Mysterious Death of Washington Woman.

For two days the identity of the woman whose dead body was found afloat in Lyons Creek near the bridge over the southern Maryland Boulevard on Monday morning remained a mystery until Wednesday, when, with the aid of finger prints, she was identified as Mrs. Esther M. Lewis, 31, widow of a World War veteran. She was employed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, lived at 1324 11 street, northwest, Washington, and was a Mexican by birth.

The former Esther Lugo, she was born in Durango, Mexico, in 1907, and was married in Los Angeles when she was 18. She was the mother of six children, and an expectant mother.

State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell and Corporal Charles W. Magaha of the Maryland State Police have been constantly pushing the investigation, and on Wednesday secured definite information which led them to contact a man at Arlington, Va., who accompanied them to Calvert that night and identified the body. This man, whose name up to this writing has not been disclosed by the authorities, was questioned for some hours by Captain William McK. Johnson, of the State Police, Detective Sergeant Aminah Flaherty of Washington, State's Attorney Dowell and Officer Magaha, and being held in the county jail here for further investigation.

The body of Mrs. Lewis was discovered in Lyons Creek on Monday morning about 7 o'clock by two colored men, Richard Gray, 70, of Dunkirk, and Bernard Hams, 40, of Chaney, when they were walking past there. They reported it at once, and State's Attorney Dowell ordered an inquest. Justice William W. Duke, acting coroner, summoned a jury and named C. Orville Drury foreman. The body was removed to the Calvert County Hospital, and a post mortem examination made by Dr. Page C. Jett, assisted by Dr. Everard Briscoe. They discovers that death was not by drowning or from any injury received, but due to an unknown cause, the nature of which is still undiscovered. The jury adjourned to Tuesday morning, and then re adjourned subject to recall.

Rural Women's Short Course Attracts Many to College Park.

More than 700 women from all sections of the State registered for the course and on several days this number was increased by at least 200 more. Eighteen women attended from Calvert. They were Mrs. A. H. Bowen, Mrs. May L. Jones, Mrs Ellsworth Anderson, Mrs. S. H. Wilson, Mrs. William Eskay, Mrs. Ojuis M. Abell, Mrs. William R. Ward, Mrs. Willis W. Williams, Mrs. Gregory Dixon, Mrs. Idawood Thomas, Mrs. J. D. Lyons, Mrs. W. S. Williams, Mrs. Samuel Young, Mrs. Robert Knowles, Mrs. Edith L. Kratz, Misses Rose Westinghouse, Frances Grover and Angela Felser, Home Demonstration Agent, who participated in the affairs during the week at College Park.

This was the sixteenth consecutive year that the short course has been held. It is sponsored by the Extension Service of the University of Maryland and is under the supervision of Miss Venia M. Keller, assistant director of the service.

The assembly periods were increasingly interesting because of the noted and popular speakers who appeared on the program. Among the outstanding speakers heard during the week were Dr. John Krantz, school of medicine, University of Maryland; Mrs. Georgella Ross Howard, lecturer on current topics; Rev. E. Paul Shearrer, pastor of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church; Allen Eaton, Russell Sage Foundation, and Mrs Ikko Gregor, master of the O Hara school of Flower Arrangement.

On Thursday, visitor's day, the afternoon feature was a successful and beautiful style review of clothes made and styled by homemakers throughout the State. Calvert county was represented in every division and class as follows: travel, Mrs. George W. Owings; tailor-made dinner, Mrs. Gregory Dixon; morning, Miss Rachel Swann; evening, Aileen Williams. Helen Ward, Barbara Kratz and Eleanor Dorsey styled in the children's parade showing sun suits, school dress and party dress, respectively. Other events of the week included a reception by Dr. Byrd, several musical programs, reports from county council presidents (Mrs. John Wright Williams, Jr., reported for Calvert county a trip to historical places in Washington and a picnic in Rock Creek Park.

Included among the 89 women from 21 counties of the State who received certificates from the University of Maryland on June 17 as a result of having attended the Rural Women's Short Course for four years were Mrs. A. H. Bowen, Mrs. Gregory Dixon, Miss Frances Grover, Mrs. Robert Knowles, Mrs. William S. Ward and Mrs. Anna M. Williams from Calvert county.

The certificates were presented by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, and the address of the morning was made by Rev. Peter Marshall, minister of the New York avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington, his subject being "Keepers of Springs."

Tobacco Expert Warns of Worms.

During the latter part of August and the first of September, 1937, the tobacco growers of Maryland experienced the most severe infestation of hornworms in many decades, according to W. B. Boazy, specialist in tobacco for the University of Maryland.

"These worms not only ruined many acres of tobacco that were not harvested at all but greatly damaged many acres that were harvested," he said.

"Due to prolonged wet weather and the rapid rate of reproduction of the worms, coupled with other difficulties, many growers were unable to kill the pest. Consequently millions of the full-grown worms were permitted to enter the soil last fall for the purpose of hibernation and reproduction in the spring or summer of 1938. Judging from the number of worms entering the soil, growers are anticipating a devastating brood early in 1938.

"Fortunately, though, only small percentage of the worms entering the soil will emerge as moths this summer. Many were so thoroughly parasited that they died shortly after entering the soil. Some were destroyed by freezing and others were consumed by various forms of wild life," Mr. Posey continued.

