Saturday Morning, September 5, 1868.

SOME DAY.

You smooth the tangles from my hair,
With gentle touch and tenderest care,
And count the years ere you shall mark
Bright silver threads among the dark—
Smiling the while to hear me say,
"You'll think of this again some day!"
Some day!

I do not scorn the power of time,
Nor count on years of fadeless prime;
But no white gleams will ever shine
Among those heavy locks of mine.
Ah, laugh as gaily as you may,
You'll think of this again some day—
Some day!

Some day I shall not feel as now,
Your soft hands move about my brow;
I shall not slight for light commands,
And draw your tresses through my hands;
But you will see no touch of gray,
And you—you will not laugh that day—
Some day!

I know how long your loving hands
Will linger with these glossy bands,
When you shall weave my latest crown
Of their thick masses long and brown;
But you will see no touch of gray
Adorn their shining locks that day—
Some day!

And while your tears are falling hot
Upon the lips which answer not,
You'll take from these one treasured tress,
And leave the rest to silentness;
Remember that I used to say,
You'll think of this again some day—
Some day!

STILL POND, August 15, 1868.

Dear Transcript:—It requires some effort to brush aside the cobwebs that have collected through the mental galleries, spun by the busy spider, idleness, during the long summer days that have glided lingeringly by, since last you heard from this vicinity.

When July, like a brilliant tropic bird, expands her wings over nature, we feel under a spell of enchantment, and wander in a splendid dream, until the falling leaves bring Autumn.

What varied and beautiful scenes summer presents, such as are to be enjoyed only at this time of the year.

We are almost willing to endure the sun's intense heat, to be rewarded by the grandeur of a thunder storm. We can imagine the stars holding a carnival, and Venus and Mercury, Mars and Saturn, dancing to the music of the thunder-clouds, and lightning follow in the train of these merry planets until they grow weary of excitement, and cast at random upon earth their playthings, rain, wind, lightning—sometimes causing much confusion, striking houses and leveling fields of grain.

The skies of summer are lovely, and the sunsets are the golden doors giving us a peep into the paradise beyond. Our summers are a long Sunday, when we rest from the active duties of the year. Pleasure roams about in the form of picnics in the woods, picnics on the water, and that great social and religious gathering (camp meeting), "where friend meets friend beneath the shadow of the elm," and out under the blue sky, in the shadowy forest aisles, prayers like sweet incense, and hymns of praise are wafted on the breeze upward to the altar of Omniscience.

Aside from its religious importance, what a romantic appearance an encampment in the woods presents? The numerous tents, and tall dark trees, the bustling of arrivals and departures, the pathetic hymns that echo far through the woody depths, the bright costumes, and the blazing fires that illuminate the whole, all tend to excite the imagination and fill the mind with the romance of far-off Spain, where the Gipsey's tent gleams white among the cedars of Granada.

It is a beautiful idea to worship our Creator in his own temples, and sing as the birds do in the pure, clear open air.

Time flies, and the "days and weeks pass onward, pale wanderers from the gardens of the Infinite, they cross the golden bridges of the present and are lost among the shadows of the past."

This community is unusually quiet this year, owing to the failure of the fruit crop. There is no rush of men and teams to the wharves with their products, and we miss the busy steamers plying to and fro, startling the air with their shrill whistle.

Oh, Pomona! why do you deny us your luscious gifts—why desert our orchard bowers for the grove of the pomegranite and orange?

While the peaceful serenity of summer reigns in our midst, what fearful agitations shake the political world. Discord has long ago dropped her apple in the ballot box, and the politicians of to-day keep it rolling around. How the hopes and fears of all this vast country are directed towards the distant horizon, to the time when the polls shall decide the fate of the Nation.

May the pure, clear sea, like a crystal fountain flow down from the Catskill and the Adirondack, and wash from our land the corruption of political turpitude.

Let us hope that RIGHT will conquer, and that every true patriot, from the St. Croix to the Colorado, will lend his aid in this political struggle; that every true man will rally around our Democratic champion, our eagle from the North, who will hold in his beak that serpent (Radicalism) and hurl it, quivering and mangled, on the rocks of Justice and Truth.

God grant that another summer will find us enjoying prosperity and peace under the just administration of Seymour and Blair. ÆSOP.

An old woman, on being examined before a magistrate as to her place of legal settlement, was asked what reason she had for supposing her husband had a legal settlement in that town. The old lady said: "He was born and married there, and they buried him there, and if that isn't settling him there, I don't know what is."

How should a secret be painted? In-violet.

KENT COUNTY LEVY LIST, For 1868.
