

The Farmers' Column.

From the American Stock Journal.

Cutting and Cooking Food for Stock.

In many sections of our country it is a question, "How can we keep our stock to the greatest advantage during our long winters? We cannot provide the necessary hay, grain, and fodder to keep the amount of stock we would be glad to keep, to provide the necessary animal manure requisite to keep our farms improving, or hardly to hold their own." Therefore we must try and find some way by which we can increase our capacity for feeding more stock, and at the same time, make more and better manure. In no way can this be accomplished except by cutting and steaming their food.

Cutting fodder does not add any more nutriment, we admit, but it changes its mechanical condition and enables stock to consume it in less time, and thus have more time for digestion.

Wherever digestion can be helped, a point is gained, and if a less amount of food cut will go farther, another point is gained. If better digestion secures more nutriment from the food administered, and a less amount is wasted in excrement, a less amount of food will be required. By steaming we get a still farther increase of nutriment. Professor Agassiz, the illustrious naturalist, shows in the following clear, plain and unmistakable language, the reason why food for domestic animals should be prepared, it being premised that the food we give our stock is not that which nature provides at first hands, but is dried and mechanically altered in many ways. Soaking or steaming restores hay to its wonted bulk and succulence; and as Prof. Agassiz said of this mode of preparing food in general: "It must save the secretion of saliva to an enormous extent, and therefore relieve the animal from a physiological labor which is very manifest. I have no doubt that must be the chief source of relief to the cattle, because dry food must be softened in order to be digested; and it must be done by the secretions of the mouth—by the secretory surfaces of the alimentary canal—and, in fact, to all the secretory surfaces of the digestive apparatus. Now, where does that come from? From the blood, and if you supply the food so far softened that the animal is relieved from that physiological labor, you place your animal in a much better condition for its work. I have no doubt that there is the explanation of your results—that your steam performs a part of the operation which your animal has to do itself by its secretions." We have already alluded to the importance of thorough mastication, in regard to digestion, and that one of the most prolific sources of indigestion, and diseases which almost invariably follow it, is the presentation of imperfectly masticated food to the action of the gastric juices of the stomach. It is well known that the teeth of the horse are adapted to the grinding of grain, but it ought to be as well understood, that the wants of the horse's system demand that he shall eat rapidly; he consequently performs the masticating process imperfectly. Now the structure of the horse's stomach is such, that the digestion of partially broken, or even whole grain, is better secured than in some other animals. But as every farmer knows, much of the grain is passed wholly undigested. For dairy cows we have found that cutting and steaming the food pays largely.

A Saxon proverb says, "The softer the fodder, the more milk," and this is true. Warm, soft food tends to produce milk. The same amount of grain fed in a warm, thin gruel, will give much more milk than if fed dry. Warmth is a great requisite in cold weather, and is one of the advantages of steaming. Every dairyman knows how exposure to a cold storm will make his cows fall off in milk. It is important that they should have water in the barn, and if possible that it should not be too cold. Cows giving milk drink much more than fattening animals, or than they will themselves do when dry. Fat is made from the heat-giving food, and a portion of food by no means inconsiderable goes to keep up the warmth of the animal, and large quantities of ice-cold water taken at once must subtract much from the animal heat. As a confirmation of the soundness of these views, regarding the superiority of boiled, over raw food for dairy cows, and fattening of cattle and hogs, we have only to consider for a moment what actually takes place every day in the case of man. We here see how greatly substances which have been submitted to the action of the heat, such as bread, meat, soups, broths, and other articles, surpassed those used in their natural state. A small quantity of wheat, maize, barley or rice, well boiled, and eaten warm with a little milk, gains in nutritive matter an immense superiority to the same quantity of these substances, eaten without this preparation. The same remark is applicable to all kinds of grain.

Hen Manure, Ashes, Plaster, and Salt.

A valuable fertilizer, and one in reach of every farmer, especially adapted to garden culture as well as for top-dressing and field culture, is hen manure, ashes, plaster, and salt mixed in equal quantities, excepting the salt, of which one-fourth will be sufficient. Mix intimately, and apply either in hill at the surface, or broadcast. It gives good results upon all soils, and crops. I keep usually about twenty-five hens; these roost at a certain place the year round. Beneath the roosts is a light plank floor. The annual produce of droppings is six barrels of the pure thing. This, mixed with the same quantity of ashes and plaster, gives eighteen barrels; the salt brings it up to twenty barrels of choice fertilizing compost, equal to much of the superphosphate of commercial manure firms, and worth far more than the manure from two cows.—JOHN JONES, Rural New Yorker.

