Oehm's Acme Hall.

Straightforward Merchandizing

The onward march of apparently progressive merchant, seems to tend rather to exaggeration than to consistent truth in their announcements We are not in sympathy with such methods, and as the recognized leaders in fashions, styles, quality and reasonable prices, we feel that our reputation, not of yesterday, but of years, must count.

So in the following, we will strive to illustrate this point.

In Men's Clothing

We have Suits in Black and Blue Cheviot and Fancy Cheviot and Mixtures that are lined with satin yoke and worsted body; they're made with skill; the cut is right to date in style; the sewing inside and out, is as it should be; and, altogether these suits are worth every cent of $10. But if they were worth fifteen or twenty we'd not hesitate to sell them for that. However we court comparison with any other $10 Suit, and cheerfully abide by your decision.

In Men's Shirts

The realization of getting a worthy Shirt under a dollar is what we have accomplished in our full dress shirt at 79c. When we say that these shirts are hand laundered and finished, have nine inch bosoms of splendid linen, and that they're open back and front, we mean just that. Fact is that the usual $1.25 shirt is but a a fair comparison with these of ours at 79c.

In Men's Hats

Some people prefer to spend five dollars for a hat. The extra two dollars is for the maker's name. What's left—$3—is the real Hat value.

If "Oehm" is a good enough name for you, you'll get a hat as good as the best here for $30. If you're careless and apt to need a new hat often, our $2 Hat is well worth the price.

When you're in Baltimore, make Oehm's Acme Hall your headquarters. Ladies' Waiting, Retiring and Writing rooms; Men's Smoking and Waiting rooms free, no matter whether you are a customer or not; meet your friends at Oehm's. Parcels checked free and every accommodation and comfort is cordially extended to you.

Bringing Results

We can honestly say that we did not know that a little advertisement could do so much as has been done by the few brief announcements we have had in The Gazette the last few weeks about our new Queensware. —People have come in and called for "the Queensware advertised in the Gazette" and have told us they were glad we had let them know where they could get the latest things in china.

About People You Know

CHARACTER SKETCHES OF PROMINENT EASTONIANS.

One of Nature's Noblemen.

Very few who almost daily gaze upon the work now going on upon the Talbot County Court House think for a moment, or realize, how changed Easton would be if the work of the master mind thereon, Mr. Matthew P. Flowers, in our beautiful town could be obliterated. Everybody expects, without one thought to the contrary, to see the Court House improvement completed and the building handed over to its owners, the people, perfect and striking, strong and beautiful. It might be so under anyone other than Mr. Flowers, but under his care and direction it cannot be otherwise. His name to a contract for building, from years of conscientious endeavor and unfailing success, is a guarantee for perfect work.

Matthew P. Flowers in his youth came to Easton to pursue his vocation of carpenter and builder from that county which has furnished us so many of our successful business men, Caroline, and has furnished us another illustration of what pluck, perseverance and conscientious effort will do. He has, by his indefatigable energy, with his high moral character and mental adaptability for his work, made a striking success. He can point to every building erected under his care and supervision with pride and gratification as a monument to his worth, and it would be no small task to enumerate them. They stand everywhere, and to no one person is more due the beauty and strength and fair proportions of our town and surrounding country.

A long life spent in our midst has brought him a just reward, an honored name, the high regard of his fellow-man and a secure position in the business world. He is an ardent and faithful member of the Methodist Protestant Church, a devoted follower of his Master in good deeds, humbly and unostentatiously performed, stern in his morality and high standard of living and ever active in advancing the public morals by advocating what he believes wise methods of legislation. Though strong in convictions, he has never entered the political arena, preferring the quiet walks of life, the society of his friends, the service of his church and the successful pursuit of his business.

Though no longer young in years, he is in deeds of strength, energy and activity, and blessed as he is with a rugged constitution, preserved by a life of strict morality and temperance, his many friends in all his associations and of all ages rejoice in his prosperity and happiness and hope for a long continuation of all the blessings that go to make life dear to him.

An Exemplary Character.

In estimating the success of a life there are many standpoints from which it is viewed, but there are few who can look back after passing the sixtieth mile-stone of their journey and see one unvarying, unbroken series of successful steps on their way as can Mr. Robert B. Dixon. Just at this time the attention of the business community is attracted to the steady march in solid improvement of the Easton National Bank, and while it has always had able and distinguished officers and faithful and efficient workers, its substantial reputation is due in no small measure to President Dixon's excellent financiering. While conservative and of the most evenly balanced temperament, he is possessed of that indomitable energy and constant progressiveness that insures not only stability but all modern safe business methods as well.

