The Farmers' Column.

AGRICULTURE AND LABOR.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF MARYLAND.

Pursuant to a resolution to that effect which was adopted by the Labor Convention which assembled at Raine's Hall, in Baltimore, in December last, the committee then appointed have issued a circular addressed to the people of Maryland "on the subject of the development of agriculture, and the encouragement of the other resources of the State by immigration." The committee was composed of Messrs. F. Raine, W. S. McPherson and George R. Dennis. The Address which these gentlemen have issued cites first of all the various laws that have been passed from time to time by the General Assembly of Maryland to encourage immigration, and go on to call attention to the fact that the necessity of more effectually promoting a movement so desirable has led to the organization of an association which is known as the "International Immigrant Union," and with which affiliated Societies to be established in the counties are hereafter to be connected for the same purpose.

The committee recommend to the citizens of Maryland the following plan, and ask for it a careful canvass:

Firstly. Encouragement to settlers, agriculturists, mechanics, laborers, capitalists, &c., from our own States and abread.

Secondly. The formation of societies of land-owners and others in each county, to ascertain the wants of such county, and to determine upon the means to supply them.

Thirdly. Such societies to co-operate with a central association in the commercial metropolis of the State, which shall include in its executive committee the presidents of all county organizations, for the purpose of taking joint steps, not only to supply the wants of each county, but also to act permanently as the agent for the promotion of the great object we have in view.

In respect to the course which would be best to pursue, the committee make the following suggestions:

The division of large tracts of land, and particularly the same into small farms, fixing the lowest possible prices, and perhaps direct help to settlers, by forming mutual societies to erect for them houses, as has been done with beneficial results in other States, paying back contributors largely, might be considered with favor. Actual settlement would thus receive a strong impulse, and the lands be enhanced in value far beyond any immediate outlay required. Work, land and homes must be had; the wages and prices—the remuneration—be known fully, explicitly and satisfactorily to those whose immigration to Maryland we solicit.

Secondly and thirdly, the organization of societies of landowners in each county would enable us not only to give such information in the most comprehensive manner, but also would bring about united action to devise means for the furtherance of the plans suggested. The location and price of lands, their adjacency to markets, church and school facilities, railroads, &c., would become a matter of general knowledge. We look upon the landowners as the main source to supply this information, and by recommending their organization in each county, we may expect, with good reason, provided a true spirit of progress controls their action, that the greatest good can be accomplished. Their labors would direct themselves at once to promote practical results, and greatly determine the success of our enterprise; and in connection with this, we may be permitted to state that the organization of such societies would be of vast importance to the counties; the wants of each individual would become known, and clear-headed men would undoubtedly devise means to inaugurate reforms, such as are demanded alike by the individual as well as the State. Educational and other matters, the improvement of our roads, and many other topics, would receive the benefit of a fuller exchange of views, and react advantageously upon the prosperity of the Commonwealth.

The co-operation of the county societies with a central association (or agent,) in the commercial metropolis of our State, would enable us to spread all information—statistical, agricultural and otherwise—to the people of our own States and abroad. Each county being represented in the central organization, all action would be jointly; all steps to be taken would receive the benefit of the experience and advice of all members. The means contributed for carrying out the objects we have in view would be spread carefully and judiciously, and each citizen of our State kept constantly advised of the progress of the movement.

All these suggestions are eminently practical, and if hearty co operation can be effected between the landowners and the society, much good would be accomplished. The first thing to be ascertained is where colonists can be located advantageously in the State, and if agriculturists, with some means, at what price they can purchase lands. This must be known beforehand, and the land must be set apart for this express purpose, at the prices named by the landowners. When this is done, there ought to be active agents in Europe with maps and printed pamphlets, who could point out the situation of the lands, thus reserved for the purchase of immigrants, and explain the qualities of the soils, the nature of the climate, the facilities for reaching a market, &c., &c. If these points are once satisfactorily settled, the International Immigrant Union will have broad ground to work upon, but if immigrants coming here are then to look about them for farms upon which to settle, or for employment either in country or in town, all the efforts of the officers of the Union will be baffled by the obstacles thrown in their way. A few colonies of immigrants settled in different parts of the State with land open for sale, at moderate prices around them, are the first necessity. They will thus form the nuclei around which other immigrants will cluster, and when this is once accomplished a steady stream of immigrants will flow to those points, and the work of the association will be comparatively easy.

Remember that fruit trees to bear well, require to be fed every year.

THE OLD FARMER.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

I don't half live, penned up in doors; the stove's not like the sun,
When I can't see how things go on, I fear they're badly done;
I might have farmed till now, I think—one's family is so queer—
As if a man can't oversee who's in his eighti-eth year.

