Common Sense Treatment of the Horse.

If a man does not like a horse his head is not level. We believe that the heads of our readers are level, ergo, they must like horses. The majority of those who like horses generally manage to own one or more of them, and owning, must be interested in knowing how to keep in good health and vigor this noblest and most serviceable of animals. The following common sense directions from the London Horse Book contain the most practical information in the shortest space of anything we have seen upon this subject:

1. All horses must not be fed in the same proportions, without due regard to their ages, their constitutions, and their work, because the impropriety of such a practice is self evident, yet it is constantly done, and is the basis of disease of every kind.

2. Never use bad hay on account of its cheapness, because there is not proper nourishment in it.

3. Damaged corn is exceedingly injurious, because it brings on inflammation of the bowels and skin diseases.

4. Chaff is better for old horses than hay, because they can chew and digest it better.

5. Mix chaff with corn or beans, and do not give the latter alone, because it makes the horse chew his food more and digest it better.

6. Hay or grass alone will not support a horse under hard work, because there is not sufficient nutritive body in either.

7. When a horse is worked hard its food should chiefly be oats; if not worked hard its food should chiefly be hay; because oats supply more nourishment and flesh-making material than any other kind of food; hay not so much.

8. For a saddle or coach horse, half a peck of sound oats and eighteen pounds of good hay is sufficient. If the hay is not good add a quarter of a peck more oats. A horse which works harder may have rather more of each; one that works little should have less.

9. Rack feeding is wasteful. The better plan is to feed with chopped hay from a manger, because the food is not then thrown about and is more easily chewed and digested.

10. Sprinkle the hay with water that has salt dissolved in it, because it is pleasing to the animal's taste and more easily digested. [A teaspoonful of salt in a bucket of water is sufficient.]

11. Oats should be bruised for an old horse but not for a young one, because the former, through age and defective teeth, cannot chew them properly; the young horse can do so, and they are thus properly mixed with the saliva and turned into wholesome nutriment.

12 Vetches and cut grass should always be given in the spring to horses that can not be turned out into the fields, because they are very cool and refreshing and almost medicinal in their effects; but they must be supplied in moderation, as they are liable to ferment in the stomach if given largely.

13. Water your horses from a pond or stream, rather than from a spring or well, because the latter is generally hard and cold while the former is soft and comparatively warm. The horse prefers soft, muddy water to hard water, though ever so clear.

14. A horse should have at least a pail of water morning and evening, or (still better) four half pailfuls at four several times in the day, because this assuages his thirst without bloating him. He should not be made to work directly after he has a full draft of water, for digestion and exertion can never go on together.

15. Do not allow your horse to have warm water to drink, because if he has to drink cold water, after getting accustomed to warm, it will give him colic.

16. When your horse refuses food, after drinking, go no further that day, because the poor creature is thoroughly beaten.—Scientific American.

A Great Many Ducks.

The Louisville Courier, in noticing a visit of "Johnny" Morehead to that city, is reminded of an amusing incident that occurred in the good old days when his father was Governor of Kentucky. Powell, who kept a restaurant and drinking saloon in Frankfort, rendered his monthly account to "Johnny" (the boys could get credit then,) which amounted to $150. "Johnny" went to his father to get the money.

"One hundred and fifty dollars, Johnny?" said the Governor, "it's a large bill, son."

"Yes, I entertained a great many friends during the month."

"Have you the bill with you?"

"I believe so"—hesitatingly.

"Let me see it, son."

"Johnny" slowly drew forth a long strip of bill paper, in which there were exactly thirty-one items put down as "D'ks." ranging from ten cents to as many dollars. The Governor adjusted his specs, and regarded it attentively, and said:

"D. K. S.—D. K. S; Johnny, my son, what does D. K. S. stand for?"

"Ducks, father, ducks! But of course they were not all ducks—some were partridges and snipe, and even eggs and oysters. But Lou Murray puts them all down as ducks."

The Governor looked first at 'Johnny' and then at the bill, and giving an ominous "hem," wrote a check.

Nobody ever believed the Governor was fooled, but after that, "Will you take a duck?" was for a long time a favorite convivial invitation with the Frankfort boys.

A Blind Husband.

