JULY 2, 1938

For the first time in over fifty years the Democrats of Southern Maryland will have an available candidate for the nomination for Governor. It is the candidacy of Senator L. G. Sauser, of Prince George's county, that gives us the opportunity at this time. For a long period of years Baltimore City, the Eastern and Western Shores have furnished the Governors. The two candidates occupying the limelight at present are both from Baltimore, and waging a campaign of such bitterness that, should either secure the nomination, there is a grave probability of a split in party support at the election.

The selection of some other candidate would make an election less doubtful, and Senator Sauser, having kept clear of all factional controversy and strife, would make a candidate whom all factions could support. We hope to see him heartily supported in Calvert.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Robert F. Johnson, who passed away nine years ago, June 30th, 1929.

Nine years our family circle was broken,
A link gone from our chain,
But, though we're parted for a while,
We hope to meet again.
From this world of pain and sorrow,
To the land of peace and rest,
God has taken you, dear father,
Where you have found eternal rest.
Loving Wife and Children

In loving memory of our husband and father, Rufus L. Gott, who departed this life seven years ago, June 29th, 1931.

Just a thought of as we remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and sweet devotion
Of the ones who think of you.
By his loving Wife and Children.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the House of Delegates, subject to the Democratic primaries, and solicit the support of my friends and the Democratic voters of Calvert county in general.

STEADY CENTER OF POPULATION FOUND

Census Bureau Discloses Forecast of 1872 Is True.

Washington, D. C.—A prophecy made by a noted geographer 65 years ago that the center of population of the United States would ultimately be at a point 30 miles east of St. Louis appears nearer of fulfilment.

The term "center of population," as used by the census bureau, is that point which may be considered the center of gravity of the United States; that is, if it were a rigid plane without weight and the population distributed over it, with each individual being assumed to have equal weight and to exert an influence on a center point proportional to his distance from the point.

Although the bureau has not made a study to determine the center of population since 1930 because of the expense involved, it was believed that on the basis of most recent population distribution estimates, the hypothetical point is several miles west of Paxton, Ind., close to the Indiana-Illinois line.

Stationary Point Forecast.

In 1872, J. D. Hilgard, prominent geographer of his day, predicted the line which the center of population would follow and prophesied that the imaginary center of gravity would move by the year 2000 to a point approximately 30 miles east of St. Louis where it would remain stationary in subsequent years.

The census bureau in 1930 computed the pivotal point at a site 2.9 miles northeast of Linton, in Stockton township, Greene county, Indiana. In the decade from 1920, the center moved 22.3 miles westward and 7.6 miles southward. Because of the large westward migration of population in 1933 and thereafter, experts believed that the shift in the center would exceed 25 miles.

The greatest movement west was during the decade from 1850 to 1860 when the center advanced 50.6 miles. The least movement west was during the decade from 1910 to 1920, when it advanced only 9.8 miles. The total westward shift from 1790 to 1930 was 589 miles.

Along Thirty-ninth Parallel.

Hilgard predicted that the center would follow close to the thirty-ninth parallel of latitude. Census bureau experts said the line of the movement since 1872 has been remarkably close to that parallel.

The point farthest north was reached in 1790 and farthest south in 1830. In 1790 the center was approximately 23 miles east of Baltimore. In the next decade it had moved to 18 miles west of Baltimore. Succeeding decades found the center moved successively to points 40 miles northwest by west of Washington; 16 miles east of Moorefield, W. Va.; 19 miles westsouthwest of Moorefield; 16 miles south of Clarksburg, W. Va.; 23 miles southeast of Parkersburg, W. Va.; 20 miles south by east of Chillicothe, Ohio; 48 miles east by north of Cincinnati; 8 miles west by south of Cincinnati; 20 miles east of Columbus, Ind.; 6 miles southeast of Columbus; in the city of Bloomington, Ind., and in 1920, 8.3 miles south-southeast of Spencer, Washington township, Owen county, Indiana.

First Alchemist Lived in Japan 2,160 Years Ago

New York.—The earliest known alchemist, named Jofuku, lived in Japan more than 2,160 years ago, according to a study reported to the American Chemical society by Rokuro Nakaseko of Tokyo and Tenjay L. Davis of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The emperor Ch'in Shih Huang Ti of Japan, ruling about 235 B. C., is said to have sent Jofuku on an elaborate naval expedition to find three supernatural islands in the midst of the Eastern sea, "where the immortals lived and a drug existed which prevented death." The alchemist, whose career is recorded in the "Shih Chi" or "Historical Memoirs of Ssu-Ma Ch'ien," discovered a remarkably peaceful and fertile land where he became king.

Jofuku's tomb stands on a wall-enclosed plot of sanctified ground at Shingu in Wakayama prefecture, Japan, where it is visited by pilgrims who burn incense, make offerings of pennies or rice, and pray for long life and happiness.

If Her Hat's Crazy Get a Load of This!

Hollywood.—A test to determine just how fantastic Milady's hat can be without arousing comment is a failure.

Miss Marion McKenzie, former New York show girl, who carried out the experiment along Hollywood's boulevards, attracted no more than ordinary attention when she wore on her head:

A lampshade, quite gaudy
One rubber band;
Two artificial flowers;
One chain off a bathtub plug
One shoelace.
A laundry truck driver offered the only comment:
"Huh! If you think that hat's screwy you ought to see the one my wife just bought."

TELEPHONE DIRECTORY COVER DESIGN REPRODUCES PRIZE WINNING STATUE

The symbolic figure "The Genius of Electricity," which since 1916 has crowned the tower of the headquarters building of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at 195 Broadway, New York City, will become familiar to thousands and thousands of telephone users as the illustration of "The Spirit of Communication" on the covers of telephone directories throughout the country in 1938.

The statue, modeled by Evelyn Beatrice Longman, was the successful design in a competition between eight leading sculptors of the day. The judges were Theodore N. Vail, then president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Daniel Chester French, famous sculptor, and Welles Bosworth, the architect of the building.

The heroic winged figure poised on a globe is 424 feet above the street level. The statue is about 22 feet high from the tip of the thunderbolts to the bottom of the globe and weighs 16 tons. This weight and the great area of the wings, which extend about 9 feet from the body, imposed definite engineering problems both in hoisting the statue into place and in maintaining it in position against the high winds which sometimes prevail in New York. However, during a storm the thunderbolts faithfully perform the role they represent, for they serve as a lightning rod.

Many telephone directories throughout the country will have this picture on the covers.
