

The Farmers' Column.

THE FARMER.

BY RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

The glory of the farmer is, that, in the division of labor, it is his part to create. All trade rests at last on his primitive authority. He stands close to nature; he obtains from the earth the bread and the meat. The food which was not, he causes to be. The first farmer was the first man, and all historic nobility rests on possession and use of land. Men do not like hard work, but every man has an exceptional respect for tillage, and the feeling that this is the original calling of his race, that he himself is only excused from it by some circumstances which made him delegated for a time to other hands. If he had not some skill which recommends him to the farmer, some product for which the farmer will give him corn, he must himself return into his due place among the planters. And the profession has in all eyes its ancient charm as standing nearest God, the first cause. Then the beauty of nature, the tranquility and innocence of the countryman, his independence, and his pleasing arts—the care of bees, of poultry, of sheep, of cows; the dairy, the care of hay, of fruits, of orchards and forests, and the re-action of those on the workman in giving him a strength and plain dignity, like the face and manners of nature—all men acknowledge. All men keep the farm in reserve as an asylum, where, in case of mischance, to hide their property, or a solitude if they do not succeed in society. And who knows how many glances of remorse are turned this way from the bankrupts of trade, from mortified pleaders in senates, or from the victims of idleness and pleasure! Poisoned by town life and town vices, the sufferer resolves: "Well, my children, whom I have injured, shall go back to the land, to be recruited and cured by that which should have been my nursery, and now shall be their hospital."

The farmer has grave trusts confided to him. In the great household of nature, the farmer stands at the door of the bread room and weighs to each his load. It is for him to say whether men shall marry or not. Every marriage and the number of births are indissolubly connected with the abundance of food; or, as Burke said, "man breeds at the mouth." Then he is the Board of Quarantine. The farmer is the hoarded capital of health, as he is also the capital of wealth, and it is from him that the health and the power, moral and intellectual, of the cities come. The city is always recruited from the country. The men in cities who are the centres of energy, the driving-wheels of trade, politics, or practical arts, and the women of beauty and genius, are the children and grandchildren of farmers, and are spending the energies which their fathers' hardy, silent life accumulated in frosty furrows, in poverty, necessity, and darkness. In English factories, the boy who watches the loom, to tie the threads when the wheel stops, to indicate that the thread is broken, is called a Minder. And in this great factory of our Copernican globe, shifting its slides, rotating its constellations, times and tides; bringing now the day of planting, then of watering, then of weeding, then reaping, then of curing and storing—the farmer is the Minder. His machine is of colossal proportions; the diameter of the water-wheel, the arms of the levers, the power of the battery, are out of all mechanic measure; and it takes him long to understand its parts and its working. This pump never "sucks;" these screws are never loose; this machine is never out of gear; the vat and piston-wheels and tires never wear out, but are self-repairing. We see the farmer with pleasure and respect, when we think what powers and utilities are so meekly worn. He knows every secret of labor. He changes the face of the landscape. Put him on a new planet, and he would know where to begin; yet there is no arroganee in his bearing, but a perfect gentleness. The farmer stands well on the world. Plain in manners as in dress, he would not shine as in palaces; he is absolutely unknown and inadmissable therein. Living or dying, he shall never be heard of in them. Yet the drawing-room heroes put down beside him would shrivel in his presence—the solid and unexpressive, they expressed to gold-leaf. But he stands well on the world, as Adam did, as an Indian does, as Homer's heroes, Agamemnom and Achilles, do. He is a person whom a poet of any clime—Milton or Cervantes—would appreciate as being really a piece of the old nature, comparable to sun and moon, rainbow and flood; because he is, as all natural persons are, representative of nature as much as these. That uncorrupted behavior which we admire in animals and in young children belongs to him, to the hunter, the sailor—the man who lives in the presence of nature, Cities force growth, and make men talkative and entertaining, but they make them artificial. What possesses interest for us is the natural part of each, its constitutional excellence. This is forever a surprise, engaging and lovely; we cannot be satiated with knowing it, and about it, and it is this which the conversation with nature cherishes and guards.

AN ENGLISH paper suggests that Agricultural Associations try and discover some means of preserving the surface water on which the food of the country depends, instead of, as now, allowing it to run to waste. The writer urges that seasons of drought may be expected, and that on each farm there should be a reservoir to be used in stimulating growth in dry weather. The only way to provide against the damage that the drought inflicts upon our crops is to store the water that we allow to run to waste. We use fertilizers to increase the harvests of our soil, and it is claimed that we should also bring the skies under our control for the same purpose. We admit that we here have a vast field for improvement in our system of agriculture, but is not the field a little too vast for ambitious man to grasp and turn to practical use?—Turf, Field and Farm.

From the Day-Book.

TWILIGHT VOICES.

BY MRS. MARY J. TAYLOR.

