The New Governor of Missouri --His Views and Opinions.

Hon. Gratz Brown, the liberal republican and anti-test oath candidate just elected governor of Missouri, over McClurg, radical republican, made a speech at St. Louis a few evenings ago. From a sketch of his remarks we take the following:

We have gone through this contest, we have made no appeal to party, we have made no discrimination against men, and yet we have made a distinctive appeal to to the common sentiment of the common country, in behalf of the right of every man to exercise the right of franchise of a free man, and we have won upon that principle. [Cheers.] Now I have to say to you, without any hesitation that I have to thank the democratic party of the State of Missouri [cheers] for the cordial support that they have given me in that position; and I say furthermore that no party has ever shown more perfect command of self, more perfect disregard of past traditions, more perfect devotion to the patriotic welfare of the common country than has the democratic party in the last election in this State of Missouri. [Cheers.] I can say to you frankly, my fellow-citizens, that I am the last man in this nation to disregard the obligations under which I stand, and that in this election I recognize that my obligations are in the largest measure due to the democratic party of the State of Missouri. [Cheers.]

Now, my friends, let me tell you another thing. I recognize the fact that the democratic party of the State of Missouri has done this thiug, it has elevated itself upon a higher platform than it ever occupied before; it has gone for the rights of all men, and in so doing it has made an initiative of the future that will go through all the States of this Union. It has cut itself loose from the formulas and the obstructions of the past, and it has made a platform upon which the young men of this nation can stand—[cheers]—a platform where they can stand disembarrased of all the antecedents that have gone before them; disembarrassed of all that retinue of party machinery that has kept them down heretofore, and where they can move forward in the spirit and in the light of a pure democracy, advancing to the conquest of the future. [Cheers.]

Fellow-citizens, so far as this question concerns our own State, I desire to say to you that I recognize this as the triumph of new ideas; that I recognize this as the initiation of a reconstruction of our State from the bottom upward; [cheers;] that I recognize it as the initiative of a new convention to reorganize our fundamental law. [Prolonged cheering.]

And accepting it in that light, I wish you all good cheer in the future, hoping and trusting only, in addition to that, that the lesson which has been taught by this election to the nation at large, will be received, accepted, and that the national representatives who have been sent from force and significance of all of your votes, will understand that it is proper for them to coalesce and combine, and consort with anybody and everybody that will reduce to the nearer approximation of justice and truth the immense tax which is now levied upon us under the false and fraudulent guise of a revenue tariff. [Cries of "That's democracy," and "that is what we want," and cheers."]

Orphans' Home.

The Managers of the Home for Friendless Children on the Eastern Shore, intend to open that Institution on the 1st of January, 1871. It may not be generally known that other contributions beside money will be acceptable. Let it be borne in mind, that in opening The Home, the house is to be furnished. They therefore solicit donations of every kind: house-furnishing articles of every description, dry goods, groceries, moat, meal, vegetables, wood, &c.

Will not housekeepers, those especially who are breaking up, and selling off their furniture look over their houses, and see if they have not some articles they can do without and send to The Home? Will not merchants and dealers generally spare something from their stores, and farmers from their granaries, poultry yards, and other produce of their farms in addition to their contributions in money, to this object?

All donations to be sent to Mrs. Elias O. Dawson, Talbot Coonty, Md.

ATTEMPTED RAPE.—As two daughters of Mr. Henry C. Legg, residing on Kent Island, were returning from school on Wednesday last, and whilst passing through a skirt of wood, a negro boy, named Wm. Horton, aged about 19 years, seized the eldest, aged about 14 years, threw her against the ground, and attempted to violate her person, but was prevented by the alarm given by the younger sister, aged about 12 years. The negro becoming frightened ran into the woods, and pursued by the excited populace for some time, when despairing of his capture search was abandoned. Officer Jeffers, however, continued search, captured the wretch and with difficulty kept his prisoner from the hands of those who were anxious to lynch him. The negro was then lodged in jail. Much excitement is said to exist on the Island in consequence of this foul attempt to violate the person of a chaste and beautiful girl.—Centreville Observer.

AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKER.—The Nov. number of this journal, published by J. W. McIntyre, St. Louis, beside its usual valuable contents, has very full announcements of its plans and reduced terms, with list of lessons of 1871 As the publisher offers to send this number free of charge, we advise Sunday-schools adopting a series of lessons for next year to send for a specimen copy.

☞ The spectacle of a woman driving a two-horse team, with two black bears and a cow chained behind, enlivened a western city recently.