"Many land growers generally expect two broods; one when the tobacco is less than half grown and the other just prior to harvesting the crop. It is highly important to kill the first brood as worms maturing from this lot will enter the soil and emerge in about three weeks as moths and ay the eggs for the second brood. When the tobacco is large it is very difficult to cover the plant sufficiently with a poison to reach the insect, and when the worms become large they are much harder to kill with poisons. Therefore, all growers should cooperate in killing the first brood as the flying range of the moths may cover several miles," the specialist warned.

"There are several effective poisons for hornworms, known as compounds of rotenone, pyrethrum, cryolite, lead and Paris green. However, the most reliable seem to be arsenate of lead or Paris green. These are mixed with land plaster or lime which act as a spreader. Growers equipped with rotary or plunger type of dusters will find a mixture containing one pound of arsenate of lead and six pounds of lime effective in killing the insect. Seven to eight pounds of the mixture will be required to cover an acre, depending upon the size of the plants. "Those preferring to use open weave bags or stick-can applicators may find a mixture of one pound of arsenate of lead or one pound of Paris green mixed with twenty-five pounds of plaster or lime quite effective. Dusting should be done early in the morning or late in the afternoon when there is no breeze stirring and the plants should be thoroughly covered.

"Some form of prepared clay or road dust, could be substituted for the lime or plaster when dusting just prior to harvesting, as these products will not discolor the tobacco after it is cured like the white materials," he concluded. Baltimore Sun.

Summer Program of Agricultural Teacher.

The agricultural teacher of the Calvert County High School, Carey R. Lacey, remains in the county during the summer for the following purposes:

(1) To supervise through visits the project programs of 45 agricultural students which consist of the following: 25 boys with 132,300 hills of tobacco; 10 boys with 10 brood sows; 2 boys with 4 fattening hogs; 8 boys with 10.25 acres of Hale's Yellow Dent Corn; 5 with 1,039 baby chickens; 8 boys with 48,580 square feet of garden; 2 boys with 2,000 strawberry plants; 3 boys with 3 heifers; 2 boys with 1400 sweet potato plants; 2 boys with 175 hills of watermellons; 2 boys with 8 bee hives; 2 boys with 300 hills of canteloupes; 1 boy with 12 lay ing hens.

Each student is required to keep an accurate record of his expenses, labor record and receipts.

Needless to say farming is a 19 months job; so the agricultural teacher can not stop when 9 months is up, and let the tobacco become grassy and the other project programs drop for a need of supervision.

(2) To plan for the program of work for the next school year, since none of his time is taken with community agricultural activities

(3) To promote vocational agriculture in general through visitation, attending meetings and public talks.

Directors' Conference at Ocean City.

Officers and directors of the Southern Maryland Production Credit Association will attend a group directors' conference at Ocean City, Md., next week from June 28th through June 30th, at which representatives from several other associations will be present, president Harry W. Townsend, of Mitchellville, Md., announced today.

The conference will be largely devoted to a discussion of questions pertaining to greater efficiency in making short-term loans to finance farm operations. The directors whose associations are represented will submit those questions and will participate freely in the discussion.

In order that there may be a clearer understanding of the principles and objectives involved, a discussion of the history and background of the Farm Credit system will be presented by Production Credit Corporation officials, from which it is believed greater coordination in the operation and management of associations and better service to farmers will result, Mr. Townsend said.

Those expected to attend from the Southern Maryland association in addition to Mr. Townsend are directors Horace H. Bowling, Mechanicsville; F. B. Bolton, La Plata; Goodman Goldstein, Prince Frederick, and secretary-treasurer J. Ellis Bowen. Representatives from production credit associations at Accomac, Va., Hagerstown, Salisbury, Denton and Towson, Md., will also attend the conference.

Improvement in Banking Situation Revealed.

Further improvement in the banking situation revealed by the annual report to Congress of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for the past calendar year, has been made public. Briefly noted below are some of the salient features of the report:

FDIC insuring deposits in 13,853 banks on December 31, 1937. These banks hold deposits amounting to about $45 billion of which deposit insurance was protecting approximately $21 billion. Fifty million depositors—more than 36 per cent fully covered by insurance.

FDIC acted to protect 277,726 depositors of 178 insolvent banks between January 1, 1934 and December 31, 1937. Total deposits of these banks were $76

FDIC made 72822 examinations of banks not members Federal Reserve System in 1937. Appraised value of assets of these banks shown to have risen from 89.5 per cent of book value as estimated at the time of admission to insurance in 1933 and 1934, to 99.9 in 1937.

Insured commercial banks increased loans 5 per cent in 1937 despite decline in total deposits. All other classes of declined.

Net current operating earnings of the insured commercial banks for the year 1937 amounted to $471 million, equivalent to return of 7.4 per cent on their capital account. This was the third successive year in which there has been an increase in net earnings of insured banks.

Net reduction of 176 in number of insured banks between January 1 and December 31, 1937. Number of non-insured banks dropped from 1,178 to 1,086 in same period, resulting in a slight increase in the proportion of insured banks. Among commercial banks 97 per cent of the total deposits were held by insured banks at the close of 1937.