Mr. Dixon is descended from distinguished Quaker ancestry in both his father's and mother's line, and is a representative of one of Talbot's oldest families. After being educated at Westtown Academy, a Friends' school in Chester county, Pa., he engaged in farming and came to Easton in 1859 and engaged in the lumber, coal and insurance business. This business and his numerous financial enterprises and associations have received his constant and close attention. He is President of the Easton National Bank, President of the Nickerson Fertilizer Company, Treasurer of the Easton Gas and Electric Light Company, Easton Water Company and Easton Ice Company. Director and Treasurer of the Workingmen's Permanent Building and Loan Association of Talbot County, Director of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Montgomery County, Maryland, and Director of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railroad Company. It can readily be seen that with these business connections he is an intensely busy and active man, for he discharges the duties of them all systematically and fully, and his sound advice and encouragement is always sought by his associates in all steps contemplated or plans proposed.

Though much solicited, he has taken very little part in active political life. In 1881 he was elected to the Legislature when Talbot was considered democratic property, and was nominated for Comptroller of the State a few years afterward, in 1887. At that time a democratic nomination for a State office in Maryland was equivalent to an election, and Mr. Dixon was defeated, but carried his own county by a majority of 144 votes against his popular competitor, while his associates on the ticket had a majority against them—a vote of confidence by the people of Talbot County in Robert B. Dixon.

In his large family, church and social relations in Talbot and other parts of Maryland he is beloved and held in high esteem; to the unfortunate of his fellow-men he is one ever ready to help and cheer, and to the man of business he willingly imparts the advice which his ripe experience has fitted him so ably to give. As his life has been exceptionally filled with the blessings coming from years well lived, family, religious and social relations nobly cherished and sympathetically reciprocated, and business and public life honorably and wisely pursued, so has he, wherever the need was and the opportunity could wisely be used, endeavored to lift others and sustain them in these relations. There are many, of whom the world knows not and never will, who call down blessings from above upon him and his fireside for "the deed well done and the admonition nobly given," and, after all, is not this the greatest victory and the actor the greatest hero, and all other successes but the means to this end?

TO PRESERVE PUBLIC HEALTH

AN IMPORTANT CONVENTION TO MEET HERE NEXT WEEK.

Maryland Public Health Association—Drs. Councell and Stelle, Prof. Reisler and Others to Speak.

THE second semi annual meeting of the Maryland Public Health Association, which will be held at Easton next week, as announced in the last issue of the GAZETTE, will include among its members many distinguished specialists and experts in the subjects they will discuss. The County School Board is very earnest in its endeavors to impress upon our citizens the importance and advantage of this meeting, as they propose, if possible, to reach the people in hygienic and sanitary methods and science through the medium of the public schools. Our teachers and pupils will receive the benefit of all modern training and education on these and kindred subjects, thereby enlightening the public mind and enlisting the sympathies and awakening a general and common interest in our homes and among the families. Experience has shown that in all great reforms, moral and sanitary, no more effective agency exists than the schools, no soil so receptive, fertile and productive as the mind of the youth, and no influence so powerful in the home as an enlightened and wise zeal and enthusiasm kindled there by trained and true teachers.

The proceedings of the second day, as will be seen by the programme published below, deal especially with matters of school hygiene, and will be participated in by the teachers as well as by specialists in those subjects. The following is the program for the

FIRST DAY—THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10TH.

Besides an address of welcome, it includes a lecture on malaria with a demonstration of the organism by Dr. Wm. S. Thayer; papers on Vital Statistics by Drs. T. A. Councell and John S. Fulton; Typhoid Fever and Infected Wells by Drs. Wm. R Stokes and Charles L. Mattfeldt; Tuberculosis in the Schools by Dr Jos. E. Gichner; Impetigo and Supposed Diphtheria by Dr. C M. Stelle.

SECOND DAY—FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11TH.

I. Problems in School Hygiene.—(a) Common Property among Pupils; (b) Cleaning School-room—Dr. A. E Sudler, Thomas D. Bowers.

II. Water Supplies of Schools—Prof. W. B. D Penniman, Addison E. Mullikin, Mary A. Hardcastle.

III Periods of Infectiousness and Mode of propagating Diseases Affecting School Children—Drs. August Stabler, T. A. Councell.

IV. School Architecture—Mr. Brauns.

V. Teaching Hygiene to Children—H. Lucretia Anthony, Anna Ellis Crouse, May M. Kemp, Myra L. Longfield.

VI. Heating and Ventilating the School Room—Edward Reisler, Henry Emerson Adams, William S. Jackson.

VII. Physical Education in the School Room—(a) Educational; (b) Corrective; (c) Medical—Alice McDaniel, Alexander Chaplain, Dr Edward M Schaefer.

