Harness for Heavy Draft.

Harness makers and harness users all over the country will do well to heed the suggestions of the Harness Journal on this subject. The sooner those unsightly abominations which cover a horse almost with leather, in violation of all notions of economy and good taste, are laid aside, the better. The Journal says:

"Durability is the main consideration to be borne in mind in making up harness for heavy team work, but it is not necessary to load down the horses to secure this result. A harness may be made light but yet strong; not a single strap should be used more than is necessary to secure strength. It would be extremely difficult for any one to give a good reason for using the heavy cart harness; the heavy breeching and collar are of themselves all the load a horse should carry on a hot day. The shaft being attached to the collar relieves the back, but at the cost of immense strain upon the shoulders. Certain parts of the harness have to bear the greatest proportion of the strain, while the other portions only serve as supports. The trace, hames and hame straps on all team harness bear the principal part of the strain, and the size should be proportioned to the work to be done.

"A trace made of oak-tanned ox-hide will, if tanned and finished in the best manner, safely resist a strain of 259 lbs to the square inch, A team trace, therefore, two inches wide and double thickness, can be relied on to sustain a strain of 1,000 pounds. Additional experiments have shown that when two thicknesses of this leather are pasted and stitched, with twelve stitches to the inch, its strength is increased about thirty per cent.; but taking the minimum strength, this sized trace on a team is capable of starting a load of two tons weight, which is all any team of horses should ever be called upon to draw. In connection with this, use a chain made of 3-16 wire, its actual strength is double that of the trace, but the wear necessitates the additional strength. The hame rings or draft eyes as well as the trace clip should be a little heavier, but there is no necessity of their being of ½ inch round iron, as we often see them."

Oiling Farm Implements.

The Boston Cultivator gives the following sensible and practical advice to its readers:

"Every farmer should have a can of linseed oil and a brush on hand, and whenever he buys a new tool he should soak it well with the oil and dry it by the fire or in the sun, before using. The wood by this treatment is toughened and strengthened, and rendered impervious to water. Wet a new hay rake and when it dries it will begin to be loose in the joints; but if well oiled, the wet will have but slight effect. Shovels and forks are preserved from checking and cracking in the top of the handle by oiling; the wood becomes smooth as glass by use, and is far less liable to blister the hand when long used. Ax and hammer handles often break where the wood enters the iron; this part particularly should be toughened with oil to secure durability. Oiling the wood in the eye of the ax will prevent its swelling and shrinking, and sometimes getting loose. The tools on a large farm cost a heavy sum of money; they should be of the most approved kinds. It is a poor economy, at the present extravagant prices of labor, to set men at work with ordinary old-fashioned implements. Laborers should be required to return the tools to the places provided for them; after using, they should be put away clean, bright, and oiled. The moldboards of plows are apt to get rusty from one season to another, even if sheltered; they should be brushed over with a few drops of oil when put away, and they will then remain in good order until wanted."

—:o:—

Phosphate of Lime.

Lime combines with phosphoric acid in valuable proportions, and forms several compounds. Of these, by far the most abundant, and certainly the most useful in agriculture, are the earthy parts of bones, and a native mineral, called phosphorite. And it occurs, but less abundantly, in corals, oyster shells, and in the shells of other fish; in the teeth, horns, nails, hair and other parts of animals; and in the horny wings and coverings of numerous insect tribes. It also exists in minute quantities in nearly all limestones and marls; probably there are few fertile soils in which it is wholly wanting. It likewise forms one of the ingredients in the grain, straw, stalk or roots of most cultivated crops; and hence, is indispensable to their perfect growth and maturity.

—:o:—

STEAMING FOOD FOR CATTLE.—The Practical Farmer, in commenting upon this subject, says:

"In steaming food for cattle, it is not proper to use galvanized iron pipe, from the fact that the zinc coating is liable to shell off speedily after being once broken, and entering the food would be pernicious in its effect. This zinc coating, says the Arts, almost always contains some free acid, and will be so introduced into the system of the animal, which is by no means desirable.

—:o:—

TO CURE WARTS ON HORSES..—I had a fine colt that had about twenty large warts on his breast, under his belly and in his ears. I was recommended to burn them out with caustic or a hot iron, which I tried, and found that both were slow and barbarous. One day I picked up a small piece of newspaper, and found the following recipe:

To cure warts on horses: Equal parts of spirits of turpentine and olive oil. Rub well every two or three days.

This I tried, and it acted like a charm. —Cor. Rural New Yorker.

