expressions of my own most ardent wish that, out of the incident which has produced this letter, an occasion may be made to rise, which, improved as it ought to be, and I trust will be, by our respective governments, may conduct them to cordial and lasting friendship.——Thus to endeavour to bring good out of evil, would be worthy of the rulers of two nations that are only in their natural position when they are engaged in offices of mutual kindness, and largely contributing to the prosperity and happiness of each other.

I have the honor to be,
with the highest consideration, my lord, your lordship's most obedient humble servant,

FOREIGN-OFFICE, March 14, 1810.

SIR,

The letter which I had the honor to receive from you under the date of the 2d of January, together with the additional paragraph received on the 24th of January, has been laid before the king.

The several conferences which I have held with you respecting the transactions to which your letter refers, have, I trust, satisfied you, that it is the sincere desire of his majesty's government, on the present occasion, to avoid any discussion which might obstruct the renewal of amicable intercourse between the two countries.

The correspondence between Mr. Jackson and Mr. Smith has been submitted to his majesty's consideration.

His majesty has commanded me to express his concern, that the official communication, between his majesty's minister in America, and the government of the United States, should have been interrupted before it was possible for his majesty, by any interposition of his authority, to manifest his invariable disposition to maintain the relations of amity with the United States.

I am commanded by his majesty to inform you, that I have received from Mr. Jackson the most positive assurances, that it was not his purpose to give offence to the government of the United States, by any expression contained in his letters, or by any part of his conduct.

The expressions and conduct of his majesty's minister in America having, however, appeared to the government of the United States to be exceptionable, the usual course in such cases would have been, to convey, in the first instance to his majesty, a formal complaint against his minister, and to desire such redress, as might be deemed suitable to the nature of the alledged offence.

This course of proceeding would have enabled his majesty to have made such arrangements, or to have offered such seasonable explanations, as might have precluded the inconvenience, which must always arise from the suspension of official communication between friendly powers.

His majesty however is always disposed to pay the utmost attention to the wishes and sentiments of states in amity with him; and he has therefore been pleased to direct the return of Mr. Jackson to England.

But his majesty has not marked, with any expression of his displeasure, the conduct of Mr. Jackson; whose integrity, zeal and ability have long been distinguished in his majesty's service:—and who does not appear, on the present occasion, to have committed any intentional offence against the government of the United States.

I am commanded to inform you, that Mr Jackson is ordered to deliver over the charge of his majesty's affairs in America, to a person properly qualified to carry on the ordinary intercourse between the two governments, which his majesty is sincerely desirous of cultivating on the most friendly terms.

As an additional testimony of this disposition, I am authorised to assure you, that his majesty is ready to receive, with sentiments of undiminished amity and good will, any communication which the government of the United States may deem beneficial to the mutual interest of both countries, through any channel of negociation which may appear advantageous to that government.

I request that you will accept the assurances of the high consideration, with which I have the honor to be,
Sir,——Your most obedient and Humble servant,
(Signed) WELLESLEY.

EASTON:—TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1810.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Branch of the Farmers Bank of Maryland, in this town, on Thursday last, they elected JOHN KENNARD, Esq. Cashier, vice HALL HARRISON, Esq. resigned.

The following official papers, respecting the state of our relations with France, go far to shew that but little chance exists of an early accommodation of our differences with her on any principles compatible either with justice, or that respect which every independent nation owes to itself. These communications remove all doubt of the genuineness of the Duc de Cadore's note to General Armstrong, which, in point of language as well as substance, is equally reprehensible. The principles it assumes are such as we never could adopt without disgrace, and the terms an outrage on dignity and decorum. With such features, it is not surprising that its genuineness was questioned; for it was scarcely credible, that a government that, we were told from various quarters, professed friendship towards us and a respect for neutral rights, should use language only fitted to excite indignation. We are authorised to say, that our government had no official knowledge of the existence of this note, until it was received through England a few days since by the Camilla. The publicity given to it must have been by the French government, as it made its appearance in the Paris papers a few days subsequent to its date—a memorable fact, indicating the resolution of that government, in thus committing itself to the world, to maintain the ground taken in it. *Nat. TRIESTE, 7th March, 1810.

Mr. Inspector General,

The confiscation of the American schooner Elizabeth, captain Jeffery Farroll, has taken place in consequence of the orders of his Imperial and Royal Majesty, agreeably to the communication made to me on the 4th instant, by the Governor General.

