grass green silk and trimmed with a kind of trellis-work, either of cream or black lace insertion, under which the foulard is cut away, so that the green lining is prettily visible, the color being modified very effectually by the lace which is laid over it. This lace, by the way, should be of some very fine light pattern.

Race gowns and fete gowns generally claim attention at this season. The dainty floral muslins are among the newest summer fabrics, and they make delightful dresses, made up over a separate foundation of silk in some pale color, such as turquoise blue, rose leaf pink, or daffodil yellow. As to the designs of the colored muslins, many of them are distinctly of Louis XVI origin, with their little bouquets or baskets of brightly colored flowers scattered over the cream white surface of the muslin and linked together by narrow blue ribbons representing a series of true lovers' knots.

A STYLISH BODICE.

Gowns of fine cream lawn and muslin, made over various bright colors, will also be much worn, the clear, cool white, or cream color, toning down very effectually the brilliant shades of the silken lining.

Boating and river costumes and those suitable for the summer visits to the sea are in order now, and for such occasions serge or a fine thin cloth is invaluable, especially if smartly relieved with white. Periwinkle blue and a deep hyacinth blue are likely to be fashionable during the summer, just as now a favorite shade is violette de parme.

The very stylish bodice here illustrated would be delightful as a boating gown of royal blue serge, or in the softer and grayer hyacinth tint. The lining is closely shaped and on this the full vest of white cloth, with blue braiding, is arranged. Over this comes the serge blouse, turned out with wide revers, outlined with blue and gold braid, and above these a large white collar, square at the back and also outlined with the braid. The neck is finished with a stock and bow of cream white india muslin or a plaited bow of blue silk may be worn if too much white is unbecoming.

A handsome yachting costume is also made in royal blue serge with collar and revers of pink cloth and a vest of pink silk trimmed with rows of cream lace.

A Fragrant Rose Jar.

Those who have been gathering and "curing" rose leaves with salt through the month of June in preparation for a potpourri will appreciate these directions from The Decorator and Furnisher: If there is a quart in all, you have the foundation of a good potpourri. Now, transfer the stock to a glass fruit jar, on the bottom of which you have placed two ounces of bruised allspice and as much stick cinnamon broken into large pieces. The water, if any, should be first drained away. Here allow it to remain one month, closely covered, stirring it up thoroughly every day from top to bottom.

It is now ready for permanent preservation. The blue and white Japanese jar is best to hold it, for it preserves the fragrance. Now have ready an ounce each of mace, cinnamon, cloves and allspice coarsely ground, the same quantity of sliced ginger root and nutmeg, half as much aniseed and four ounces of musk with six ounces of dried lavender flowers. Again strew the rose leaves in the permanent jar, alternating with these mixed spices, moistening from time to time with pure alcohol, using about one gill in all, and the jar is complete. If desired, other flowers may be added, such as violets, heliotropes, mignonettes, rose geraniums and tuberoses.

Odd Mention.

Wash chamois skins in warm suds, rinse in warm water and dry them by stretching and rubbing.

No matter how pleasant or roomy a house may be it is not complete without a convenient kitchen.

A pleasing new fad is the "wedding chest." To be quite the thing this should be of carved antique oak or its semblance.

To clean mirrors make a paste of whiting and a pint of water. Leave it on till dry, and then rub off the powder with a chamois.

A new filling for sandwiches consists of thin shavings of sugared ginger and candied orange peel.