DOWN THE COUNTY—DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPH—OYSTERMEN'S VOTE—CROPS, &c. WHEAT—POULTRY—CABBAGE—REMARKABLE FALL WEATHER—CORN, &c.—HOG KILLING.

Rees' Corner, Nov. 21, 1870.

MR. EDITOR—A long time has elapsed since a word was given you from "Down the County," but having survived the election, and feeling so proud that we so nobly have maintained the white man's liberty against negro freedom and Radical machinations, so well as justly entitle us to the claim of "The Banner District of Kent County." We are glad that we live in so true a District, where the white man is loved above the negro by a majority of the people. And as at this time we are inclined to give to all men their just dues, we must say that never did the vote of "The Oystermen" tell better than at this election, and we are glad to record the fact, for they voted like men who were contending in earnest for their rights under "the old Constitution and the laws of the land."

But we turn from politics to farming; that is, from a dirty thing to a thing of dirt. The corn crop this Fall is short, wherever we have seen it or heard from it. It is true that some made good corn, but then they should have made better, and from this District there will be less corn sold than several years past.

The wheat has looked well this fall, but now is evidently failing from what it was two weeks since. There is some fly, but it is mostly accounted for by the dry and warm weather unusual for so late in the season. All these are good reasons for failure in this crop—perhaps the Spring may bring it out all right, but as a crop wheat is becoming of late rather coquettish, and requires a good deal of watching and much coaxing.

Poultry is duller and lower this Fall than ever we remember of. Good geese were at Grey's Inn Creek Wharf, dressed, and only 60 cts. being offered. This will not do for those who raise poultry, but suits the consumer.

Potatoes are almost an utter failure: those raised are of fine size and good quality. Cabbage is scarcer this season than we ever before knew it to be This is owing to the protracted drought and insect destroying all the late plants. A neighbor of ours sows his seed for early and late cabbage at the same time, and always succeeds in having good plants and plenty of them. In future we shall adopt this plan.

Although wheat is selling low in market, we think perhaps it brings its full value, for it is not worth much, judging from all that we have seen. We have tried wheat that was cleaned as well as we could get it, and still when made into flour was unfit for use; and this at the same mill that last year made us flour equal to family. We account for this in this manner: beside the blighted grains the good wheat has never gotten hard, wanting all that flintiness so observable in good wheat generally.

There perhaps never was a better Fall for farm work, and therefore in traveling the road we see that nearly all the farmers are about winding up the husking for this season.

And now comes hog-killing, and still the balmy air of spring is about us, and we find it hard to realize the fact that the time for hogs to die has come upon us again. How it smacks of fat, and grease, and dirt, last but not least, of freshies. Who does not remember the time, when a boy, he went to a hog-killing; and after enjoying the sport all day, how he came home so greasy and tired, with a hand full of bladders to blow up at night; and how, after getting a blowing up from "the old woman" about his suspicious-looking clothes, he beat and banged and blew up his bladders by the cheery light of "the kitchen fire;" and how the big log and live coals gave forth a flickering gleam, so doubtful as to cause him to burn the top of his head 'most off in order to see where the neck was, so that he could fix his quill. How he values that quill! and what a hunt he had to find the old wing in order to get it out? And then, his quill all fixed, how he puffed out his cheeks and blew until he thought he would almost burst, and still the obstinate bladder resisted all his efforts, until he had given another beating and banging to it. And then how eagerly he watched next time to see how much he had gained; and then with his fingers pinched up the neck while he took a fresh hold of his greasy, odorous quill and rested himself for another effort in the line of blowing. And now she fills and stretches, and he blows and sweats, until at last even a bladder can give no more, he ties her up to smoke and dry until Christmas morning just before the dawn. We often hear the term "he is a good blower," used as a reproach, and our thoughts went back to boyhood's days, when, in bladder season, was to be sought after and caressed by all the girls and envied by all the boys about. We have in our mind now, one maiden, lovely to us, and considered at one time by all, to excel all others of Kent. We loved her, and she—oh, horror!—loved to blow bladders. How she would be shocked perhaps at the sight of one, and would plead not guilty to the charge, as with dainty finger—perhaps all gloved—she would draw back from the filthy thing, and shuddering, declare "I never!" But we didn't propose to tell all our secrets, and therefore will only add that men follow bubbles until they burst; and boys blow bladders and burst them when they please.

"So goes the world; and we go with it."

Attention was called to a letter from Geo. Steele to J. R. Gill, Esq., making a claim for work done on the Pump at School No. 2 in the 2nd Dist., (Hibernia) in 1868, and the Secretary stated that he had found no account of such claim whatever, voted to lay aside.