I have since been notified of the intentions of his majesty in a more formal manner, by the letter which the Duke of Gaete, Minister of the Finances, wrote to me on the 24th of February last.

According to the terms of the letter, and conformably to the orders of his Majesty, it was enjoined immediately to lay an embargo on all American vessels which should be found, or which should arrive in the ports of the Illyrian provinces, and their cargoes were directed to be confiscated.

These particulars furnish an answer to the enquiries contained in your letter of this day, and I think it would be expedient to communicate them to capt. Farroll.

I have the honor, &c.

NAPLES, 9th March, 1810.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs of his Majesty the King of the Two Sicilies, to Mr. T. Hammet, Consul of the United States of America.

SIR,

I have laid before his Majesty the repeated demands which you have addressed to me in behalf of the American citizens and vessels lying in the ports of his kingdom. His Majesty cannot contemplate without pain the little consonance which appears to him to exist between your solicitations and the principles adopted by the government of the United States which are contained in the provisions of the act of the first of March of the past year, operating against the commerce of France and that of those states leagued with her in the political system of the French empire.

After that act, you ought not to be surprized, sir, at the vigorous measures which his Majesty the King has been compelled to adopt against the vessels of your nation laden with prohibited merchandize

With respect to the Americans who compose the crews of the confiscated vessels, his Majesty has directed his minister of the marine to procure passages for them, in order that they may return to America.

I flatter myself, sir, that the alterations which may take place in the resolutions of your government, will dispose his Majesty to measures more conformable to his views and to those sentiments of friendship and good understanding which the King is desirous should exist, and which he wishes to cultivate with the U. States of America.

Accept, sir, the assurance of my very distinguished consideration.

(Signed) The Marquis of Gallo.

It is said, that the famous Edward Livingston "Citizen of New York," (now of N. Orleans) has brought a suit against Thomas Jefferson, in the federal court for this district—on the ground of having ejected him from the batture of New Orleans, while Mr. J. was President of the U. S. that damages are laid at One Hundred Thousand Dollars—that John Wickham has taken out the writ, in the name of E. L.—and that W. Mann, the deputy marshall, really set out yesterday for Monticello, to serve it.——The federal court will sit on Tuesday next—so that there has been no time lost!

COMMUNICATED.

Captain Anthony will oblige me to weigh the fleeces that comes off the twelve ewes loan'd to Mr. Lloyd last fall, and send by the boy (who comes to shear them) a certificate of the same.

JACOB GIBSON.
17th May, 1810.

I do hereby certify, that I have weighed the twelve fleeces that came off the ewes which Mr. Gibson loan'd to Mr. Lloyd last fall, and that they weighed 101 and 1-2 lbs.

AARON ANTHONY,
Overlooker for E. Lloyd.

I also certify, that I weighed the fleece that came off a ram lamb which Mr. Gibson sent to Mr. Lloyd, and it weighed 11 and 1-4 lbs.

NOTE—by Mr. Gibson—These 12 ewes Mr. Lloyd borrowed to go to his Merino Ram, and that he preferred those with short fleeces on account of the wool being the finest, consequently they were the lightest fleeces.

FOR SALE,

A VALUABLE Tract of LAND, lying and being in Queen Ann's county, about 7 miles from Centreville, near Roe's Cross Roads, called Block Town, about five hundred and seventy acres; and has the following improvements—a dwelling house, kitchen, granary, corn house, stable, barn, and other necessary out houses, with sufficient timber for the use of the farm, with a plenty of wood. This land is well adapted to the growth of wheat, corn and tobacco, and has a number of valuable poplar trees which might be sawed up in scantling, and sold to advantage at Centreville market: Also, a quantity of valuable ash timber. This land will be sold altogether, or in lots so as to suit the purchaser or purchasers—provided the whole can be sold, one third of the purchase money will be required, and the residue in three annual payments. Any person wishing to view the property, may apply to Mr. Smith, the tenant now residing on the farm, and for further particulars to the subscribers. Possession may be had the first day of January next, and possession to seed wheat next fall; the land will be run out in August next, when any person or persons wishing to buy, may have an opportunity of viewing the lands—by applying to G. Coursey, they may be informed of the day the land will be laid down.