In the town of N——g there lived a man by the name of Allen, who was forever quarreling with his wife. It so happened one day that his wife got the worst of the quarrel, and she immediately determined to get rid of him forever. For this purpose she became exceedingly friendly with a neighboring druggist, gave him some valuable presents, and then indirectly led him to understand that she would like to know the name of a poison that might be used without detection. At once the druggist suspected her motive He pretended to be perfectly willing to aid her in her villainous design, and so gained full particulars from the murderous Jezabel. Being well acquainted with the husband, and knowing him to be fond of eggs, he told her to give him two boiled eggs every morning, and he would gradually become blind. She commenced the operation the next morning, and in about a week he complained that his eyesight was becoming dull (for the druggist had in the meantime divulged the plot to the husband.) The wife was delighted at the success of her plan, and the eggs came regularly every morning, until at length the husband said that he could not see at all, that he was tired of life, and wished her to take him to the water's edge and throw him overboard, to which the wife agreed. When they reached the water's edge the wife pretended to cry piteously, and said she could not muster up courage to do it. He then said he would stand in front of a bundle of straw, which she should gently push, and thus throw him over without her seeing it The wife consented; she gently leaned against the straw, but he stepped out from under it, and the wife was precipitated into the water. When she arose to the surface she exclaimed: "Husband, dear husband, come and save me." Upon which the husband coolly replied: "I would, dear wife, but I can't see!"

The Government Printing Office.

The Cleveland Leader describes the Government printing office. In 1860, Cornelius Wendell sold the establishment to the United States for $135,000, and it has since become the largest printing office in the world. Among the public printers have been Gales & Seaton, Jonathan Elliott, Armstrong, of Tennessee, Duff Green, Blair & Rives, and Cornelius Wendell, but the system of contracting for the public printing having been abandoned, and the government having its own office, John D. Defrees has been superintendent since 1861. Last year 156 separate books and documents were turned out at this office—a variety of work which was not probably equalled by the Harpers, Appletons, Lippincotts, Fields and Scribners together. The entire number of copies printed was not far from 900,000. Mr. Seward had an appendix to his diplomatic correspondence prepared at a cost of $29,000; the book made 754 pages, and there were 22,000 copies printed. The diplomatic correspondence, in two volumes, attached to President Johnson's messages for 1867, made also about 2,000 pages, costing $35,000. The Lincoln memorial book is the most costly book probably ever issued in the United States. This is the appendix to Mr. Seward's diplomatic correspondence, containing expressions of sympathy and condolence with the nation on the fate of Abraham Lincoln. The cost price of producing the book will be $18 200, or more than $6 a copy, while the bindings on some special copies, ordered for the crowned heads, etc, abroad, will probably bring them up to $20 or $25 a copy. Of the agricultural report the extraordinary number of 220,000 copies have been ordered for last year, at a cost of $180,000, or about 85 cents a copy This is cost enough to pay the President, Vice-President, all the cabinet officers, the speaker of the House and two-thirds of the first-class foreign ministers. In these reports there are 450,000 pounds of paper, or 221 tons—enough to take 225 double-horse wagons to pull them. At this moment there are 800,000 copies of the reports of various years lying in the vaults of the patent office building, being the quantity annually printed in excess of the demands even of extravagance. These copies represent $80,000 of the people's money invested in waste paper. In one year new type added a cost of $18,804; printing ink, $19.717; coal, 700 tons; new machinery, $5,000. In the bindery 4,000 Russian leather skins were used, 760 packs of gold leaf, (costing nearly $7,000,) nearly $5,000 worth of twine and as much glue Paper for post office blanks alone cost $48,000. The binding of books consumed $73,000, and binding materials $113,000. Engraving and lithographing cost $111,000. Government printers get a trifle better prices than are paid elsewhere in the country. Steady work will give one $1,500 a year in this manufactory. The work-girls get from $9 to $12 a week. The printers are almost always in excess.

A Simple Cure for Deafness.

A gentleman who for some years past was so deaf as to be utterly unable to hear conversation in an ordinary tone of voice, called upon us the other day and requested us to publish the method by which his cure was effected, for the benefit of all who may be afflicted with this infirmity, whether arising from catarrh or other cause.

