allowed him whereupon such warrant is issued upon return whereof it is certified in our Land Office that there is contained in the said Tracts now reduced into one eleven hundred and forty four acres surplus land more than the original quantity for which they were respectively laid out and for which the said Thomas Trueman hath compounded by letting fall & evacuating upon record at our Instance and surrendering his title to a tract of land called Upton said to lye adjoining upon our manor of Ann Arundel and to contain three hundred acres we do therefore hereby in consideration of the premises give grant and confirm unto him the said Thomas Trueman all them the aforesaid tracts of land together with the said surplus now reduced into one entire tract and bounded as followeth beginning at a point of the mouth of Trent creek on the south side thereof the mouth of the said creek respecting Buzzards Island thence running down Patuxent river southeast three hundred and twenty nine and a half perches then west south west four hundred and sixty perches then north north west thirty eight perches to a white oak on a hill being the second bound tree of the wedge then as the said Wedge runeth West north west two hundred and thirty four perches to a bounded poplar being the south east corner of Cornelius Canadys land the third bound tree of the wedge aforesaid and the last tree of Refuse then with the said Refuse south twenty eight degrees westward one hundred seventy and five perches then east north east twenty two perches to a bounded white oak on a barren hill on the south side of a small branch being the second bound tree of Backland which ought to have stood in the line of refuse then east north east forty eight perches to a bounded white oak in a branch being the first bound tree of Backland aforesaid then down the said branch south east and by east thirty two perches south south east Twenty perches south east twenty five perches south east and by south.

eighteen perches south south east eighteen perches to the main branch of Persimonin then up and with the said main branch west south west seventy perches south south west forty two perches south west and by west ten perches west twenty five perches west south west ten perches west north west thirty one perches west and by south seventeen perches south west and by west twenty one perches south west and by south forty eight perches west sixteen perches south west & by south twenty perches North west and by west five perches west and by north eight perches west south west twenty five perches to a bounded white oak by the said main branch side being the last bound tree of Backland and the second bound tree of Swenton then as the said Swenton runneth East south east thirty five perches to a bounded red oake standing on the south side of Persimonin main branch and on the north east side of a small branch issuing out of the same then south west fifty perches to a bounded Hickory on the south West side of ye said branch then West and by south one hundred and fifty perches to a bounded red oake then north north west one hundred and forty perches to a bounded red oake at the head of a branch a white marsh then East eighteen degrees northwardly one hundred seventy and three perches to a bounded red oake being the first bound tree of Swenton and a bound tree of Backland then north four degrees Westerly thirty eight perches to a bounded red oak in the line of Backland being the forth bound tree of the Inclosure then with and as the said Inclosure runneth west one degree Northwardly three hundred and fifteen perches to a bounded white oak on the south side of a small branch then north seven degrees westwardly one hundred and fifty perches to a bounded white oake in the south west branch of Trent breeks near a path side then down the said South west branch East.