The fine new engine of the North Beach Volunteer Fire Department was shown here for awhile and admired on Tuesday afternoon. Costing $10,163 00, it was purchased from the Seagrave Company, of Columbus, Ohio. With fine state of preparedness for fire at North Beach, by contrast makes our condition here at Prince Frederick seem all the more forlorn. Our town destroyed by fire in 1892, we would be to day, in the event of another conflagration, in no better state to fight it than we were at that time.

State Offices Site to be Made Ready.

Bids for clearing the site of the proposed State office building at Annapolis will be opened by the State Board of Public Works June 29, says the Baltimore Sun of Wednesday.

At the same time the board will receive bids for installing automatic stokers at the State power house to increase the efficiency of the present plant. This will eliminate the necessity of installing an additional boiler to care for the new office building.

The office building will be constructed on College avenue, on a site running from the postoffice to Bladen street and back to Carroll street. Most of the property has been acquired by the State, but several condemnation suits are pending.

Joseph O'C. McCusker, secretary to the Board of Public Works, said it had been estimated tentatively that the building would cost about $600,000. The State is seeking a PWA grant to take care of forty-five per cent of the cost.

The architects are planning a three story brick-and-steel building of Colonial design.

Engineers soon will begin borings on the site to determine the nature of the ground. Thirt-en borings will be made to a depth of twenty feet. The State Armory, on Bladen street, will be moved to Carroll street.

WPA Program in Calvert and Charles Counties Completed.

A well balanced Works Progress Administration program has been completed in Calvert and Charles counties at a cost of more than $126,000 it has been announced by F. H. Dryden, State Administrator Mr Dryden declared that the sponsors of projects in these counties showed excellent judgment in the selection of work to be done. He pointed out that this work ranged from improved roads to the construction of a new wharf at Solomons. The completion of a modern sewage system and disposal plant at Indian Head, Charles county, was one of the most important WPA projects undertaken in Southern Maryland

Mr. Dryden, commenting on the work carried out in these counties, said:

"The local sponsors were careful to select projects that met the special conditions existing in Southern Maryland. As a result of their forethought and study, improvements of lasting benefit have been made."

He said that more than $67,000 has been spent on State sponsored projects in Charles county and more than $60,000 in Calvert county. The major portion of these funds were spent on farm-to-market roads, sponsored by the State Roads Commission. Among the Charles county roads constructed were the Smith Point Road, the La Plata-Dentville Road, the St. Peter's Church Road, the Hughesville Road and the Rock Point Road.

Local WPA workers carried out county-wide sanitation programs in these counties and in Charles county lunches were furnished to many school children under a WPA non-construction project.

One of the most important projects in Calvert county was sponsored by the University of Maryland. WPA workers visited farms in every section of the county and took 274 soil samples that were tested for content in crop nutrients and lime needs. Following the analysis of the soil, farmers were advised how to secure maximum crops. In Calvert county improvements were made to eight roads, giving the tobacco planters important routes to the shipping centers At Solomons the state Conservation Commission sponsored the construction of a dock 712 feet long, and the reconditioning of the Biological Laboratory there.

Channel Sought for Plum Point.

The development of a fine quality of molding sand and also fullers earth, two commodities not generally known to exist in Calvert county, were added reasons advanced at a hearing before the board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, says the Baltimore Sun on Monday, for dredging a channel and providing a harbor at Plum Point.

A number of citizens, including watermen from Plum Point, headed by Representative S W. Gambrill, urged the board to recommend the dredging of a channel from Chesapeake Bay into Plum Point creek six feet deep and one hundred feet wide, with a basin of suitable size at the head of the channel.

Residents of the community informed the board that an alluvial deposit of fine molding sand would be developed if a suitable channel and harbors to accommodate barges as well as seafood boats could be provided. They also said that a very fine quality of fullers earth at Plum Point is available.

Witnesses explained that samples of this molding sand had been sent to a large foundry in Baltimore, which found it of excellent quality. It was stated, however, that it would be unprofitable to market by truck.

Several seafood captains testified that some of the finest fishing grounds in the Chesapeake Bay exists in the vicinity of Plum Point, and that the oyster rocks are unworkable by Western Shore oystermen because of the lack of a harbor for boats. It was asserted that oysters from these rocks are taken by Eastern Shore boats and shipped to Philadelphia instead of to Baltimore and Washington.

The hearing was on an appeal by Representative Gambrill from an unfavorable report of the army district engineer, on the ground that the dredging of a channel and anchorage basin in Fishing Creek, five miles away, would provide reasonably adequate facilities in the locality.

Witnesses told the board that Plum Point would be the only harbor on the Western Shore between Herring Bay and the mouth of the Patuxent river, and the proposed improvement of Plum Point would bring a number of oyster houses to that place.

Gas Sales Up Despite Tax.

The rate of gasoline tax in the different States does not appear to seriously influence consumption. Reports from the States to the Bureau of Public Roads show that for the last 2 years the greatest increases in consumption—with two exceptions—have been in States with tax rates above the average.

In 1937, 12 States increased their gasoline consumption by more than 10 per cent. In 10 of them the tax ranged from 4 to 7 cents. During the year 4 States increased the rate of tax by 1 cent, so that the average rate for the United States rose from 3.83 cents in 1936 to 3.91 cents in 1937. Rates of tax ranged from 2 cents in the District of Columbia and Missouri to 7 cents in Florida, Louisiana and Tennessee.

The 6 States—New York, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Texas—in which consumption exceeded a billion gallons each, are all in the 3 or 4 cent tax zone. Nebraska and Tennessee were the only States that did not report 1937 consumption exceeding 1936. New York—with 1,702,921,000 gallons netting the State nearly $62,000,000—leads in both volume and receipts. For the United States the totals for 1937 are 19,818,121,000 gallons taxed for highway use, for which the States collected $776,880,000. Other receipts under gasoline-tax laws brought the total to $851,996,000.

Soil Program Encourages Soil Conserving Practices.

The Agricultural Conservation Program for this year provides an incentive for farmers of Maryland to carry out a number of soil conservation practices which have been advocated by the Extension Service for many years, according to Paul E. Nystrom, who is in charge of the program in this State. This includes green manure crops, seeding of legumes, use of lime and forestry improvement methods. He states that attendance at meetings this spring has been unusually large and that farmers have expressed a real desire to plan their farming operations to take advantage of the program.

Mr. Nystrom points out that the new program does not provide for a reduction in acreage of depleting crops, except on farms which normally grow more than three acres of potatoes and farms which normally grow more than 100 bushels of wheat for market. The compensation for farmers, other than the potato and wheat farmers mentioned, will be based entirely on soil conserving practices. Thus, the program is of particular appeal to vegetable growers, orchardists, tob-cco growers, small farmers and dairymen, whose principal cropping program is one of feed production.

For potato and wheat growers the program provides for acreage allotments which include a 10 per cent reduction in commercial potatoes and a reduction in general depleting crops equal to 15 per cent of the normal wheat acreage on farms growing more than 100 bushels for market. With the present relatively unfavorable outlook for potato and wheat prices, it is expected that farmers will take full advantage of the payments offered so as to adjust the acreage of depleting crops and improve the fertility of the soil.

The work of determining and notifying farmers of acreage allotments, possible payments and requirements for soil building practices is nearing completion in he tvarious counties of the State and plans are being pushed to start checking compliances to determine the extent to which farmers have qualified for payment. It is expected that more than 25,000 farms will be inspected as compared to 18,000 in 1937, and 14,000 in 1936. The work this year should be more accurate than in any previous year, since the measurements will be taken from aerial photographs of the entire State.—Extension Service News.