After trying the remedies prescribed by his physician this gentleman—now over sixty years of age, was recommended to inject into the diseased ear a mixture of castile soap and tepid water—or, the water may be made as hot as the part will bear. By this simple and entirely innocent preparation, used daily for about two weeks, the hearing of the gentleman who recommends it was completely restored.

The addition of a few drops of pure olive oil or glycerine is also of advantage, as it softens the wax of the ear when it has become hardened; or, if the deafness is accompanied with a sense of uneasiness or pain. A very great number of people are afflicted with partial deafness, and it can, we trust, do no harm to try so simple a remedy, a remedy which our informant assures us is a certain cure in many cases. —Del. State Gazette.

Good Advice.—Never chase your hat when it blows 'off in a gale of wind; just stand still, and you will see half-a-dozen persons in pursuit of it. When one has captured it, walk leisurely towards him, receive it with grateful acknowledgments, and place it on your head. He will invariably act as if you had done him a favor.

True joy is a serene and sober emotion; and they are miserably out that take laughing for rejoicing; the seat of it is within, and there is no cheerfulness like the resolutions of a brave mind.

Sambo bought a patriarchal rooster. "I took him home," says he; my wife biled him three hours, and den him crow! My wife den pop him into de pot with six pounds o' taters, and he kick 'em all out; he must a bin as old as dat Mefoosolum."

NEW ESTABLISHMENT!
New Stock, Low Prices!
BUILDING HARDWARE, TIN WARE, AND STOVES.

THE citizens of Chestertown and the adjacent country, are respectfully invited to call at the New Establishment, (stand formerly occupied by Wm. Simpson, on High street, nearly opposite the Voshell House,) and examine our large and cheap stock.

IN BUILDING HARDWARE

We are able to offer great inducements to Carpenters, Mechanics, Farmers, Builders, and those who contemplate having building done. If all such will only give us a chance we are confident of being able to convince them that we can supply their wants with a better article and for less money, than any establishment in this town. Our stock in this line is very full, and we are constantly making additions to it.

TIN AND SHEET IRON WARE,

In this department our stock is very complete, comprising almost any thing that can be called for, and at prices that must, we are sure, give satisfaction. In Tin we also keep the celebrated Stamped Ware. We have in our employ experienced, skillful and faithful workmen, and always use good material.

Stoves.

We shall keep a good stock, of all kinds, purchased from manufacturers direct, and will sell at a very small advance.

TIN ROOFING AND SPOUTING, and all kinds of repairing (including repairs to stoves,) done promptly in a workmanlike and durable manner, at low rates.

HOUSEKEEPING GOODS,

Embracing Safes, Japanned and Block Tin Ware, Ornamental Chamber Sets, and fancy Ware generally, in great variety.

In conclusion we would remark that we have gone into this business with a determination to sell low, to spare no pains, and to do all in our power to give satisfaction: and we respectfully ask our friends and the public to give us a trial.

DURYEAS'
Satin Gloss Starch

HAS established a world-wide celebrity for being the Purest, Whitest, Strongest, and Most Glossy and Economical Starch known. Disinterested judges pronounce it the "Perfection of Starch."

The Messrs. Duryea have no occasion to personally assert the superiority of their goods. A discriminating public and the decision of the following scientific and disinterested judges establish it.

PRIZE MEDALS AWARDED
Duryeas' Starch and Maizena

For their "Perfection of Quality," at Grand Paris International Exposition, 1867.
Great London International Exposition, 1862.
Great Internat. Exposition, Hamburg, 1863.
Great Internat. Exposition, Cologne, 1865.
Also at States', Agricultural, American Institute and Maryland Institute Fairs.

Inferior Starch is sour, musty, or has a golden or yellow tinge, a color not desirable in one's linen. (It is absurd for the laundress to cleanse and bleach, and then discolor linen with impure yellow starch.)

Maizena

Is a pure flour, from the choicest Indian corn, and is used for all the purposes of Corn Starch and Arrowroot, to which it is superior. Put up in the same style of packets, and at same price, with directions for use.

For culinary purposes, call for Duryeas' Maizena. For the laundry, call for Duryeas' Satin Gloss Starch.

For sale by all grocers. Be sure you get our goods. Our name is on all our boxes.