The shadowy twilight, solemn and still,
Is chasing the day's last beam;
And the lonely song of the whippoorwill
Comes up from the wood-girt stream.
And sadly I sit at my window-sill—
Dreaming an old, old dream.

Like soothing melody, sweet and low,
Voices are calling to me—
From out of the beautiful Long Ago,
Chidingly—tenderly;
Floating up from the shadows below
That creep over meadow and lea.

"Oh! come to us. Listen to the night bird's song;
Come, follow the fire-fly's lead!
In merry chase, it will lead us along,
By the brook and the flowery mead;
And dew-drops, that to the sweet evening belong,
Will glitter like gems on your head."

Ah! me, these feet are too weary and slow,
To follow the fire-fly's way;
And the blooming clover has lost the glow
It wore in a by-gone day.
And the dew on my hair would mock it so—
Mock at its threads of grey!

But the tenderest voice that calleth to-night,
Hath a sad and sorrowful tone—
A heart that once was so happy and light,
Now broken and bowed like my own;
Wistfully gazing, with grief-dimmed sight,
Where the beautiful Past hath flown!

That voice o'er the years hath lured me away,
And out where the summer smiled,
And sunbeams floated like banners gay,
O'er tangles of jessamine wild;—
Where the soldier stood in his simple gray,
With the faith of a trusting child.

"We have reared our Castle of Hope," said he—
"We have viewed it again and again;
And the thought will not trouble you and me,
That it may be a 'Castle in Spain.'
For 'tis founded on Justice and Right, and we see
It shows not a ruin or stain!"

Ah, me! how that cherished Hope grew dim,
And faded and dropped away;
Like ashes from out some brazier's rim,
Whose flames grew cold and gray,
Under the chill of the years so grim,
Which neither would bless nor stay!

A joyless man in the gloom of defeat—
Slow—creeping toward the grave;
Who fought against Wrong, as he deemed it meet,
For the land he'd have died to save—
Earning the guerdon the conquered that greet,
Be the conquered never so brave!

And a sad-eyed woman afar away,
And as weary as weary can be;
Who broodingly pines in the twilight gray
For the friend whom she never shall see—
Are the two who stood by the jessamine gay,
Where the green hill sloped to the sea!

A Dream.

SECOND PART.

I also saw in my dream that one day, some time after this, as I walked along the shore of the river of life, I heard it announced that there were more "newly arrived" from Kennedyville, Maryland. With an earnest desire to see them, I was soon where they were. How mutually happy was our meeting! They were delighted to be in Heaven—were perfectly enraptured with the sights and sounds. Oh, how they sung! But, after a short time, I noticed that their song languished; and that always after a feast on the "twelve manner of fruits," and during the evenings, they seemed at a loss what to do. They acted as if they had been accustomed to something they could not find there. I could not imagine the cause of this and, finally, as it grew no better but rather worse, I mentioned it to an angel; who drew near to them and said, "Why, ye redeemed ones, look ye so troubled?" "Oh, sir," said they, with tears in their eyes, "we find no croquet ground here, neither is there a set of croquet instruments; as for these old harps, we are getting tired of them. Whereupon, the angel, with a sad countenance, to think they were still so wedded to the world from which they should have been redeemed, said, "Trouble not yourselves; there is a place for you. Just outside of the gate there is a small mountain called Childhood, where you may go and play to your heart's content; and where you will find those who were appointed to take care of all such as you, lest you fall into some ditch, or some evil come upon you unawares. But, you must leave here your crown, robe, palm, and harp, for some one worthy, and receive instead a mallet, ball, wicket, and meg!"

At this, strange to say, they all gave a shout, and away they all went out at the gate: and as the gate stood ajar I heard singing, and listening, they sang,

"Croquet, croquet, croquet;
This is the game for me," &c.

In my dream I heard it said, as it were many years afterwards, that, though they were weary of it, they had still to play; and that remorse filled their souls to think they had been so unwise as to exchange a crown, robe, palm, and harp, for a mallet, ball, wicket, and meg. HILO.

THE INJURED PORTRAIT.—"Ma, is the portrait of father torn?" asked a little cherub of three summers.

"No, child, why do you ask?"

"Why, this morning he said, 'Darn my pictur.'"

A STUMP speaker exclaimed: "I know no North, no South, no East, no West, fellow-citizens!" "Then," exclaimed an old farmer in the crowd, "it's time you went to school and larnt jography."

TO PHYSICIANS

—:o:—

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

PREPARATION
OF
Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.

Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this, (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever in inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

Is the great specific for Universal Lassitude, Prostration, &c.

The constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

USE

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

The Great Medical Discovery!

Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

For Female Complaints, whether in young, or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Several will relieve in all forms of disease.

There are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

THEY ARE NOT A VILE

FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.

J. WALKER, 32 & 34 Commerce Street, N. Y. Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and 32 and 34 Commerce Street, N. Y.

☞ SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.
