MAGIC CARPET
It doesn't matter what you're thinking of buying—a fur pin or a loft purchase, a necktie for junior or a set of dining-room furniture—in no event do you start your shopping tour in the best place to go until you have perused, in an easy-to-read style, the open newspaper-ads of the city page will carry you as swiftly as the magic carpet of the Arabian Nights, from one end of the shopping district to the other. You can rely on modern advertising as a guide to good value, right prices and genuine worth in merchandise, just as definitely as you were standing in a store.
Make a habit of reading the advertisements in this paper every week. They can save you time, energy and money.

How to Be a Social Success—With Balloons!

TRY these games at your next party! Above: Balloon juggle, in which each player endeavors to keep a balloon on the mouth of a milk bottle. All a given time. Below: Balloon basketball. Place a wastebasket or an inverted lamp shade on an object five or six feet high at each end of the room. Select two groups of players. Each team has a basket as its goal. At a signal one player bats a balloon into the air, then each player tries to bat it into the opponent's basket. Anyone breaking the balloon or permitting it to touch the floor is disqualified.

BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

There's nothing so bad that it couldn't be a worse.
Just ask Peter Rabbit, he's proved that it's true.
And he'll tell you a story of truths.

YOU see, Peter has thrills almost every day. He has grown so used to them that a day that didn't bring him at least one thrill, a real, shivery thrill, like reaching the dear Old Briar Patch only one jump ahead of Reddy Fox, would seem as if there was something wrong with it. But of all the thrills Peter has had perhaps the greatest was when he sat under the pile of brush in the Green Forest, while just outside were Reddy Fox, Granny Fox, Old Man Coyote, and Redtail the Hawk. There he was far from the dear, safe Old Briar Patch and within earshot
