That Black-Draught Is Excellent for Stomach and Liver Disorders, Hence Its Great Popularity.—Mississippi Planter's Indorsement.

Houston, Miss.—Mr. J. A. Trenor, a well-known planter of this place, recently related his experience in using Thedford's Black-Draught. I don't believe there is a better liver medicine made," said Mr. Trenor. "I use it for headache, stomach disorders and torpid liver.

"It is not bad to take, does not leave a constipated condition, as so many of the liver pills and medicines do. It does its work and leaves you feeling like a new person."

Thousands of others have found Black-Draught as helpful as Mr. Trenor describes, and a valuable remedy for derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. It is purely vegetable, having an active effect upon the bowels, gently stimulating the liver, and helping to increase the flow of bile.

Black-Draught has been found to assist in the digestion of food, and relieves constipation in a prompt and normal way.

On account of Black-Draught's long-proved merit and immense popularity, many imitations are being offered for sale. For your own satisfaction it will pay you to insist upon the genuine, and be sure the package bears the name "Thedford's Black-Draught."

PLAN TO HANDLE AUTO CAREFULLY

Practically Every Car Carries With It a Book of Instructions for Owner.

CHIEF POINTS IN DRIVING CAR

New Drivers Must Learn Need of Carefulness and Watch Themselves That Recklessness Does Not Creep in Somewhere.

There are all sorts of car drivers, just as there are all sorts and conditions of men. If every owner of a new automobile would take the time and trouble to study his car carefully there would be fewer causes for complaint.

Practically every car when delivered to the customer, carries with it a book of instructions in which everything necessary for the owner to know about the care of his car is down in print. There are very few persons with whom intimacy will not grow if given a chance and when the car is new and the driver inexperienced or nervous there is usually some fear present which has to be met and mastered.

How to handle a car carefully is what should be impressed upon every owner's mind. To be able to start and stop according to the intent of reason and come and go safely are the main points in driving.

Whether or not the owner acquaints himself with the theory of the car's operation is another matter which comes under the heading of expense in the end and must be dealt with according to the owner's notions of economy. New owners must learn the need of carefulness, and as experience comes they should watch themselves that recklessness does not creep into the driving. Thousands of hearts are yearly made sad because somebody does not recognize this one point.

For public safety and your own there is at all times a necessity for being on the watch. Fast driving around corners where the view is obstructed courts the danger of meeting somebody just around the turn.

A straight stretch may have all the appearances of being perfectly safe for a burst of speed, but even then you never know what may come across your path before you could apply the brakes and slow down without dangerous skidding. There may be a little child, as often there is, who comes toddling out in front of you, or it may be a slow-moving cow or old horse, hog or sheep. Whoever has had experience in meeting live stock on the road knows too well with what slowness most of it will clear the way.

The danger is always great in fast driving on the public road. Racing comes under this head. It ought to be put down in the code of road ethics of every car driver that racing is not to be countenanced. If you must race, go to a track prepared for that purpose, where, if neck-breaking is to come as a result, it will be your own without the greater probability of adding others to the list.

Sudden starts and stops are hard on tires and passengers as well as a strain on the whole car. The rule is that when you are taking liberties on the public road you are also infringing upon the road rights of other people, and so defying the law.

The careful automobile operator makes his car last two or three times as long as the other fellow. Carefulness pays not only in small cost of operation but also eliminates to a minimum the possibility of damage suits for accidents which happen just because the Golden Rule of the road has not been observed.

GIVE SPRING LEAVES CAREFUL ATTENTION

Keep Foreign Matter Away From Them is First Step.

Ample Protection Can Be Given by Covering With Boots—Leather or a Good Substitute Is Best Material to Use.

The leaves of an automobile spring are intended to slide upon one another when the car is in motion. Many car owners allow the springs to get dirty, to go without lubrication and to become very rusty. The leaves become so dirty that instead of sliding on each other, they work almost as if they were one solid piece of steel. Then, when the car strikes a hole or a bump in the road the springs are compressed and instead of each leaf working as a separate unit, the lower leaves of a rusty spring are held fast to the upper leaves. The reaction from the compression of such a spring is many times greater than the reaction of a clean, well-lubricated spring where the leaves are allowed to slip on one another as they should.

The first step toward a remedy is to keep mud and dirt and all foreign matter away from the springs. This can be done effectively by covering them with boots. Some supply stores carry covers to fit a good range of sizes of springs, but if you can't buy them already made, you should be able to make them yourself, sewing them together of leather or a good grade of leather substitute, advises Motor Life Magazine. The advantage of the latter material is that it is much cheaper than leather, and being waterproof, it will keep dirt and moisture away from the springs. It isn't a very big job to make suitable spring covers, especially if you can get some of the members of the family interested to the point that they will sew the covers together on the sewing machine. Since the lubrication on springs protected in this way will remain in place a very long time and will not gather grit and dirt, the slight expense and trouble which the making and fitting of the boots will entail will be well worth the effort.

A squeak is one of the most annoying and most elusive troubles to which a car is subject. Usually it is located in the springs, and so they must be oiled.

In cars using vacuum feed a leak in the line running to the inlet manifold may interfere with proper operation of the engine at high speed, though not at low.

When gear cases or housings are provided with vents to permit the escape of air under pressure that results from heating, care should be taken to see that the vents are kept free.

When the commutator brushes of the generator become slightly worn arcing is likely to result. This may be prevented by filing the brushes so that they make a good contact with the commutator.

ANTI-STEALING DEVICE FOR MOTOR CAR

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

The photo shows Third Deputy Police Commissioner Joseph A. Faurot of New York, famous fingerprint expert, and Lieut. James J. Skehan, instructor of the New York police training school, standing beside a car protected with their Faurot-Skehan safety-scope. With a diamond at the top of the device, the ignition of the car is cut off and the diamond is a signal to everybody that if the car is being operated, the machine is being stolen. Commissioner Faurot holds in his hand the disk which is locked into the device when the rightful owner or driver is operating the car. This disk connects the ignition.

Battery Connector.

A very convenient battery connector may be made from a piece of heavy steel coil spring. The spring wire at each end is fashioned into a hook and these are slipped into the battery posts, the tension of the spring insuring perfect contact.

Watch Fastenings.

Go over the fastenings of the starting and lighting system occasionally to make sure that they are not coming loose.

In many makes of wire wheels the greatest care must be exercised in putting the locking devices in place.

The car owner should keep in mind that one of the most prolific causes of engine overheating is driving on a retarded spark.

In cleaning small parts of the chassis, such as the oil holes on brake cross shafts, brake connections, etc., use an oil can filled with kerosene and a stiff brush.

OESCHGER AND CADORE, PITCHERS IN RECORD 26-INNING TIE GAME

Leon Cadore Joe Oeschger Photos by International

Many ball players are often compelled to put in several years of their youth in the major leagues before they command any attention. One of these is Pitcher Joe Oeschger of the Boston Braves. He has been in the National league for six years, but it just begins to look as if he will fulfill the promises made for him while he was a member of the Phillies, writes Oscar C. Reichow in Chicago News. Speaking in the vernacular of the game he has "arrived" and gives indications of being one of the most successful right handers in the league—if not that, the best the Boston club has had in many seasons.

Lacked Control.

Oeschger, although having all the natural requisites to make a great pitcher, was prevented from taking his place in the ranks of the leaders owing to his inability to get the ball over the plate. Pitching with a delivery resembling that of Grover Alexander he was able to throw with terrific force and also disclosed a curve ball that was hard to hit. Yet with all this he could not win consistently because he was erratic and did not know how to utilize his assortment. This, however, did not discourage him and he kept on trying and practicing control until he seems to have reached the stage where he can engrave his name in the hall of fame.

What has brought about the marked improvement in Oeschger's work is believed to be his switch from the Philadelphia to the Boston club. While with the Phillies he was unable to get away successfully, although at times he showed signs of being as great a pitcher as Alexander. He could not master his speed, but is said to have done so since he joined George Stallings' forces.

Battled Twenty-Six Innings.

Oeschger is the pitcher who battled Leon Cadore of the Brooklyns 26 innings to a draw May 1. That was by far the greatest exhibition of twirling he ever gave in the National league and was an indication of what quality of work he is capable of doing when right. When he completed that record-breaking battle he had completed 55 innings of toil on the slab, and had allowed only two earned runs in that time against three different ball teams. This is not a record, but it is almost good enough to be one, and is a feat that few pitchers in the major leagues today achieve.

MAINSPRING OF TEAM IS BRAINY RECEIVER

Managers Place Too Much Importance on Pitching.

Catcher Corresponds to Quarterback on Football Team, Says Larry Lajoie—In Best Position to Get Information.

Although he is out of baseball, Larry Lajoie, former star batsman of the American league, is having a lot of fun watching the major league hurlers, trying to cut out the freak delivery, as per orders of the powers at their big session early this year. Lajoie has not been heard to speak his mind on the matter directly, but he did state recently that major league managers placed entirely too much importance on pitching and not enough on the catching department.

The big Frenchman says he wants to be thoroughly understood as being in favor of first-class pitching. But the catcher is the real mainspring of any ball club, after all," said Larry, "because he corresponds to the quarter back on a football team."

Lajoie was in a reminiscent mood. He recited some of the wonderful pitching accomplishments of Cy Young, and then asked how many of these wonderful games Cy would have annexed had it not been for the work of Chief Zimmer and O'Connor. Both of these receivers were of the brainy type, and not infrequently made it possible for Young to work out of a hole by the exercise of a little strategy at the plate.

"I know pitchers must have something or they can't get by," quoth Larry, "but I also contend that many hurlers branded mediocre can also get by with a creditable average if the man catching them is onto his business and gives them the help that lies within his power to give them."

According to Lajoie, the catcher has the best opportunity to get information on the batter. Not only can he get information on the man at bat, but he can communicate with the pitcher through a code of signals. Larry says he would like to have an expression from some of the star flingers of a few years back. "I never sought their opinion on this matter," he declared, "but I would be willing to lay a little bet that everyone of them will give their catcher a lot of credit for their success." Lajoie predicts the umpires will become more disgusted with the rules against freak pitching than the pitchers themselves, because the indicator handlers will be obliged to watch every move of the mound man. "Wonder what will be next?" asked the veteran as the discussion drew to a close.

Safe in Unsuspected Dangers.

Writing of accidents to persons employed in industrial plants, Dr. C. Widmer says in Therapie der Gegenwart (Berlin) that the experience of countless ages enables us to sidestep injury unconsciously, and only when we focus our consciousness on the reaction to the occurrence is injury liable to result.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.
