partment. If our party is successful then those measures will be enacted.

The Oyster and Crab Industry

Is one of the most important in the state. Much has been accomplished already for the protection of that large and worthy class of citizens who are engaged in this occupation. Their rights and privileges should be carefully guarded, and no legislation enacted inconsistent with the pledges of the republican party in 1895 and reaffirmed this year.

Appointments to Office.

In making the large number of appointments to office which is a part of my prerogative, if elected, I shall follow the same rule that I have observed—namely, that "public office is a public trust." While the opinion of the executive in the consideration of applicants must necessarily be influenced by the character of the recommendation, after an appointment has been made I shall not hesitate promptly to remove an incumbent whose unfitness for his position has been shown. I shall, therefore, expect all those who may receive appointments from me to do their full duty, without regard to political favors of any kind.

In conclusion, gentlemen of the committee, I can only say that during my entire administration of the great trust committed to my care four years ago I have been actuated by a desire to do what was best for the people of the entire state, regardless of party affiliations. My record is before the people, and should they choose again to entrust me at the head of the state, my future course will be guided by the same motives, and I shall have the experience of my past official career to aid me in performing my duties to the best interests of the state. LLOYD LOWNDES.

The masses of the people of this State have too vivid a recollection of how matters were managed before the republicans came into power to desire a return of the old times, the days of bribery, corruption, partisanship in school matters, and a perfect disregard as to how the people's money was squandered. Those were days when there was no sanctity in the ballot box, for it was of little matter how the people voted, the party emblems turned and altered, the returns were sure to show a democratic majority. There was a reckless disregard as to what became of the taxes so that the democratic hangers-on were well paid. Corrupt rings controlled everything at Annapolis, passed laws to suit themselves, always being sure to loot the treasury in their own interests. Even four years of control by the Republicans has brought about wonderful changes for the better. Fitness is now the essential for office, the schools are splendidly managed. The financial condition has been vastly improved, and elections are now honestly conducted. If so much has been accomplished in so brief a time, what may we not hope for if Maryland still remains in the hands of honest, capable men.—Ex

A Magnificent Publication Upon The South.

The wonderful progress which the South has been making in all lines of industrial, commercial and intellectual development has been most fittingly set forth in a magnificent volume, which, after months of careful preparation, has just been issued by the Southern Railway.

This book, the title of which, The "Empire of the South," conveys an idea of its character, is beyond question one of the most comprehensive and at the same time artistic publications ever issued from the press. It contains nearly two hundred octavo pages, over four hundred exquisitely printed illustrations, and makes a presentation of Southern interests in all lines of human activity, which for thoroughness of treatment has never been approached.

The opening chapter of the book under the caption of "The South Yesterday, To-day and To-morrow," discussed in a broad and forcible manner the present and future of the Southern States, treating at considerable length the various interests, such as agriculture, cotton, tobacco, iron, coal, resorts, climate, etc Following this are chapters devoted to each State south of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi rivers.

These give brief, interesting sketches of the early history of each State, and touch upon all its important activities, showing the progress being made not only by the state itself, but by the leading cities.

The author of the work, Mr. Frank Preshrey, is a close student of Southern progress, and in the collection and preparation of the immense amount of important information given in the book, has had the cooperation of the officials of the Southern Railway. The distribution of this magnificent volume will do an incalculable amount of practical good in calling the attention of the world to the South, and the Southern Railway has demonstrated its faith in the future of that section by the expenditure of the many thousands of dollars which this great work must have cost. This book can be obtained from Chas. L. Hopkins, District Passenger Agent, Southern Railway, 828 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., at fifteen cents per copy.
