A LONG RECORD OF CHARITY.

Sixty Third Annual Report of Union Dorcas Society.

The Union Dorcas Society of Easton has made its sixty-third annual report. Like the holy woman of old for whom the society is named, it is "full of good works which it does." The report says: "This society is like a fountain making green some waste places in our town from whence flow clear, loving streams of benefit and blessing, to give comfort and help to many as the years roll on."

The public is earnestly requested to continue its generous support to this wise charity. The responses to these appeals have always been liberal, and it is confidently expected that they will continue so. None are too poor or too rich to feel a sense of accountability to the Almighty for His mercies to us, and the Master has said, "Freely ye have received, freely give," and this society, which has for many years studied the best known methods of dispensing charitable help to the needy and reduced philanthropy to a business basis, is a judicious channel through which our money and beneficence can safely flow.

The report of the treasurer, Miss Sadie C. Nicols, shows receipts of $145.61 and disbursements of a like amount. Donations of groceries, medicines, shoes, etc., had also been received, valued at $67.30, all of which had been wisely distributed. The society recognizes neither creed nor color in dispensing its charities, and multitudes "rise up and call it blessed."

The entertainment is under the auspices of the T. T. Society who desire to secure o full house to grset their guest.

A New Departure.

The U. S. Express Company has decided to enter into a new class of business which might be termed a "Commercial Ageucy." It is intended, through this Commercial Department, to introduce and sell certain special articles of invention and manufacture which are not competitive with the trade of their regular patrons, and thereby afford the inventions and manufacturers a quick and safe method of introducing their specialties to the public. It is believed that by this means introduction and sale of specialties can be effected much more quickly than by the ordinary methods of advertising and it not only will assist many people to do business who are at present to do so, as it virtually means, operating without capital, but it also means quick returns for investments. Full details and instructions will be issued in a short time.

A Sure Sign of Croup.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Many mothers who have croupy children always keep this remedy at hand and find that it saves them much trouble and worry. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. A FLYING VISITOR.

Major Mullikin at Home for a Few Days this Week.

Major James C. Mullikin, U. S. V., was in town Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and looked as if camp still agreed with him. He had to go back to Camp Meade Wednesday, as orders had been given for the move south, to Greenville, S. C., to begin this week, and of course the commissary department must go along in good shape. Major Mullikin's friends give him very little time to attend to business when at home, and as he is a close observer, a charming conversationalist and the soul of hospitality, he has many callers, who never tire of hearing him relate his experiences of camp life and draw comparisons between now and then—now in the camps of peace and quiet, and then in the hard campaigns of a war "that tried men's souls," and bodies, too. Mrs. Mullikin will join him in the South after he is settled in his new quarters, and we bespeak for them a pleasant sojourn in the sunny South.

In the future we hope to be able to give our readers an interesting account of some of the sections visited by him and our other Talbot people and their experiences so far as the duties of their positions will allow.

Attempts Suicide in The Easton Jail.

Sometime in June a white man by the name of Limbacht was placed in Easton jail charged with perjury. He was a tailor by trade, and had been in the employ of M. Tisch.

On Sunday morning he conceived the idea that it would be well to end his life. Therefore he secured in some manner about four ounces of liniment composed one-fourth of laudanum. He drank the mixture at about nine o'clock in the morning, hoping that he might thus end his life, and relieve himself of whatever trouble might in the near future follow. But the act was discovered before the purpose was accomplished. Dr. Thos. A. Councell was called in, and after two hours of hard labor, he succeeded in bringing him back to his natural self. And he still remains a guest of Sheriff McKnett at the old Stone Hotel.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined, and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved by taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. C. Trial bottles free at Dr. Councell's Drug Store.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with a pain in the chest or side, or a lame back, give it a trial. You are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. For sale by Harry Roberts.

SATISFIED WITH THE RESULT

MAJ. STEWART SAYS HIS FIGHT WAS FOR THE PRINCIPLES

Of the Chicago Platform and to Vindicate True Democracy—These Principles Must Finally Prevail.

IN ANSWER to an inquiry about the results of the election as viewed by the silver democrats and as to what their future course would be, Major William E. Stewart, their intrepid leader and veteran campaigner, said:

"Under the circumstances the Loyal Chicago Platform Democrats are satisfied with the results of the last election, in this Congressional district especially. The movement was intended simply to have a party representing the principles of the Chicago platform—the free coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, regardless entirely of the effect it might have on gold-bug democrats or gold-bug republicans. A great many that were inclined to go with us fell by the wayside on account of blandishments and appeals of gold-bug advocates. We think, however, that it is now demonstrated clearly if we wish to win that it is essential next year (1899) that we should nominate a ticket in every county in this Congressional district, from surveyor up, every candidate on which will pledge himself to stand fairly and squarely on the Chicago platform, and then if the gold-bugs will not endorse it, they and the republicans can have the pleasure of defeating a true and loyal democratic ticket.

"This is in perfect accord with the various letters that I have received from National Committeemen. In harmony with other letters are the following extracts from Hon. Clayton Belknap's: 'We are a debtor people, and money is so potent and far-reaching that men hesitate to oppose or antagonize its influence, fearing its adverse effect on their business or employment. You ask, "Has a Congressional Convention in a National election the right to ignore or repudiate the National platform?" I answer most decidedly not, whether it be a National or State election, such a convention is an integral part of the party and is bound by the National platform.

"I feel confident in stating that with the facts before it, the next democratic national convention would not recognize a delegation sent by a convention or committee guilty of such disloyalty to the party.

"If the gold men ignore and defeat us in 1899, we will call a convention of the Loyal Chicago Platform Democrats and demand recognition in the National convention in 1900 where we will be entirely vindicated, as the democrats in 41 States have already endorsed the National platform. We have always been convinced on account of the banking Gold-bug interests in Baltimore, that Maryland was a gold state. From the results of the present election it is clear that wherever the democrats have stood clearly on the Chicago Platform they have won, but where they have ignored it and trimmed, they have lost, for instance, New York, Delaware and others. This may teach them the lesson that it is best to stand by principle."

THREE-SCORE YEARS AND TEN.

The Methodist Protestant Church's Anniversary Services.

To-morrow, Nov 13, Calvary M. P. Church will celebrate the 70th anniversay of the organization of the Church. By direction of the Maryland Conference at its last session, a suitable program has been prepared, and all the churches of the Conference will unite in the observance of the day. In Calvary M. P. Church two services will be held at 11 A. M., and 7.30 P. M. Addresses will be delivered upon the origin, greater institutions, doctrine and policy of the church, and one of the addresses will be upon the history of the Easton Church, which in 1830 was made a part of the Eastern Shore Circuit, embracing Talbot, Kent, and Queen Anne's counties

The church will be handsomely and appropriately decorated for the occasion and special music has been prepared for the services. The program is contained in a thirty-two page pamphlet containing historic, doctrinal and governmental data and these will be distributed to all that come. The order of service is such which all can participate in it without previous rehersal.

The Season for Chrysanthemums.

The season for that magnificent Queen of Autumn, the Chrysanthemum, has arrived and Talbot florists, as in most everything in the floral line, shows them in perfection. Among those who grow them in profusion and excellence are Mrs. Edward Woodall, near Royal Oak; Captain Levin H. Tull, at Oxford, and Mr, Jno. W. Martin, Jr., near Trappe. Mrs. E. R. Trippe, of Easton, has a very beautiful display of them in her yard on Washington Street and many are their admirers who linger long in their inspections of them. Mrs. W. W. Spence, at her home on West St. has a large number at least thirty varieties in a most charming display. Mrs. R. H. Patchett on Harrison street, has produced a lot of beauties also.

Old fashions in dress may be revived, but no old-fashioned medicine can replace Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by Harry Roberts.

