

The Farmers' Column.

From the Maryland Farmer.

Grape Growing in Maryland.

The usefulness of your paper to farmers, is acknowledged in general. Still, it could be more so, if in future, you would not neglect, as heretofore, one branch of industry. It is well enough to describe big steers, big hogs and fast horses, raised by big farmers, or gentlemen of large means, to raise those big things with. But it is different with men of only small means, or few acres. They have to make a living for their families often on small spots, which would not be sufficient to raise even a single big steer—I allude to the growing of grapes.

Having just returned from a trip through the States of New York, Northern part of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, I am satisfied that in many districts through those States, the products of the vine are of far more value than all the big cattle and fast horses, on twenty times as many acres. Along the Hudson River, particularly around Troy, on the shores of the little Cayuga and Seneca Lakes, near Hammond's Port, every hillside and otherwise favorable location, is covered with grape vines. At Brocton, a station near Lake Erie, are sold daily thousands of pounds of grapes, to passengers of the different trains, and thousands of tons sent to New York and other markets, from vineyards of Salem, on Erie and others in the neighborhood.

Around Sandusky are over three thousand acres planted with grape vines. I visited the vineyard of General Mills, of eighty acres, seventy bearing. The vines were loaded with fruit, which he was just harvesting, and pressing for still and sparkling wines, of which he must have made from fifty thousand to sixty thousand gallons.

Mr. M. H. Lewis, of Sandusky, is also doing an immense business in grape roots and cuttings. He had an order on hand from one party alone, from Michigan, for over twenty-five hundred dollars worth of grape roots and cuttings, showing the spirit in regard to grape growing. The same may be said of Illinois, Southern Iowa, and particularly of Missouri. Now, a vineyard of eighty acres is a big thing, as a vineyard, yet not many big cattle could be raised on them, and I would like to see any farmer of Maryland make more on eight hundred acres by raising cattle, hogs, corn or wheat. But most of grapes are by no means raised in such large vineyards, for such are very rare, but mostly in vineyards of one, two, four, and six acres, and many in gardens and yards. The climate of Maryland, as well as its soil, are as well, if not better adapted, than many of the Western States, for the growing of grapes; and why should not the city of Baltimore as well as Washington, be supplied with this delicious fruit, so refreshing, so wholesome for all, with grapes grown in Maryland. That the market for grapes cannot be so easy overstocked, has been satisfactorily proved, by grapes selling now for double the price in neighborhoods where thousands of acres are in cultivation, than they did when they were raised only on a few acres. Concords and Catawbas were sold this fall in St. Louis for ten cents a pound, when in Baltimore the same kind brought only four, six and ten cents. The taste for grapes has increased, and will continue to do so from year to year, until they become a necessity. They are also a more sure crop than most any other fruit. They are not quite so perishable as peaches, strawberries and raspberries, and their season extends over months, nay, over years, as fruit and wine. Since my election about a year ago, by the Grape Growers' Association of Maryland, as President pro tem., I have corresponded with many grape growers in the State, from whom I received generally cheering news, and all hopeful for the future. The same may be said from the adjoining counties of Virginia. There are now in Maryland, as far as I could learn, from four hundred to five hundred acres in grape vines; a very few for our State, it is true. Yet, the march is onward.

Now, Messrs. Editors, will you fold your arms, and look on, as heretofore? Do so, if you can—still the march will be onward. In other grape-growing States, an agricultural paper would be scorned at, had it not in its table of contents, a line like this—"The Vineyard"—describing suitable soils, situations, varieties, their habits, and the work for each month. Do likewise, and you will put under obligations many grape growers. You shall not be in want of material. It will be furnished to you as needed. I intend to call together the members of the Grape Growrs' Association of Maryland, the coming spring, to elect officers, to effect a permanent organization, and to exhibit new wine. Should you take an interest in the cause, you will hear from us again.

Very respectfully yours,
G. H MITTNACHT.
Pikesville, Dec. 23, 1870.

OXEN.—A good ox should have a long, lean face, and bright hazel eye, which shows capability to receive instruction and disposition to obey it. Large nostrils denote the capability of the ox to work on a hot day. Very large horns at the base denote laziness. Full breast, straight back, wide ribs—by which is meant ribs that round out nearly as wide as hip bones—and wide gambrel, denote strength. Straight knees, broad toes, pointing straight forward, show an ox can travel on hard road or pavement. They should be well matched, especially in disposition and speed.

The farmer who has a pair of oxen answering this description has a very good team.

The next thing is a good teamster. The better the ox, the easier he is spoiled by a man who knows not how to drive. An ox should not be over-worked to begin with. He should never know how much he can draw, but always have such confidence in his driver as to think he can draw anything he may ask him to.

