Death of William Fowler.

William Fowler, aged 19 years, Tester son of Mr and Mrs. James Fowler, died on Friday of last week of pneumonia at his home in this county, after an illness of less than a week. The funeral was held at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, Prince Frederick, on Saturday afternoon last at 4 o'clock. Rev Dr. S. Paul Schilling conducted the service. The deceased is survived by his foster parents, who live near Cove Point and a number of foster brothers and sisters.

High School Students Will Attend Field Day at U. of Md.

On Saturday, April 30th, three hundred and fifty high school agricultural students from 35 high schools in twenty one counties will attend the fifth annual vocational education field day to be held on the University of Maryland campus from 9 a. m. to 3.30 p. m.

Under the supervision of authorities of the University department of agriculture, the program is to include meetings, lectures and contests, in public speaking, poultry judging, stock judging and live stock fitting and showing contest. In which over one hundred horses and cattle will be groomed and displayed by the contestants.

Following the contests, the students are to inspect research projects and special displays arranged by the State Experiment Station and the Department of Agriculture, and the program is to be climaxed by the annual Future Farmers of America luncheon at which the H. C. Byrd honor medals are to be awarded to the winners of the various contests.

Luncheon speakers listed for the occasion include Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University Extension Service; Clark Nicholson, president of the Maryland Association of Future Farmers of America, and the student winner of the public speaking contest, John J. Seidel, State director of vocational education, will also speak.

It is thought that the winners of the contests to be held on the various phases of the agricultural studies will be allowed to compete in the national contests to be held in Springfield, Mass., early in the fall.

Maryland Farm Land to be Mapped From Air.

Farm land in thirteen Maryland counties will be mapped from the air during 1938, it is announced by the AAA in Washington, and the contract for flying the several areas and taking the photograps has been let.

The areas included in the areal maps made this year are: Allegany county, 448 square miles; Anne Arundel county, 398 square miles; Baltimore county, 594 square miles; Calvert county, 218 square miles; Cecil county, 377 square miles; Dorchester county, 576 square miles; Garrett county, 685 square miles; Harford county, 442 square miles; St. Mary's county, 334 square miles; Somerset county, 331 square miles; Wicomico county, 371 square miles, and 26 square miles as the remaining part of Prince George's county.

An area in Kent county was first mapped in 1936 as an experiment to determine the value of photographs made from the air as a method of measuring the acreage of various crops grown by farmers participating in the AAA programs. Large areas in a number of counties of the State were mapped in 1937 and the maps were used in measuring acreage. The method of measurement found favor among the farmers and proved to be less expensive and more permanent than methods used previously. The pictures show all landmarks, such as buildings, fences, hedges and roads and can be measured accurately by instruments.

Similar experiences in other states has caused the AAA to enter into aerial mapping on a large scale and it is announced that 18,874 square miles in East Central region will be mapped this year. The average cost is 3 cents per mile.

Humans May Get Fever From Infected Cattle

Dr. Mark F. Welsh, State veterinarian and head of the Live Stock Sanitary Service estimates that Bang's disease, a contagious malady afflicting the herds of Maryland dairy cows, costs dairy farmers more than $1,000,000 annually. In addition to slicing profits from dairy supplies, he warned, the disease may infect humans in contact with infected cattle or drink raw, unpasteurized milk, resulting in a strange malady known as undulent fever.

Dr. Welsh's warning foll wed a report from the State Health Department that twelve cases of undulent fever have been recorded in the counties since January 1. The State's war on Bang's disease, given impetus by a $100,000 appropriation made by the 1937 Legislature, has been waged successfully in nine of the twenty-three counties, Dr. Welsh said, with infected cattle weeded completely from herds in sections where residents generally drink raw milk. Two-thirds of the estimated $60,000 head of cattle in the State have yet to be inspected.

A farmer's principal loss from the infection results from the fact that cattle afflicted with disease become unproductive and fail to "pay their way." In tested herds such victims are destroyed and indemnities paid the farmer by the State and Federal governments.

Humans who contact the disease may take months to recover from it, suffering meanwhile from varying high temperatures and "a general lassitude which makes a person too ill to go to work and not ill enough to go to bed," Dr. Welsh explained.

Bone and joint lesions sometimes result, similar to tuberculosis. It is seldom ever fatal. Persons most likely to contact undulent fever are farmers, veterinarians and butchers, since they are in closest contact with cattle, Dr. Welsh said. Several search experts of the sanitary service have been afflicted with it he added.

Chivalry in China.

Hordes of fanatical Chinese were attempting to block the advance of the Allied troops, bound to the relief of besieged legations at Peking in the summer of 1900. Helpless women and children anxiously awaited their arrival. En route the rescue force met a formidable barrier at Tientsin, where the Chinese Boxers had gathered in great strength in an effort to stay the advance.

Along with the U. S. Marines and other allied troops, men of the 9th Infantry, U. S. Army, had been fighting under their gallant leader, Major James Regan. The fire of the Chinese snipers had wounded the officer and several of his men, but the fighting was so heavy elsewhere that none of the other fighting units were able to go to his relief.

At nightfall, when the din of battle had partly subsided, American and British Marines volunteered to remove the wounded to place of safety. Braving the rifle fire of the belligerent Chinese, three U. S. Marines went to the aid of Major Regan.

They were without Red Cross equipment and they had no litter or which to carry the wounded, so they stripped off their shirts and stretched them over their rifles to improvise a stretcher. Then they carried the wounded officer for three miles over the roughest kind of ground while exposed to the enemy fire.

In commending his rescuers Major Regan wrote: "Such men are worthy of all the distinction the government can confer upon them." The sergeant who led the three marines won the praise of the Secretary of the Navy and a Medal of Honor. Fearful of the fate of the besieged Legations, the triumphant Allies soon brushed aside every obstacle and reached Peking.

On SWEET POTATOES

POTASH and PROFIT go hand in hand

USE fertilizers "high" in potash if you want large yields of good quality sweet potatoes which will return "high" profit. Potash is the plant food which not only increases the set, but rounds out the tubers into chunky and more uniform shapes that bring premium prices on consumer markets . . . Successful growers have found that analyses such as 2-8-10, 3-8-15, 3-3-15, and 4-4-20, applied in amounts to supply at least 150 lbs. of potash per acre, will give high yields and good quality. Application should be made about 10 days after planting . . . Consult your county agent or experiment station for the right fertilizer for your own farm. See your fertilizer dealer or manufacturer regarding high-potash fertilizers. You will be surprised how little extra it costs to apply enough potash to insure profits.

Write us for further information and literature on how to fertilize your crops.