TRIAL OF FRED LAWRENCE

FOR A MURDER COMMITTED 27 YEARS AGO.

Emeline Handy the Victim—The Case Tried at Denton—Judge Wickes' Impressive Sentence.

THE case of Fred Lawrence, who in the early part of the year 1871 killed Emeline Handy on Railroad Avenue, attracted great attention at the time and was considered a most brutal murder. Interest was so intense that the case had to be moved to Caroline Court. Lawrence was tried there and, being found guilty of murder in the first degree, was hung in June of that year. The issue of the GAZETTE containing an account of the hanging has been lost, but the issue of April 22, 1871, gives this account of the conclusion of the trial in Denton:

On the assembling of the Court on Friday morning, Frederick Lawrence, convicted of the murder of Emeline Handy, was brought into Court and placed in the prisoner's dock. The room was well filled, but a breathless silence prevailed. The prisoner manifested the same stubborn indifference which characterized his conduct during the trial, and when the Judge said, "Frederick Lawrence, you have been tried for killing Emeline Handy and convicted of murder in the first degree. Have you anything to say why the Court should not pronounce sentence against you?" not a muscle of his face moved. After a reasonable pause, his Honor Judge Wickes proceeded to pass the following sentence:

"It has become our painful duty to pronounce that judgment which the law commands. You have been defended by able counsel, who have done everything which professional ability and unremitting labor could accomplish. Your trial was removed from Talbot county, where you supposed some prejudice existed; and here, in a community without any prejudice existing against you, you have been tried. The jury selected by your counsel, of upright and impartial men, without any knowledge of the crime with which you were charged, except such as they derived from the evidence, after an impartial hearing have convicted you of the highest crime known to the law. Your steps were traced from the day you uttered the threat that you would kill Emeline Handy until that fatal Sunday morning when the crime was committed. As the testimony closed around you with its array of connected facts which no human power could break, the conviction of your guilt was irresistible. We have made these remarks that you may know and feel that it is useless for you to hope for or expect any relief in this world. You have broken the law of man by wilfully taking the life of a fellow creature, and that law requires that your life shall be forfeited. Your time in this world is very brief; and in a few weeks which will rapidly pass you must suffer death on the gallows. From man you can expect nothing. There is another tribunal before which you must appear. When you leave this world a dreadful and awful eternity will open before you, when you will be brought face to face with the majesty of an offended God. He has commanded "thou shalt do no murder," and forgetting this injunction, you have violated His law. But such is His inscrutable wisdom, such His boundless and infinite mercy, that if you truly repent and ask forgiveness through the merits of an atoning Savior, He will pardon. Let us admonish and advise you to turn to Him in this your hour of need and seek of Him pardon and mercy.

"The judgment of the Court is that you, Frederick Lawrence, be taken to the jail of Talbot county, from whence you came, and from thence to the place of execution, at such time as will be appointed by the Governor of the State, and there be hanged by the neck until you are dead. And may God have mercy on your soul."

PHYSICIANS IN CONCLAVE.

MEETING OF MARYLAND PUBLIC HEALTH ASSOCIATION

At Easton High School Thursday and Yesterday—Good Attendance Interesting Sessions.

As was duly announced, the Maryland Public Health Association held its very interesting sessions at the Easton High School on Thursday and Friday of this week. The Association is practically new and its field of work is among the masses, to educate them in the practice of "preventive medicine" rather than to have them rest in the faith of the physician after disease once attacks a community.

The last legislature made some very effective laws regulating the sanitation of a community through local boards of health and the practicing physician, and while these laws are not being lived up to in the fullest conception of their significance at present, the Maryland Public Health Association, by its active co-operation and encouragement will largely enthuse a public to the proper appreciation of all preventive measures.

The meeting was called to order by the President, Dr. Geo. H. Rohe, of Sykesville and Mr. Walter H. Thompson of Easton delivered the address of welcome, in which he said:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Maryland Public Health Association:—The pleasure, the privilege of entertaining comes on this, your second reunion, to our conservative little town of Easton, and upon me, unworthy, has been bestowed the distinguished honor of welcoming you. In the name of our highest interests I gladly greet you and bid you God-speed in your labor of love.