VIII. Voice Culture—Sarah ElizaForeman, Nellie May Jackson, Cornelia V. Sutton.

Some of the finest specimens of photographic work by amateurs usually seen are three views taken at Pen Mar by J. Edward Dodson and S. Elliott Shannahan. They were taken from High Rock Observatory at Pen Mar and show Waynesboro, Pa., and include a panorama of three States, Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia. The view is clear and distinct, and the whole scene presents a magnificent loveliness and perfectness of detail. To those acquainted with the location, the perfect accomplishment of their work by the photographers is a marvel.

One hour and a half of delightful entertainment, under the auspices of ths T. T. Society, may be had at Music Hall Monday evening, Nov. 14, 8 o'clock, with Miss Anne Virginia Culbertson in her inimitable readings, impersonations and songs, with "flashes of humor and dashes of wit that are always welcome in an evening's entertainment". Grace Greenwood says:—Happy and most unusual combination of distinct yet kindred gifts. When shall I again be so delightfully entertained?"

"LOVING MEMORY OF THE JUST."

Rev. W. W. W. Wilson Eulogizes the Late Samuel E. Shannahan.

FREEPORT, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1898.

MR. EDITOR:—I could scarcely believe my own eyesight as I took up the GAZETTE of last week, a marked copy of which some one sent me, and read of the death of my dear friend and brother, Samuel E. Shannahan, than whom I know of no one readier to go and none who will be more sadly missed than he in the circle in which he was accustomed to move. He had been for years a conspicuous figure in Easton and Easton Methodism. Of a modest and retiring disposition, he never obtruded himself on others, and yet he was always available to them when they felt their need of him, as was often the case. Of a conservative turn of mind and sound judgment, he was always a safe counselor. He also took pleasure in the advance movements of his day. While an enthusiastic admirer of the past and loved to dwell upon the good old times, he was no croaker or complainer, but took a lively interest in everything that looked to the betterment of society about him.

Believing in the church as the only institution divinely appointed to elevate and ennoble the race, he was an ardent Christian, and believing in Methodism as especially adapted and blessed of God in the accomplishment of such a result, he was an old-time Methodist. He believed in the Class Meeting as the original birthplace of the church, and was for a long time a successful leader. He also believed in revivals. We can see him now as with open Bible we used to find him at his home poring over its sacred pages to get something new and old out of its inexhaustible storehouse to present to his pastor or to state himself in the coming meeting of the evening, should an opportunity present itself, and where the pastor knew of the matter an opportunity was usually afforded or the material was used with proper credit being given, which was usually the way it would have to be done. It was always a benediction to have him present at any service, for the minister was always sure that he was in hearty sympathy with him in all he did, provided he felt it was right. If not, his love for the church, which ever took precedence over his love for the man, would lead him to dissent. He was therefore at times apparently critical or rather, tenacious in any stand that he took and never let go until convinced that he was wrong, which, because of the carefulness in taking a position, was not the easiest thing to do.

He was so straight that he leaned backwards, and to every moral question gave it the benefit of his full weight, which was always felt to be considerable. He could be as stern as a judge and as tender and compassionate as a woman. He was usually slow and deliberate in forming an opinion, and yet he was blessed with an intuitive perception of the rightness and fitness of things which at times was really surprising. He was cautious and yet quick to respond to calls of mercy and help. He dwelt much in his home in later life, and yet the social side of his nature would at times impel him outward or lead him to invite his friends to partake of his hospitality, which was ever cordial and abundant.

In fact he was unique—a character that stands out in the life and history of the community where he lived conspicuous in everything that challenges its admiration. In honesty, sobriety, integrity and everything else that brings a high premium now he was noted. To have been loved by such a man as we knew we were is a legacy in itself.

Well do I remember the night when the Presiding Elder, seated at his table, asked the question of him, "Bro. Shannahan, what would you people of Easton say if Bro. Wilson should be taken away from you?" With a look of mingled surprise and resistance he said, "What do you mean, sir? Explain yourself, please." He then unfolded what was in his own mind and that of the Smyrna people. He said, "That will never do, for we do not want to part with Bro. Wilson. And for myself when I am suited I am suited, and I would be willing to have that man for my pastor the balance of my days." Whether worthy of it or not, I never expect to have a greater compliment than that until I shall hear the "Well done" from the lips of Him with whom he has gone, a little before me, to dwell.

W. W. W. WILSON.

An Honest Remedy.

"We could not say too much in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy About three years ago one of our children had an attack of croup and we were afraid that we would loose him. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, we decided to give it a trial. It gave almost instant relief and we believe it saved the child's life. Since then we have never been without a bottle of this remedy in the house and we recommend it to everyone as being an honest Cough Remedy."—L. W. NICHOLS, East New Market, Md., May 17, 1897.
