

The Farmers' Column.

Successful Strawberry Culture.

One of the most successful cultivators of the strawberry is Mr. Knox, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Meehan, in the Gardner's Monthly, gives the following description of his system of management:

Many have supposed that Mr. Knox's success, if not owing to the soil, was the result of the peculiar variety he cultivates, and thus much demand has arisen for his Jucunda; but it is easy to perceive that success does not lie in this; for he has Fillmore, Triomph de Gand and Agriculturist, nearly as good. The great secret is his manner of treatment, which is essentially different from anything about our city. His soil is naturally rich and dry, but he applies a coat of rich manure at the first plowing. The plants are set in the spring rather close in the rows, and the runners kept cut back by hand. This cutting back is one great secret. He has found that the production of runners and fruit are antagonistic forces.

He has learned that deep culture, after the ground is prepared, is an injury.—Hence he will have no horse culture; but all the weeds are kept down by hand hoes. In the winter the plants are covered with rye-straw, and, after first hoeing in spring, the straw is carefully laid between the rows, serving the treble purpose of keeping the fruit clean, preventing the growth of weeds, and screening the ground from the hot sun in summer. On this last he lays great stress. By fall this straw becomes dry and crumbles and forms an additional fertilizer. Thus the beds are continued in bearing three or four years before they are worn out, affording him, he contends, a greater return with less labor, although dispensing with so much horse work, than is possible under any other plan.

Familiar as I am with superior fruit crops, I have never known anything to equal his. The size of the berries was the largest that any one ever saw, and might easily be mistaken by a near sighted observer for tomatoes. The interest of the matter, however, does not center so much in the large size of the berries as in the number of them. I have seen perhaps as great a weight per acre on the grounds of Philadelphia growers, but nowhere the same measure of large fruit.—In most strawberry crops a few large berries come at first, and a mass of small ones follow; but here there are comparatively few of the latter, and the great advantage is that, while in times of abundance the the inferior ones glut the market and are only sold at a loss to the grower, the superior fruit is never abundant, and readily commands high prices.

Dwarfing.

The following description of the manner in which the Chinese make dwarf trees is an intimation of their painstaking in horticulture:

We all have known from childhood how the Chinese cramp their women's feet, and so manage to make them 'keepers at home;' but how they contrive to grow minature pines and oaks in flower-pots for half a century has always been kept a secret.—It is the product chiefly of skilful, long continued root-pruning. They begin at the beginning, Taking a young plant (say a seedling or a cutting of a cedar) when only two or three inches high, they cut off its tap-root as soon as it has other rootlets enough to live upon, and replant in a shallow pot or pan. The end of the tap root is generally made to rest upon the bottom of the pan, or on a flat stone within it. Alluvial clay is then put into the pot, much of it in bits the size of beans, and just enough in kind and quantity to furnish a scanty nourishment to the plant. Water enough is given to keep it in growth, but not enough is given to excite a vigorous habit. So likewise, in the application of light and heat. Then, too, the top and roots, being within easy reach of the gardener, are shortened by his pruning knife, or seared with his hot iron. So the little tree, finding itself headed on every side, gives up the idea of strong growth, asking only for life, and just growth enough to live and look well.—Accordingly, each new set of leaves becomes more and more stunted, the buds and rootlets are diminished in proportion, and at length a balance is established between every part of the tree, making it a dwarf in all respects. In some kinds of trees this end is reached in three or four years; in others ten or fifteen years are necessary. Such is the fancy horticulture of the Celestials.

☞ A single handful of manure put into a hill of corn will often make the difference between four or five little "nubbins," and six or eight great plump ears that will shell their bulk of sound corn. A thousand handfuls count up heavily in the autumn corn crib. How many handfuls of manure are daily lost in your stock-yard that might be saved in nice order by a little care in heaping up and covering from washing rain? These handfuls of manure are more valuable to the cultivator than the separate grains of gold that the miner, with careful toil, gathers and washes from the earth and sand bank. He hunts, gathers, and saves them all, and thus accumulates his "pile." Philosophical, successful cultivators can see the glitter of gold even in the manure heap; they only wait a little longer than the miner for the pure gold to be washed out by the growing process, instead of in the wash-pan." A word to the wise is sufficient."

GATES.—We dare say every farmer knows that although bars may be used as a temporary convenience, more time is lost in one season, in taking them down and putting them up again than a good gate would cost. There is no great difficulty in making good gates by farm hands alone, without even hinges or nails, but the use of the latter is decidedly to be preferred, and they are sufficiently cheap to obviate any serious difficulty on the score of poverty

TENNYSON'S SONGS.

[The following songs, from "The Window, or the Songs of the Wrens," by ALFRED TENNYSON, will be pronounced exquisite, charming, delicious, etc., by many a reader:]

I.

Vine, vine, and eglantine,
Clasp her window, trail, and twine!
Rose, rose, and clematis,
Trail and twine and clasp and kiss,
Kiss, kiss; and make her a bower
All of flowers, and drop me a flower,
Drop me a flower.