"Great is he who uses his greatness for all." From the busy arena of their daily routine assemble these eminent professional men, and from the serene security of their homes these earnest women, to take counsel together and evolve ways and means for the amelioration of human ills, the safeguard of health, the undoing of the dread vampire of contagious disease, that cruel enemy who in the hour of our fancied security may so easily beset us.

Your organization, though new, is both timely and unselfish and must take rank among the most benevolent associations of the century. The reforms you propose to inaugurate in useful but hitherto neglected lines should commend your labors to all who cherish the public weal. Health is a priceless boon in the highest sense. Without it, rare intellectual gifts, wealth, the surroundings of refinement nor the beautiful in nature can be enjoyed; even life itself becomes a burden, and death is coveted as a happy release.

Folly and ignorance, long recognized as the common curse of mankind, are the prolific sources of disease and suffering, but knowledge practically applied to what we eat and drink, to the homes we occupy and the highways we use will promote that physical soundness and vigor which are the necessary equipments for mental prowess.

Having studied, not so much for your own sake, as for the sake of those who study not for themselves; what you have acquired by tireless investigation, you offer as a free gift to all who will accept the knowledge that they may live in a better and truer sense.

Knowing as you do, there is scarce any folly against which warnings are of less efficiency than the neglect of health, you have proposed to yourselves this unenviable task, that only good may come to your fellows. Evidently you would live not unto yourselves, and you have therefore, voluntarily placed yourselves in a position like unto that approved by the World's Redeemer and Savior when He said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren ye have done it unto Me."

Nature, our universal mother, under and by the Blessing of God our common Father has lavished upon us her choicest gifts. I speak advisedly—Royal Oak, just eight miles from the town of Easton has been by census officials, declared the health centre of the United States: yet none the less do we need and covet your valuable services.

The recognition and grateful appreciation of all the communities in the State must wait upon your annual deliberations, and for these humanitarian labors, not we alone, but posterity, that great unknown quantity, will rise up and call you blessed.

We welcome you therefore as messengers of "Good Will," and the benefactors of your generation. We welcome you for the sacredness of your ministry to others; and may health and happiness, and longevity appear as the fruitage of your beneficent work.

The address of welcome was heartily applauded and gracefully responded to by Dr. Geo. H. Rohe of Baltimore, who said:

A good many of us were somewhat doubtful of the advisability of coming to this favored part of the Eastern Shore to give advice concerning health. That doubt was somewhat strengthened by the remarks just made here. If we have come to within seven miles of the geographical centre of the best health of the United States, I am afraid our deliberations will not be of much use to the citizens of this county. In spite of this, however, and thanking you for the welcome so cordially extended, I feel that it would not be inappropriate to say a word about the object and history of the association. Less than two years ago the initiative was taken by some men of the medical profession of Baltimore and others, at the head of whom stood Dr. Schaeffer who is suspected of being an Eastern Shoreman, and Dr. Fulton whom we have every reason to believe is an Eastern Shoreman, to call a meeting of the school authorities of the State.

To the surprise of every one connected with the issuing of this call, the response was very gratifying, and after a very interesting and profitable meeting of two days, the Medical Public Health Association was formed as a permanent successor of the conference.

There were at that time enrolled 318 members, not 318 medical men, because this is no a Medical Association, but 318 public spirited men and women of the city of Baltimore and State of Maryland.

The objects of the Association as expressed in the preamble of the constitution are as follows:

"The general aim of the Medical Public Health Association shall be to promote the sanitary welfare of Maryland by uniting the influences of all citizens professing interest in sanitation by co-operation with the State and local boards of health and with other sanitary organizations by encouraging the study and practice of preventive medicine by propagating the knowledge of hygiene through public meetings, lectures and publications."

I may say that the objects so well stated here are being carried out by the Association It holds two meetings a year, one in the city of Baltimore and one in some county of the State. Throughout the existence of the Association we have been fortunate in having had the cordial aid of the press, and we have had the active co-operation of that better half of mankind without whose aid no public movement ever succeeds.

Some of the most progressive and active members of the Association are women and I hope that that portion of our membership will continue to increase." [The foregoing is through the kind permission of Dr. H. O. Reik, of Baltimore, the Association's Stenographe.—ED.]

Miss Ford, teacher of calisthenics in the High School then introduced her class and gave an exhibition of cultured and refined movement exercises for girls, to the proper development of muscles and its attendant benefits in balancing the circulation, which, through continued mental strain predominates in the brain. This exercise was highly complimented by the learned profession present.

Dr. Chas. L. Mattfeldt, of Catonsville, then gave a valuable paper on the sanitary relation of private wells, supplemented by Dr. W. R. Stokes, City Bacteriologist of Baltimore. The discussions which followed were calculated to arouse the interest of every citizen learned and ignorant. It was clearly shown how disease comes through the polution of water and the causes which contaminate the same. To popularize these meetings and bring the attention of the community to these scientific truths is yet a work of development. The idea seems to prevail that when scholars assemble the laiety must keep away. But it should also be remembered that the wisest are but learners and new thought and methods are being evolved, so that one need not necessarily feel out of place to hear what others who have found out are trying to teach.

The afternoon session was possibly more instructive and entertaining than the morning, if such could be the case. The subject of Tuberculosis was opened by Dr. Jos. E. Gichner of Baltimore, again supplemented by the microscope under the management of Dr. Stokes, who showed how the blood and sputum could be examined, and gave practical illustrations under the lens.

Dr. Councell, statistician of the local health board, read a very concise report in which he cited the difficulties in the way of getting possession of all the data required by law. This feature would be entertaining at this point in the report, but the discussions will appear in full in the journal of proceedings and persons interested can procure same without trouble. Suffice it to say, at this juncture, that the physicians of Talbot county are not doing their duty by a ratio of 35 to 9 and many at this time are not only violators of law but are treating with silent contempt the demands of the State. A rather humiliating statement for some was made when it was shown that ignorant midwives and nurses were more mindful of reports than the practicing physicians.

The crowning feature of Thursday's program was the illustrated lecture in the evening by Dr. Wm. S. Thayer, Prof. in Johns Hopkins University. His subject was the parasite known as Malaria, its propagattion and distribution.

The fame of Dr. Thayer is known throughout the United States, in professional circles, and as authority he stands ahead of the profession in the knowledge of this particular disease germ. Everyone was delighted with his lecture, and the Easton people had cause to feel highly complemented that such an opportunity was given them.

As an indication of the appreciation of Dr. Thayer, the evening train brought several ladies from Baltimore just to hear this lecture, among whom were:

Mrs. Daniel Miller,
Mrs. Isaac Davidson,
Mrs. Elisha Walker,
Miss Eliza Ridgely,
Miss Alice Webb,
Dr. Flora Pollock,
Dr. Edith Erick,
Mrs. Isaac H. Dixon,
Miss Esther Porter.

A vote of appreciation was given Dr. Thayer at the close of his lecture and everyone felt fully acquainted with that mischievous little stranger—the Malaria parasite, after having seen his picture and heard his biography so ably discussed.

The Friday sessions were conducted according to the program published in the last issue of the GAZETTE, and consisted of valuable papers and discussions upon hygiene in the school.

These sessions were attended by the teachers of the county, and many of them took active part and made valuable additions to the field of thought.

Miss Kerr, of Denton, rendered special music at the evening session

MARRIED.

MORROW—CROSSY.—At the Episcopal Parsonage, 215 E. Preston Street, Baltimore, by Rev. Peregrine Wroth, on Friday, Nov. 4, 1898, Mr. Wm. F. Morrow, of Baltimore, to Miss Annibell Crossy, of Two Johns.
