SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1937.

The floods of the Ohio Valley has wroght heavy damage to a large area of the States along the Ohio river. It is estimated that nearly a million citizens were forced from their homes, losing all but their lives. When we think of what would happen in our Southern Maryland should our river rise sixty feet above normal level, we can get an idea of what has happened in a territory of many thousands of square miles with large cities and towns. The resources of many States have been taxed to move the flood victims to places of safety and care for them with food and shelter.

To the radio, the American Red Cross, the railroads and the concerted efforts of the people in the stricken communities and throughout the land it is due that so many could be saved from destruction.

TELEPHONE RESEARCH ACTIVITIES REVIEWED

Radio "Skip" Control

Engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories have now developed a transmitter which may be used for telephone or for continuous wave or tone-telegraph transmission. With this transmitter, according to J. B. Bishop, radio development engineer of the laboratories, ten frequencies may be selected merely by dialing one digit on a telephone dial.

This apparatus has been developed for aviation and marine transportation where it is obviously impossible to use wires, which have proved so valuable to railroads and carriers operating on land. The requirements of radio contact in the air or at sea have lacked much of the dependability of land wire services, Mr. Bishop states, but this lack of satisfactory operation is due largely to atmospheric disturbances such as "skip distance" effects. Fortunately, he says, these qualities affecting radio transmission, while present to some degree on nearly all frequencies, do not affect all frequencies alike. In particular, Mr. Bishop calls attention to the distance of the "skip" and the amount of interfering atmospheric noise, which varies not only with time, but also with frequencies.

If a radio circuit were restricted to the use of a single frequency, according to Mr. Bishop, there would be frequent periods of time when the channel would not be commercially usable, because of noise or other interference, but with apparatus that will take advantage of one of several frequencies available with a transmitter such as has been developed, this objectionable feature may be overcome. Since some frequencies are freer from disturbances at one time and others at another, the choice of frequencies is merely a matter of time of day or season of the year.

The Merit System Versus Spoils

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Increased efficiency in all governmental activities.

Economy for the taxpayer.

Purposeful careers for public employes.

Elimination of the Spoils System.

These are a few of the goals sought by increasing numbers of taxpaying citizens who demand that the Civil Service or Merit System, now in partial effect, replace the Spoils System in all but the topmost federal jobs.

America can achieve these benefits—if Congress does its part. The way is open.

A White House message has urged expansion of Civil Service to include all employes except Secretaries, Under-Secretaries and those in similar policy-making offices. Several members of Congress have introduced measures to hasten extension of the Merit System idea.

But will they be put into effect? That's a different question.

Heavy political barricades must first be overcome. For a complete application of the Merit System would strip politicians of their greatest asset—the control and doling out of jobs. Naturally many politicians will oppose it. Naturally they will fight any step which extends the policy of selecting public servants on the basis of how well they can do their work instead of the basis of how many votes they can deliver for the politicians on Election Day.

There stands the basic issue—whether the Federal payroll, which costs the taxpayers more than a billion dollars annually, shall be for the benefit of politicians who control appointments, or of the public who foot the bill.

It's up to Congress to decide. The choice should not be a difficult one.

Dr. Jerome Snyder will be in Prince Frederick Wednesday, February 3, from 1 to 4 to conduct eye examinations and prescribe glasses. Office at Calvert County Hospital.