Vine, vine, and eglantine,
Cannot a flower, a flower be mine?
Rose, rose, and clematis,
Drop me a flower, a flower, to kiss,
Kiss, kiss—and out of her bower,
All of flowers, a flower, a flower,
Dropt, a flower.

II.

Where is another sweet as my sweet,
Fine of the fine, and shy of the shy!
Fine little hands, fine little feet,
Dewy blue eye.
Shall I write to her? shall I go?
Ask her to marry me by-and-by?
Somebody said that she'd say no,
Somebody knows that she'll say ay!

Ay or no, if asked to her face?
Ay or no, from shy of the shy,
So, little letter, apace, apace,
Fly!
Fly to the light in the valley below,
Tell my wish to her dewy blue eye.
Somebody said that she'd say no;
Somebody knows that she'll say ay!

III.

Sun comes, moon comes,
Time slips away,
Sun sets, moon sets,
Love, fix a day.

"A year hence, a year hence,"
"We shall both be gray."
"A month hence, a month hence,"
"Far, far away."

"A week hence, a week hence,"
"Ah, the long delay!"
"Wait a little, wait a little,
You shall fix a day."

"To-morrow, love, to-morrow,
And that's an age away."
Blaze upon her window, sun,
And honor all the day.

A Representative Woman.

They have a queer woman orator in San Francisco. Here is a portion of a speech she made recently:

"They say that man was created first; Sposin' he was! Ain't first experiments always failures? If I was a betting man I'd bet two dollars and a half they are. The only thing about him, any how, was a rib, and that went to make something better. And then they throw it in our face about Eve taking that apple. I'll bet five dollars Adam boosted her up the tree and then only gave her the core. And what did he do when he was found out? True to his masculine instinct, he sneaked behind Eve's Grecian bend, and 'Twarn't me, 'twas her.' Bring up your little daughters to love and caress the ballot, and when they are old and scrawny they will not depart from it. Teach them that man occupies no position that woman cannot fill, even to a pair of pants. Teach them that without the ballot woman is simply a cooking and washing machine; that with it she can rule her little roost. We have plenty of ballet girls, but what we want is ballot women. I am astonished there a'int more interest manifested in this absorbing topic. This hall ought to be filled from dome to ceiling. Our speakers don't lack brains or influence, but there is one thing I wish they did lack, and that is their desire for a husband. No matter how rabid a woman is on this question, or how much she talks against the man on the platform, she'd grab the first one that offered himself, and turn right straight round; and that's where we'er weak. Most women think they're made for a purpose and that was to have Mrs. on their tombstone. They'd better be misses all their lives, I am commander in chief of a large army of female woman's ballots, and am cleaning out everything that looks like male sex whilst the band plays, "See the conquering hero cometh." Come with me to the worst portion of our great city. After ascending thirty-one flights of rickety stairs what do we find? A miserable basement. In one corner sits a wretched woman, once the belle of the city. She makes vests. Not a morsel of food has passed her lips since fall. Around her are fourteen children crying for bread, But, alas! she ain't got the bread. Have I ever drawn this picture? No, sir. And if any man dares to say I have, I'll guarantee to send him home on a shutter in less than ten minutes. But my dear sisters I am not here simply to touch your hearts but your pockets also. A thing of this kind can't go on without money, and I hereby call upon four of the most able-bodied sisters, who feel 'tis sweet to be on the muscle, to pass round the hat. Think of your altered firesides, where mothers, with dissipated husbands, press their children to their bosoms. (After this a majority of the audience moved towards the door. About seven dollars and a half was collected. After putting the amount in her reticule and planting her right foot firmly ubon it, she proceeded.) My dear friends, I must now bid you adieu, but I will be with you again when times are better, for I intend to agitate this question till we get our rights and whatever we can sponge besides. I will agitate it until my breath gives out."

☞ An ingenious wife in Des Moines cured her husband of snoring thus: She had a gutta-percha tube with two cup-shaped ends; one she puts over his nose and mouth and the other over his ear. He consumes his own noise, as a stove does its smoke, and wakes up instanter.

Governor Merrill, of Iowa, began an address to the inmates of the State Penitentiary with the remark that he was "glad to see so many there;" a sentiment which would have been cheerfully reciprocated by his audience had his Excellency come on a longer visit.

☞ A boy hunting near Linneus, Missouri, pursued a squirrel to a hollow tree, and as the animal disappeared, struck at it with the butt of his gun, discharging the fire-arm, and killing the boy. The coroner's jury found that the boy "came to this death through the anxiety of a squirrel to get into a hollow tree."

☞ Never buy an umbrella on a rainy day, for when it rains they go up.

TO PHYSICIANS

—:o:—

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call your attention to my

PREPARATION
OF
Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.

Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this, (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever in inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist,

The Great Medical Discovery!
Dr. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands
Bear testimony to their wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

THEY ARE NOT A VILE
FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics" "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell.

$100 will be given for an incurable case, providing the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, and Gout, Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They invigorate the stomach, and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Copious Discharges of Urine, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms which are the offsprings of Dyspepsia, are cured by these Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French, and Spanish.