TO GRANDMA.

BY MISS EMILIE M. KIEHL.

Grandma, I'm tired! Please take me to bed;
I'm so sleepy, I've heard scarce a word you have said.
I know that you love me—for often you say
I'm the joy of your life when you see me at play;—
But why do you cry when we sing the last hymn?
Does the smoke from the grate make your old eyes grow dim?
I was dreaming last night of that beautiful land
Where papa and mamma with our Saviour now stand;
And Heavenly Father called Grandma so plain,
I awakened and kissed you again and again!
You say that I'm good, and beautiful, too;
But, you tell me, some day I shall look just like you!
Will my long flowing curls, dark, you say, as the night,
Be like yours, Grandma, so thin and so white?
And my eyes, like the sky in their color, you say,
Will they look, when I'm old, like your own, dim and gray?
And shall I, too, be feeble, scarce able to walk,
And tremble, like Grandma, when trying to talk?
Will a loving grand-daughter—a fond one like me—
Kneel at twilight in prayer, as I, at your knee?
Oh, Grandma! don't say that soon you will stand
With mamma who has gone to that beautiful land,
For what should I do, in this great world I see,
With no one to care for, and none to love me?
Who is this other you tell me will come
To lead me through life when your journey is done?
I never shall love anybody like you!
For who in this world is so good and so true?
o o o o o o o o
Alas for poor Nellie! Her innocent heart
Thinks the sorrow of life is from Grandma to part,
The time will soon come—for it comes to us all—
When the leaf of the Spring wears the hue of the Fall;
When the russets of Autumn, with sober tints, fling
Their shadowy folds o'er the hopes of the Spring.
Not the grave, as it mantles the loved from our sight,
Is the sorrow that kills. There's a bitterer blight
Than the last farewell spoken—the ties death may sever—
Joys, compared to the griefs that may live on forever;
Friendships betrayed; affections grown cold;
The iron that enters the soul ere we're old;
These may be—poor child!—your portion to wed
In the long countless years after Grandma is dead!

Take it Out in Trade.

A lathy looking fellow entered a downcast restaurant, and ordered a double stew of oysters. The man who kept the restaurant was a small, red-headed individual, evidently very high tempered. He prepared the stew in quick time, and the lathy fellow sat down to his repast, and ate with enviable relish; after which he selected a first-class cigar, regaled himself with a mug of foaming ale, sitting with his feet elevated upon the top of the stove. He was very deliberate and self-possessed. After the cigar had almost disappeared in smoke, he called for his bill.

"Sixty-five cents," said the proprietor.

"How is this?" asked the lath.

"Fifty cents for the double stew, and fifteen cents for the cigar."

"You forgot the ale," remarked the lathy fellow, looking quite serious.

"Ah, yes, that is ten cents more—seventy-five cents."

"Well, I am ready to pay it."

The red-headed man made no reply, and the fellow kept his seat.

"I tell you I am ready to pay the bill."

"Well, pay it then," said the proprietor.

"I ain't got any money."

"Hain't got any money!" repeated the man of refreshments.

"Not a darned cent."

The red-headed man opened his eyes.

"Then how do you expect to pay the bill?"

"Well, I'll tell you—I'll stand about seventy-five cents worth of your jaw—so go ahead."

The red-headed man was the maddest individual ever seen. He seized the nut-cracker and let it fly at the offender with a will; but it only hit the chair-back and broke its own handle.

The lathy fellow had gone. He vacated his seat at the nick of time, and the last seen of him he was walking very leisurely down the street finishing his cigar.

☞ Some young men talk about luck. Good luck is to get up at six o'clock in the morning. Good luck, if you only have a shilling a week, is to live on eleven-pence and save a penny. Good luck is to trouble your head with your own, and let others' business alone. Good luck is to fulfil the commandments, and do unto other people as we wish them to do unto us. We must plod and preserve. Pence must be taken care of, because they are the seeds of guineas. To 'get along in this world,' we must take care of home, sweep our own doorways clean, try to help other people, avoid temptations, and have truth and faith in God.'

A YANKEE pedlar of crackers and gingerbread, thus expatiated upon the wonderful quality of his wares: "My hearers, I have often heard that hunger could eat through a stone wall, and I don't doubt it—especially if one of my biscuits was on the other side."

TO PHYSICIANS

—:o:—

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

PREPARATION
Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.

Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this, (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever in inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

Is the great specific for Universal Lassitude, Prostration, &c.

The constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, or the decline or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu and Improved Rose Wash

Will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superceding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

USE

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu

In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

Those suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. PRICE—$1.25 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

The Great Medical Discovery!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which renders them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.