Father, I mind, was eighty-five before he gave up his;
But he wasn't dim o' sight, and crippled with the rheumatiz,
I followed in his old steady way. so he was satisfied,
But Reuben likes new-fangled things and ways I can't abide.

I'm glad I built this southern porch; my chair seems easier here:
I haven't seen this fine a Spring this five and twenty year!
And how the time goes round so quick!—a week, I would have sworn,
Since they were husking on the flat, and now they're hoeing corn!

When I was young, time had for me a lazy ox's pace,
But now it's like a blooded horse, that means to win the race,
And yet I can't fill out my days, I tire myself with naught;
I'd rather use my legs and hands than plague my head with thought.

If father lived, I'd like to know what he would say to these
New notions of young men, who farm with chemistries;
There's different stock and other grass, there's patent plow and cart—
Five hundred dollars for a bull, it would have broke his heart.

They think I have an easy time, no need to worry now,
Sit in the porch all day and watch them mow and sow and plow;
Sleep in Summer in the shade, in Winter in the sun,
I'd rather do the thing myself, and know just how it's done!

Well—I suppose I'm old, and yet 'tis not so long ago
When Reuben spread the swarth to dry, and Jessie learned to mow,
And William raked, and Israel hoed, and Joseph pitched with me;
But such a man as I was then my boys will never be!

I don't mind William's hankering for lectures and for books;
He never had a farming knack—you'd see it in his looks;
But handsome is that handsome does, and he is well to do;
'Twould ease my mind if I could say the same of Jessie too!

There's one black sheep in every flock, so there must be in mine,
But I was wrong the second time his bond to undersign;
It's less than what his share will be—but there's the interest!
In two years more I might have had two thousand to invest.

There's no use thinking of it now, and yet it makes me sore;
The way I've saved and saved, I ought to count a little more,
I never lost a foot of land, and that's a comfort, sure,
And if they do not call me rich they cannot call me poor.

Well, well, ten thousand times I've thought the things I'm thinking now;
I've thought them in the harvest field and in the clover mow;
And sometimes I get tired of them, and wish I'd something new—
But 'tis all I've seen and known; so what's a man to do?

'Tis like my time is nearly out, of that I'm not afraid,
I've never cheated any man, and all my debts are paid:
They call it rest that we shall have, but work would do no harm;
There can't be rivers there, and fields, without some kind of farm!

A Sweet Adieu.

If there is a more eloquent and touching argument against war, than may be drawn from the following little episode of the Franco-Prussian struggle, we have yet to see it:

A corporal of the second regiment of Thuringian Infantry, was ordered to assist in burying the dead after the battle of Woerth. He described the scene to his father in Germany, and sent with his own, a letter which he discovered in the hand of a French captain, whom he found dead on the field. The letter read as follows:

My Dear Pa:—Since you are gone, I never cease to think of you. It is so hard that I can't see you and embrace you every morning, but I hope that God will preserve your health that you may soon return and kiss your child. I behaved very well in order to make mamma feel your absence less. Adieu, dear pa; I kiss you tenderly. Your little daughter, who loves you. Marguerite.

The brave soldier was evidently comforted in his last hour of trial by the dear words of love from his darling, whom he was never more to see in this life.

He closed his eyes for the last time on the field of honor, with her sweet little letter in his hand.

☞ A negro preacher holding forth to his congregation on the subject of obeying the commands of God, said:

"Bredern, whatever God tells me to do in dis book (holding up the Bible) dat I am gwine to do. If I see in it dat I must jump throo a stone wall, I is gwine to jump at it. Going throo it belongs to God, but jumpin' at it belongs to me."

Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated, from the fact that sugar-coated pills do not dissolve, but pass through the stomach without dissolving, consequently do not produce the desired effect. O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
Cures Diseases, arising from imprudences, habits of dissipation, etc., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change of diet, no inconvenience and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire and gives strength to urinate, thereby removing obstructions, preventing and curing strictures of the ureters, allaying pain and inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all poisonous matter.

Thousands who have been the victims of incompetent persons, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they have been deceived, and that the Poison has, by the use of powerful astringents, been dried up in the system, to break out in a more aggravated form, and perhaps after marriage.

Use Helmbold's Extract Buchu for all affections and diseases of the Urinary Organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. $1.50 per bottle.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH

Cannot be surpassed as a Face Wash, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of cutaneous affection. It speedily eradicates pimples, spots, scorbutic dryness, indurations of the cutaneous membrane, &c., dispels redness and incipient inflammation, hives, rash, moth patches, dryness of scalp or skin, frost bites, and all purposes for which salves or ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage by possessing qualities which render it a toilet appendage of the most superlative and congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, safety and efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a preservative and refresher of the complexion.