JUDGE of the season's labors not alone by your successes, but by your failures. A failure often teaches a man more than a success.

Does My Loved One Dream of Me?

Twilight breezes, toying idly
Where the willow branches sway,
Where the blushing roses listen
To the tender words ye say;
Hasten hence on wings of gladness,
Where my love her hope doth sing;
When ye learn its precious burden,
Back to me the echoes bring.
Higher still, I ween, and clearer
Will the notes of angels be,
If the songs they sing of mortals
Mingle with my love's of me.

While the summer day is sleeping
In the cradle of the sky,
And the starry hosts are keeping
All untiring watch on high,
Go, ye moonbeams, where this even
Bows my love on bended knee;
Come and tell me, then, if ever
Move her lips in prayer for me.
Brighter, dearer, purer, nearer,
Must the prayer of angels be,
If they bear to heaven's portals
Mine for her and hers for me.

When the heavy wing of slumber
Hovers o'er the weary world,
And the gates that ope to dreamland,
On their hinges back are hurled;
When the image that is nearest
To the heart is first to see,
While of her I'm fondly dreaming,
Does my loved one dream of me?
Close above her, in that dreamland,
Would some watchful one might be,
Who would tell me if her holy
Purest dreams are aye of me.

Japan and the Japanese.

A street called the Tekodiah is the Broadway of Yeddo. It is twenty miles long, and very much crowded. But there is a vast difference in the appearance of the two thoroughfares. There are no vehicles in use in Japan, and the pavements extend from one side of the street to the other. No provision is made for the passage of carriages, omnibus or wagons, for there are none in existence, and persons on foot take possession of the whole highway. The entire metropolis is built of wood, and one dwelling is a representation of all.

A Japanese house at the first glance resembles a child's toy house on a large scale. The floor is raised about two feet above the earth, and there is a covered porch in front, resting upon the bare ground. After entering the porch you step into the house, always leaving your shoes behind you. It is considered a very great breach of propriety to enter a dwelling without removing one's boots. As they wear only sandals, covered with a leathern thong, which they can shuffle on or off in an instant, this custom is of but little moment to the natives, but foreigners find it a very troublesome one. The porch answers as a depository for shoes, and, in passing a house, the number of visitors may be known by counting the number of pairs of sandals on the porch.

When the walls of a house are up it consists of but one large room, which is then cut up by partitions, which are nothing more than sliding screens that close up into each other, in a fashion that admits of one apartment being divided into a dozen distinct ones instantly. There are no chimneys attached to the houses, and they contain no beds, chairs, or tables. The floors are covered with a series of clean bamboo mats or cushions, each six feet by three, and nicely bound with red or blue tape. They are stuffed with light wood or moss, and are soft and yielding to pressure as the heaviest Brussels velvet. These mats fit in with each other as regularly as the squares on a chess board, and the whole floor is kept as clean and is dusted as often as the mahogany sideboard in the house of a Dutch burgher. No fleck of dirt is ever allowed to rest upon the polished surface of the matting, and to step upon it with a pair of boots would be a greater insult than to make a footstool of a seven hundred dollar piano. The family sit upon the matting all day, with their legs bent under them, in a shape that would give any foreigner incurable paralysis in fifteen minutes, and they sleep upon it at night. A Japanese pillow is a curiosity in its way. It is nothing but a rocker of a cradle, broad enough to stand alone, with a semicircular depression on the upper side. The Japanese lie full length on the floor, place not their head but their neck in the crescent-shaped hollow on the upper side of the pillow, and rock themselves to sleep in a few minutes.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.—Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine, and not the cloud, that makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, so have others. None are free from them. Troubles give sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. What though things do look a little dark? The lane will turn, and night will end in broad day. Men are not made to hang down their heads. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

☞ A country girl coming from the field was told by her cousin that she looked as fresh as a daisy kissed by dew.

"Well, it wasn't any fellow by that name, but it was Bill Jones that kissed me. I told him every person in town would find it out."

☞ A school girl, in writing to her mother, says: "I get along nicely with all my teachers except Miss ——; but I don't blame her, because she accidentally shot the young man she was engaged to, and it naturally makes her feel kind of cross, especially on cloudy days."

☞ An Irishman said that if a few gooseberries gave so fine a flavor to an apple pie, "it would be a darlint of an apple pie that was made of gooseberries intirely."

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

There are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of relieving congestion or inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

For Female Complaints, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal; are safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.
