first chance at a solo. Danny will be featured guest artist at an All Irish concert to be held at Boston Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass., on St. Patrick's Day. He'll feature John McCormack's favorite.

Bette Davis drove 9,000 miles during the four weeks following her marriage to William Grant Sherry, on a round trip that took her from Hollywood to Mexico, to New Hampshire, and back to Hollywood. A souvenir of Mexico is a dozen solid silver service plates, a gift to her from the governor of Mexico. She's completing "A Stolen Life," for which she began [illegible] a year ago.

Everything was set for a love scene between Eleanor Parker and Errol Flynn, for "Escape Me Never." But the electricians got so [illegible] the stage sprinkling system, and Flynn fled the deluge, dragging Miss Parker behind him.

When Tom Harmon, football star and war hero, decided to run for Mayor of Studio City against Jack Oakie and Roy Rogers, the burden of the campaign fell on his wife, Elyse Knox, star of "Joe Palooka, Champ." He invited [illegible] to dinner, and she did the cooking. All she [illegible] fried chicken, so that was the bait for the voters.

Shelk, the famous movie horse, a palomino, might well [illegible] "Would you rather be a horse?" He appeared with Betty Hutton in "Incendiary Blonde," was used by Barbara Britton in "The Virginian" and Ray Milland rides him in [illegible] first Western role, that of a [illegible] guide, in "California." But don't be [illegible] he's a double for [illegible] his own colt, Shelk.

Frank Sinatra has his bid in for a two-place advance trainer fighter plane. [illegible] who taught cadets to fly the training plane at Fresno, will be his teacher. Just to make sure of him, Sinatra [illegible] as soon as he was discharged from the army and arranged for the pianist to begin his postwar radio career as guest artist on the Sinatra show.

Sheldon Leonard, "Orville Sharp" of "Meet Me at Parky's," is the first actor to set up a regular commuting schedule between New York and Hollywood. He has an acting commitment in Manhattan [illegible] from Monday to Wednesday of each week, then boards a plane for Hollywood and [illegible] when the radio show is over. But just about now he'll be calling it off.

"A good place to visit—a better place to live."

That is Louisiana's boast. It is Louisiana's promise, backed by every square foot of land from the pine forests of the northern uplands to the marshes of the Mississippi delta.

Louisiana is a land of incredible natural richness, in its swamps and bayous, its cane and cotton fields, its lakes and streams, its farms and cities—and its people. Here the beauty and romance of an empire was formed by the alchemy of time.
