An unusual amount of advertising has reduced our usual reading columns this week.

The Elections.

The official vote of the county is given above; the vote though not a full one, is larger than has been cast under the registration law. The dissatisfaction growing out of the local nominations has doubtless reduced the vote somewhat, and the personal feeling arising from the contest between the candidates for the clerkship in the nominating convention, has reacted upon several of the candidates for the county offices, and reduced their vote.

The result in the State will satisfy the most exacting; it is believed that the Democrats have carried every county and elected every state and county officer, the Baltimore American says; "in Maryland the Democratic victory is most complete."

In New York, the result has exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the Democracy; the Republicans have lost that state by from 30 to 40 thousand majority and a United States Senator.

New Jersey is redeemed, the Democrats carrying the state by a handsome majority, and both branches of the Legislature.

The Republican majority in Massachusets will not exceed fifteen thousand against sixty thousand at the last election. Boston gives a democratic majority.

In Wisconsin, Minnesota and Kansas, the Republican majorities have been largely reduced.

The Baltimore Gazette, thus speaks of the elections:

New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Kansas, united on Tuesday with Ohio and Pennsylvania in a verdict of condemnation against the Radical revolutionary party. There is no mistaking the character of the late elections. It is sheer nonsense to talk about local issues, about the apathy of the Republican party or about Conservative frauds. There may have been some lukewarmness in one State, and the Radicals may have been somewhat divided upon minor questions in another. But the great fact stands prominently forth, that the people living on the shores of the Pacific, on the Western prairies, and on the banks of the Susquehanna and Ohio have, together with the people of New England, manifested their disapprobation of the policy of the dominant faction. Conservative gains have been reported everywhere. A popular reaction against the mad and reckless course of the unscrupulous extremists and demagogues at Washington has set in. It is deep and widespread, and there is every reason to believe that it will deepen and widen day by day. The signs of the times are cheering, and in view of the elections of Tuesday we have the right to hope for even better things in the future, and even to anticipate the eventful and, perhaps, speedy redemption of the country from the destruction and anarchy to which a few months ago it seemed inevitably destined.

A Clergyman writing to a friend says: My voyage to Europe is indefinately postponed. I have discovered the "fountain of health" on this side of the Atlantic. Three bottles of the Peruvian Syrup have rescued me from the fangs of the fiend Dyspepsia. Dyspeptics should drink from this fountain.

From the National Intelligencer.

In the election on Tuesday the people of New York have announced that they have done with radicalism. There is hardly a town or county in the State that has not signified its disapprobation of the radical programme of destruction. While Connecticut and California have beaten back the wing, New York has pierced the centre of the cohorts of radicalism, and written upon their beaten banners the talismanic words, "The constitution and the laws shall be obeyed."

Even Massachusetts, radical-ridden as that noble old Bay State has been, wheels into line, and shakes off the shackles of radical despotism. New Jersey and Wisconsin follow, and gallant old Maryland, always for the Constitution and the Union, whether against Southern or Northern or Northern rebels, gives almost an unanimous support.

A survey of the field is gladdening to the heart of every friend of republican institutions and democratic government.—We were upon the verge of an abyss, into which the passions and reckless madness of radical rulers threatened to plunge us and involve us all in irretrieveable ruin. Thank Heaven, we have escaped. The Sumners and Wilsons of Massachusetts, the Stevenses and Forneys of Pennsylvania, the Wades and Ashleys of Ohio, and their satellites of lesser notoriety, were able for awhile to blind and mislead the people: but the people have at last become aroused to their interests, to sense of the thraldom that radical fanaticism was weaving around them; that they had begun already to hear the clanking of the chains and shackles that had been imposed upon their brethern of the South, and were already to be placed upon their own limbs; and in every State of the North and West, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, they have risen in their might and confronted the tyrants and traitors who sought to enslave them, and bid them avaunt with their base schemes of rebellion and anarchy.

Mr Editor of the Transcript:—The Editors of the Kent News made such an unwarrantable attack upon the writer of a communication in your issue of October 26th, that he feels compelled to notice it, not in a political manner, for, the elections being over, it would be inappropriate now, to do so.

They endeavor to proclaim the merits of their own sheet, by depreciative remarks in regard to you. Thus the assertion, that you published their editorial for pay, and made no charge for any communication, is false in the latter particular; as Mr. Editor, you expressly told me when I handed you my communication, that you had charged for the publication of one piece on political questions, and you would be obliged to charge for mine also.

Their "reply" is well written and it is a matter of surprise to many, who know the "calibre" of the understanding and knowledge" of those editors, that such a piece could have eminated from them, so, "as to induce the charitable belief" that some one wrote it for them.

The Trial of Jefferson Davis.

The Washington Express of Tuesday evening says:

It is understood that District Attorney Chandler has had several informal conferences with the Attorney General in reference to the trial of Jefferson Davis, but so far as we can learn, nothing definite was determined. The general impression is that the authorties here will leave the matter to the law officers for the district of Virginia, where it belongs.

A Washington correspondent of the New York Herald alleges that the trial of Mr. Davis has been postponed until the May term of the Richmond court, at the request of the counsel for the government, in order that Chief Justice Chase may preside, and also to take measures for framing a new indictment.

Mortality in New Orleans.

It appears from an official report that since the 7th of July, (when the yellow fever first made its appearance in New Orleans this season,) there have been 5,859 deaths, including 2,917 from yellow fever, 719 from other fevers, and 2,223 from various other diseases. The New Orleans papers of the 30th ultimo announce the appearance of the first frost of the season, a fact which was hailed with great pleasure not only by those who remained in the city during the summer, but by hundreds of absentees scattered throughout the country, and anxious to return to their homes.

The Suffrage Question.

From the N. Y. Nov. 4.

It is very evident that the Radical leaders intend to commit the Republican party to the new doctrine of the National Suffrage, and thus to force it upon the country. The pretentious pronunciamento of Mr. Stevens, the bills and speeches of Mr. Sumner, the passionate demands of Wendell Philipps, the ground taken and the language used by the Tribune, the Washington Chronicle and other Radical organs, leaves no room to doubt the Congress will be called on to enact a law stripping the States of all control over the suffrage, and declaring who may, and who may not, vote in every State of the Union. And, of course, the first effort will be to force this upon the Republican party, and compel every one who desires to rank as a "good Republican," and to escape condemnation as a Copperhead, and Rebel, to give it his support.

* * * * * *

The suffrage question is to become a subject of political contest. Up to the present time the States have had control of it. The Constitution, in express language; gives it to them. An effort is now to be made to take it away from them and confer it upon Congress. The effort is right enough. Perhaps such a change ought to be made. It is possible, certainlainly that the whole spirit and opinion of the people have changed, and that they now prefer a Continental Empire, such as Mr. Stevens describes—with a central power resting on universal suffrage and absolutely controlling it, as does the Empire of France to day—to the national Union, resting on suffrage regulated and controlled by the States composing it, which our fathers framed. If they do—if the country is ready for the change and the people demand it—it not only may, but it must be made. But this must be done by the people themselves, through an amendment of the Constitution, and not by Congress, through the enactment of a law. And this is the mode by which the Republican party must seek the change if it decide to seek it at all.

Quick Witted.

A Down East agriculturist last summer required a number of reapers. Several presented themselves, and all were engaged with one exception. The poor man thus omitted said:

"Master, won't you hire me?"

"No," said the farmer.

"Why not?"

"Because you are too little."

"To little!" exclaimed the astonished Irishman; "does your Honor reap your grain at the top?"

What could Farmer G——do but roar with laughter, and send the little man to join his comrades in the field?