GAMBLING is the child of avarice, but the father of misery.

THE CLOSING YEAR.

BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE.

'Tis midnight's holy hour—and silence now
Is brooding, like a gentle spirit, o'er
The still and pulseless world. Hark! on the winds
The bell's deep tones are swelling; 'tis the knell
Of the departed year. No funeral train
Is sweeping past! yet, on the stream and wood,
With melancholy light, the moonbeams rest,
Like a pale, spotless shroud; the air is stirr'd,
As by a mourner's sigh; and on yon cloud,
That floats so still and placidly through heaven,
The spirits of the seasons seem to stand.
Young Spring, bright Summer, Autumn's solemn form,
And Winter with his aged locks, and breathe
In mournful cadences, that come abroad
Like the far wind-harp's wild and touching wail,
A melancholy dirge o'er the dead year,
Gone from the earth forever. 'Tis a time
For memory and for tears. Within the deep,
Still chambers of the heart, a spectre dim,
Whose tones are like the wizard voice of Time,
Heard from the tomb of ages, points its cold
And solemn finger to the beautiful
And holy visions that have pass'd away,
And left no shadow of their loveliness
On the dead waste of life. That spectre lifts
The coffin-lid of hope, and joy, and love,
And, bending mournfully above the pale
Sweet forms that slumber there, scatters dead flowers
O'er what has pass'd to nothingness. The year
Has gone, and, with it, many a glorious throng
Of happy dreams. Its mark is on each brow,
Its shadow in each heart. In its swift course,
It waved its sceptre o'er the beautiful,
And they are not. It laid its pallid hand
Upon the strong man, and the haughty form
Is fallen, and the flashing eye is dim.
It trod the hall of revelry, where throng'd
The bright and joyous, and the tearful wail
Of stricken ones is heard, where erst the song
And reckless shout resounded. It pass'd o'er
The battle-plain, where sword and spear and shield
Flash'd in the light of midday—and the strength
Of serried hosts is shiver'd, and the grass,
Green from the soil of carnage, waves above
The crush'd and mouldering skeleton. It came
And faded like a wreath of mist at eve;
Yet, ere it melted in the viewless air,
It heralded its millions to their home
In the dim land of dreams. Remorseless Time—
Fierce spirit of the glass and scythe—what power
Can stay him in his silent course, or melt
His iron heart to pity? On, still on
He presses, and forever. The proud bird,
The condor of the Andes, that can soar
Through heaven's unfathomed depths, or brave
The fury of the northern hurricane,
And bathe his plumage in the thunder's home,
Furls his broad wings at nightfall, and sinks down
To rest upon the mountain-crag,—but Time
Knows not the weight of sleep or weariness,
And night's deep darkness has no chain to bind
His rushing pinion. Revolutions sweep
O'er earth, like troubled visions o'er the breast
Of dreaming sorrow; cities rise and sink,
Like bubbles on the water; fiery isles
Spring, blazing, from the ocean, and go back
To their mysterious caverns; mountains rear
To heaven their bald and blacken'd cliffs, and bow
Their tall heads to the plain; new empires rise,
Gathering the strength of hoary centuries,
And rush down like the Alpine avalanche,
Startling the nations; and the very stars,
Yon bright and burning blazonry of GOD,
Glitter a while in their eternal depths,
And, like the Pleiad, loveliest of their train,
Shoot from their glorious spheres, and pass away,
To darkle in the trackless void:—yet Time—
Time, the tomb-builder, holds his fierce career,
Dark, stern, all-pitiless, and pauses not
Amid the mighty wrecks that strew his path,
To sit and muse, like other conquerors,
Upon the fearful ruin he has wrought.

The Great Medical Discovery!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.
$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.
For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.
J. WALKER, 32 & 34 Commerce Street, N. Y. Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and 32 and 34 Commerce Street, N. Y.
☞ SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
August 20, 1870—6m.

For Female Complaints, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal; are safe and reliable in all forms of disease.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the power of relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs
