Will and testament and the Deponent was asked to be a witness, but did not recollect by whom, that the witnesses went into the next room which was in the same Floor to sign and the deponent, Jennet Wayne and Mrs Williamson signed their names to the will, but did not recollect they ever requested to go their. That after the will was signed she saw Mrs Lux have it in her hands as she lay in bed and some time after she gave the witness the will to Lock up, which she did and gave it out after the death of Mrs Lux. That the will was Executed in September and she died the February following at Philadelphia. That no person directed the signing but Mr Rufsell called on them to take notice of their signing the Deponent further declared that Mrs Lux was in bed when she signed the will, and set up in bed to sign it, The room where the Witnesses signed adjoined that where Mrs Lux lay when she signed the will. That the Door was open but the bed in which Mrs Lux lay was so situated she could not have seen the Witnesses sign as she lay when they left the room. That Mrs Lux was very ill and complained of being hardly able to write Mrs Wayne proposed that some person should writ her name which the deponent supposed was on account of her weakness. That she does not know Mrs Lux got out of bed whilst the witnesses were attesting the will and belived she was not able to get out of bed without Asistance and that if she had got out of Bed the Deponent must have heard her. That after Mrs Lux had signed the will she immediately lay down in bed. the witnesses went into the other Room to subscribe the will and immediately after subscribing the Deponent returned into her room and found her in bed in the same situation they had left her. It was also proved by the testimony of Elizabeth Williamson another subscribing Witness to the will that her name subscribed to the attestation of the will of Mrs Lux in her hand writing but that she did not see Mrs Lux sign the will. That the witness knew nothing of Mrs Lux's intention to Execute a will till she was called from below stairs into her Room to be a witness, she did not recollect who called her up nor that any other persons were in Mrs Lux's Room except the witnesses and Mr William Rufsell that the Witnesses were asked into another Room to subscribe their names and were only absent while they were signing their names and returned again to Mrs Lux in a few minutes. That Mr Rufsell was present present with the witnesses in the room where they signed and laid the Will on the Desk and directed them to see each other sign and while the Witnesses were signing no person was in the room with Mrs Lux. That the deponent came to Mr Lux's house the day before and found Mrs Lux ill who had been taken with a Vomiting of Blood. That she was as weak as she could be to live and could not have got out of Bed without asistance and that it was not possible she could see the Witnesses subscribe from the bed in which she lay. That after the will was subscribed by the witnesses it was returned to Mrs Lux by Mr Rufsell. That the deponent continued with Mrs Lux some days after who was confined to her chamber in a very weak state and had no conversation with her on the subject of her will. It was also proved by the testimony of Jannet Wayne another subscribing Witness to the will that her name subscribed to the Will of Mrs Lux is her hand writing, That the Witness saw Mrs Lux sign the will and declare the same to be her will and saw the other witnesses subscribe their names. That Mrs Lux was at the time in a very weak State and raised herself up to sign her name with difficulty and said she did not know if she should be able to do it. The Deponant believed it impossible for her to get out of bed without asistance. That the witnesses to the will went into another room to sign their names and that it was not possible for her to see them, in the possition in which she lay, subscribe their names, That they were but a short time in the room where they signed their names and when they returned to Mrs Lux they found her laying in the bed where they had left her. It was also proved by the Testimony of Richardson Steward that some time after the bill filed in Chancery he was shewed the Room and the bed and the position of the said Bed as it was alledged by Mary Chambers in which Mrs Lux lay at the time she executed her will and also the room and position of the Desk where the witnesses to the will subscribed their Names at which they wrote. That from the Bed he could not see the desk in the other Room. That Mary Chambers sat down at the Desk to write where she alledged the Witnesses sat when they subscribed the will and he stretched himself over the foot of the Bed as far as he could and could then only see the shirt of Miss Chambers's Petticoat as she sat at the
